Canadian Jets Over London Pageantry

As the newly-crowned Queen, members of the Royal Family and thousands jamming London's Coronation route watched, 168 jet planes of the RAF and RCAF performed a fly-past. Whistling in from the south, the Canadian planes were fourth in the aerial procession, throttled back to keep pace with the slower RAF Meteors.

Commonwealth Leaders Want East-West Talks

Six-Day Conference Begins Today in London

LONDON (Reuters)—Jacob Malik, Soviet ambassador to Britain, had a half-hour meeting today with Prime Minister Churchill at 10 Downing Street.

It was learned that the meeting took place at Malik's request, but British officials declined to say what matters were discussed.

Their silence encouraged speculation that it might have had some connection with proposals for an East-West meeting, which Churchill is known to favor.

LONDON (AP)—Eight Commonwealth prime ministers, including Canada's St. Laurent, support Sir Winston Churchill's call for top-level talks between East and West, authoritative sources said tonight.

This had been the reported aim of the British prime minister as he opened a six-day conference of Commonwealth leaders with a general review of world affairs and a detailed analysis of East-West relations.

Qualified sources said Churchill hoped to win the unreserved support of Britain's eight Commonwealth partners for his project to bring about an early top-level meeting of the big powers. Churchill evidently believes he will then be in a position to speak with greater authority when he meets President Eisenhower and the French premier in Bermuda late this month.

Prime Minister St. Laurent is representing Canada at the conference. He also attended the conference last November when sterling members of the Commonwealth drew up a plan to beat the dollar shortage—a problem not shared directly by Canada.

Newcomers to today's meeting at 10 Downing Street were Jawaharlal Nehru of India, Daniel Malan of South Africa and Mohammed Ali of Pakistan. They did not attend the November conference.

Each to Make Policy Statement

Churchill was understood to have dwelt in his address on the various ways he thinks East-West political tension can be reduced and how improvement in the world situation might benefit the Commonwealth's economic position.

Reported up for discussion at the meetings here is a plan to have the Queen and Royal Family live for periods of time in the capitals of each of the self-governing countries of the Commonwealth.

Following Churchill's appraisal today of the world situation, each of the other prime ministers will make a policy statement. Particular interest will be shown in Nehru's address since he has taken a key role in seeking a Korean truce.

No announcement of the current talks is expected until they wind up next Wednesday.

Other prime ministers attending are Robert Menzies of Australia, Dudley Senanayake of Ceylon, Sir Godfrey Huggins of Southern Rhodesia, and Sidney Holland of New Zealand.

PARIS (AP)—The foreign office said today that the date of the Big Three meeting in Bermuda hinges on the outcome of France's ministerial crisis.

An informal exchange of views has been made between the United States, Britain and France on mutual subjects and it has been agreed that no positive date can be set until France has a government.

It originally had been planned for President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and the French premier to meet June 17. Since this is only two weeks away, and France has not yet selected a cabinet to replace that of Rene Mayer, a postponement has been agreed upon.

The three governments are thinking now in terms of the last half of this month, without specifying the exact dates.

Strikers Meet Council for Peace Talks

Saanich Workers Seek Compromise

Officials of the Saanich Municipal Employees Association will meet Saanich council tonight to discuss a wage settlement to end the strike of municipal employees.

The meeting will be held at 7.30 p.m. at the Municipal Hall.

Discussions to end the strike, which has tied up all municipal projects since last Thursday, began Monday. So far the association has agreed to reduce wage demands if Saanich Council will adjust wages of certain specialized workers.

The association said it is ready to accept a rate of $1.40 an hour for laborers, five cents less than originally demanded, and still below the rate paid in private industry.

The council has not yet committed itself, but has shown it is in favor of a general wage increase instead of wage adjustments to certain categories of workers.

The union will agree to this system only if the council will first appoint a wage commission to completely revise present wage rates. The union claims wages are so out of line that an over-all wage increase is not fair to some of the employees.

RCAF Relocates Training Schools

OTTAWA (CP)—Two RCAF flying training schools in Western Canada will be relocated this summer, air force headquarters announced today.

No. 2 flying training school, at Gimli, Man., will move to Moose Jaw, Sask., in late June. No. 4 flying training school, now operating from Calgary, will move to Penhold, Alta., in July.

Some advance units of No. 2 FTS have already begun operations at Moose Jaw.

POJE QUITS JAIL UNDER CORONATION AMNESTY

VANCOUVER (CP)—Union official Tony Poje, jailed five weeks ago on a contempt of court charge, was released Tuesday under the Coronation amnesty.

"It wasn't bad, except for the food," he said on release.

Poje, president of the Duncan, B.C., local of the International Woodworkers of America CIO, was sentenced to three months in prison for defying a court injunction during the woodworkers' strike last summer.

He went to Oakalla prison April 28 after a seven-month legal fight. Tuesday his sentence, which had been upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada, was commuted under the Coronation amnesty ruling.

Man Battles Thieves As Crowd Looks on

Burglars Identified in Vancouver When Branch of Victoria Firm Robbed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dozens of Hotel Vancouver lobby-sitters stood by and watched a courageous, silent alarm operator struggle with a thief Tuesday afternoon in the course of a fantastic cops-and-robbers chase.

"Not a soul moved—they just stood there with their mouths open," said 26-year-old Harvey Delmar in recounting the story of the chase.

Both thieves surprised by the unarmed operator escaped, but Delmar recognized one and tore a jacket, containing a wallet, pictures and complete identification, off the second. He later identified them from police photos, and the wanted men are still being sought.

An employee of B.C. District Telegraph and Delivery Co. Ltd., Delmar answered a silent alarm to W. J. Wilson clothing company in the Hotel Vancouver, a branch of the Victoria firm of the same name.

Entering a small storage room, the five-foot-nine, 150-pound operator confronted two thieves.

Delmar blocked the doorway against the kicking, punching thieves for several minutes before they managed to break through.

"Since I could identify one of them, I decided to go after the other fellow," Delmar said, "and I chased him full tilt through the lobby after ripping off his jacket."

Then began the long chase which twice crossed busy Granville Street intersections at Smithe and Nelson. Finally, at Richards and Nelson, the thief jumped into a passing taxi.

Big Hydro-Electric Development May Get Go-Ahead Soon

Surveys now in progress in B.C.'s northwestern corner may bring the go-ahead signal later this year on the multi-million dollar Frobisher Ltd. hydro-electric and metallurgical development announced Feb. 13.

Details of the project were sketched at Toronto today to shareholders of Ventures Ltd., one of the participating firms.

Intention is to develop 4,300,000 horsepower of electricity in northern B.C. and southern Yukon to supply giant electric-furnace ore-smelters at Tulsequah, B.C., 55 miles northeast of Juneau, Alaska. The principal plants would cost $329,000,000, and the first stage of construction would begin in 1955.

Crowd Surprises Guards To Stop Elizabeth's Car

Heavy Festivities Program Ahead for Busy Sovereign

LONDON (UP)—A hysterically cheering crowd, still celebrating the Coronation, burst through police lines today and stopped Queen Elizabeth's open automobile as she started out to tour the Cockney district of northeast London.

Taking the thin cordon of police by surprise, the crowd surrounded the car, in which the Queen's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, sat beside her, and forced it to halt.

The Queen sat smiling serenely until mounted police edged in and cleared the roadway, and she waved as her car drove slowly off.

The radiant young woman who was crowned in Westminster Abbey Tuesday was starting a whirl of post-Coronation festivities that will last most of this summer.

Wearing a powder blue coat and a close-fitting hat of the same color, the Queen started out to tour northeast London. In succeeding days, she will tour the other three corners of her sprawling capital to let as many people as possible see her.

She had gone down The Mall, past cheering lines of people, to receive the homage of the waiting mayor of Westminster — central London — when the crowd stopped her car.

In northeast London, despite the weather, the Queen found the drab streets decorated with festive flowers, and the cheers rang as fervently as those that greeted her Tuesday.

The great day of the Coronation was over. London awoke—with many a hangover—to a rainy day after its gayest night since the Second World War victory celebration.

Elizabeth holds a great state banquet tonight in Buckingham Palace. In the next two weeks she will go to the Derby, a gala opera at the Covent Garden, "trooping the color" at the Spithead naval review and the Royal Ascot race meeting.

She will then go to Edinburgh for a "second Coronation" in Scotland.

Revelry Lasted Far Into Night

Hundreds of thousands of celebraters packed the Thames embankment Tuesday night to watch a fireworks display that cost an estimated $45,000.

Celebrities danced until 4.30 a.m. at a gala "Elizabethan fantasy" ball.

Piccadilly Circus was a focal point for revelers. One young man highlighted the Piccadilly celebration when he climbed into the golden cage around the statue of Eros and posed on the shoulder of the "God of Love."

A conga line formed at midnight.

Cars trying to push through the crowd suffered a sad fate. At least a dozen persons climbed on the roof of one automobile and a party of young men lifted another clear off the ground. The occupants were badly shaken.

Scotland Yard reported 6,783 casualties during the period of the Coronation ceremony and the parade alone. Most of them were suffering from exposure.

The figure compared favorably with the total of 9,583 casualties suffered during the 1937 Coronation of the late King George VI.

Next to Elizabeth, the biggest hit of Tuesday's great show was Queen Salote of Tonga. The dark-skinned Amazon of six feet three inches rode through constant drizzles in an open carriage.

She wore a light short-sleeved dress and waved furiously to the crowds. Her broad grin never left her face.

Police said not a single case of pickpocketing was reported in the Coronation crowds.

'Gleaming' Sobriquet For Queen

LONDON (BUP) — All London was agog today with talk that Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill may have uttered a description for history when he described Elizabeth II as a "gleaming" figure.

There was immediate speculation that the young monarch would be known as "the gleaming queen" as a result of the great orator's influence.

The prime minister stressed the word "gleaming" Tuesday night as he introduced Queen Elizabeth's radio message.

"'Gracious and noble' are words familiar to us in all courtly phrasing," he said. "Tonight they have a new ring in them because we know they are true about the gleaming figure whom providence has brought to us in a time when the present is hard and the future veiled.

"It is our dearest hope that her reign shall be as glorious as her devoted subjects can help her make it. We pray to have rulers who serve, nations who comfort each other and for peoples to thrive and prosper free from fear.

"May God grant us these blessings."

Churchill raised his voice and ended with the words: "The Queen."

Would Rename Everest

LONDON (BUP)—The London Daily Herald proposed today that Mount Everest, world's highest peak conquered Friday by a British expedition, be renamed Mount Elizabeth.

Engineers Overruled By Works Minister CCF Nominee Claims

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With the second provincial election in just more than a year only six days away, British Columbia's politicians are at the firing line in full strength again after a brief Coronation lull.

Charges and counter-charges, replies to charges and to counter-charges, rattled back and forth across the hustings.

In the Fraser Canyon centre of Lytton, Gordon Dowding, CCF candidate for Lillooet, charged that Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi has overruled his department engineer in issuing special permits to overload trucks on the Fraser Canyon highway.

He said bridges were being overloaded over the "extreme limit" by as much as 10,000 pounds.

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks, in a speech at Agassiz, said the Social Credit Party plans a complete survey of Fraser Valley dyking and drainage problems.

Liberal Leader Arthur Laing said in Dewdney that Mr. Wicks' promise to protect Canadians against American labor was unnecessary and meaningless.

"Not one American working man can come into such projects as the "Trans-Mountain oil pipeline until approved by the department of labor at Ottawa," he said.

Another Liberal, Jay Gould, candidate in the Vancouver-Burrard riding, said "despite the kicking around it has had as a political football, BCHIS has survived because it is sound and solid."

Another Burrard candidate, Alex B. Macdonald, of the CCF party, said "Social Credit penny-pinching policies may cost B.C. millions a year."

Referring to the part-time Labor Relations Board, he said "One strike could easily run to a million dollars."

Addressing a meeting at Roberts Creek, CCF candidate Tony Gargrave for Mackenzie, said the Liberal party had "no right" to ask for endorsement at the polls in this election. He said they were running the same candidates and believed in the same things they did when they were rejected by the voters in the last election.

Vishinsky Keeps Quiet About Future as He Sails for Home

NEW YORK (UP) — Andrei Y. Vishinsky, chief Soviet Union delegate to the United Nations, sailed for home today on a sudden trip and declined to say when he would return.

Leaving aboard the Cunard liner Queen Elizabeth, Vishinsky brushed off newsmen and to questions on whether he planned to return to the United States, replied only: "I hope so." The Soviet delegate previously had said the journey home was due to "family matters."

Semyon K. Tsarapkin, Vishinsky's aide, also was asked if Vishinsky planned to resume his duties at the United Nations.

"I'm sure he is," Tsarapkin said. "I don't know exactly when. It depends on his decision, on his family."

Tsarapkin confirmed reports that Vishinsky's wife was ill, but said he did not know the nature or seriousness of the ailment.

Vishinsky was accompanied by a secretary and two bodyguards.

The UN learned of Vishinsky's projected trip last Friday when he abruptly switched the date of the reception he was holding at the Russian delegation's Long Island estate from June 8 to June 4.

The news immediately prompted the usual state of speculation —Vishinsky might be in line for a new job; the Kremlin doesn't expect dramatic developments at Panmunjom one way or the other since it would want its top delegate here in case of big news; the Kremlin wants to consult him on the attitude of various UN groups toward the truce talks.

WIFE FAINTED; NEIGHBORS SLAMMED DOORS

Man Pronounced Dead Returns From Coffin in Chapel Vault

BELGRADE (AP)—Pity the plight of Ceda Pavlovic, who awoke the other night in a cemetery fully dressed for his own formal funeral.

Poor Pavlovic had taken a hot bath earlier in the day. Forgetting his schoolday physics lessons, he reached up a dripping arm to snap on a light. Water serves as a conductor for electricity.

His wife found him unconscious. A hurriedly summoned physician pronounced him dead. His body was carted off for burial next day under government health regulations. It was lodged in an ice-chilled vault beneath the cemetery chapel.

Pavlovic awoke to find himself in a coffin. He then nudged the lid of the coffin.

The lid moved upwards. He climbed out, only to find the vault door bolted. He cried for help. Frightened, a cemetery guard above fled.

A 60-year-old retired jurist, Pavlovic pleaded his predicament at the top of his lungs. "I am here by mistake," he shouted. "Let me out." The guard finally crept back and released him.

Pavlovic hurried off to the nearest phone to report to his wife he was coming home, hungry.

He was in for another shock. Under the strain of the day, she shrieked. Then he hung up. Then she fainted. Pavlovic tried next to re-establish himself with his neighbors. Answering his knocks, they looked quickly, shuddered and slammed the doors.

Finally, he found an acquaintance who had not heard of his "death." This one served as a go-between. Poor Pavlovic soon was home again.

But last shock was still to come. His family had inserted a death notice in the morning papers, too late to be withdrawn. Pavlovic still is answering messages of condolence.

TV Report to America By Eisenhower Tonight

President Puts On His Own Show

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower makes history tonight when he puts on his own television show to report to the nation on his administra- first 22 weeks in office.

Presidents have gone before video cameras before but usually their appearances have been solos during speeches. Tonight's performance, on all four TV networks at 6.30, PDT, will be different.

For the first time, Mr. Eisenhower will have a supporting cast of cabinet officers. He will preside at a desk, walk around a TV stage set created within the White House, examine charts and chat informally with his guest stars. It will be a polished, rehearsed production under the direction of TV experts.

The president will appear with Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr, Treasury Secretary George M. Hunphrey, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, and—for added glamor and the GOP viewpoint on social security — photogenic Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, secretary of health, education, and welfare.

The president will open the 30-minute show with a talk of about eight minutes, speaking from notes and cue cards. Then he will present the four cabinet members for a modified question and answer session about some of the major problems before the country and how the Republicans have met or intend to meet them.

Mendes-France Claims Plan to End Conflict

Scheme to Settle Indo-China Conflict Would Be Presented to Big 3 Conference

PARIS (UP) — Radical Socialist Pierre Mendes-France told parliament today that if he is confirmed as premier he will submit "a precise plan" to end the war in Indo-China to President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

The plan, he said, will be submitted to the American and British leaders at the Big Three conference to be held in Bermuda late this month.

Mendes-France has recommended in the past that France pull out of Indo-China and leave to the Viet Minh and the Viet Nam Government [illegible]

Mendes-France went before the National Assembly today to seek confirmation as premier.

The vote—which most political experts predict will reject him—is expected late tonight.

Outlining his program for a new coalition government, Mendes-France:

1—Said he will work for a Big Four meeting with Soviet Russia on world issues.

2—Asserted that France must learn to stand on its own feet and give up dependence on "gifts" from abroad.

3—Urged drastic control of government spending and increased national production.

4—Heaped praise on Great Britain and said close co-operation between France and Britain would enable the two countries to "become a new force for peace."

Turning to Indo-China, Mendes-France said: "Everyone recognizes today that it has become imperative to lighten the burden imposed upon us by the continuance of the Indo-Chinese War.

"One of the tasks of the French representative at Bermuda will be to remind our Allies that the war is a crushing burden upon our shoulders and that it saps the life-blood of our nation.

"Taking account of the general evolution of the events in Asia, he will submit a precise plan with a view to ending this painful conflict."

He said it would be improper for him to divulge his plan now.

Mendes-France would be France's 19th postwar premier if confirmed.

WILLING TO REPEAT WHOLE THING

Canadians Proud to March In Coronation Procession

By ARCH MacKENZIE

LONDON (CP)—Ears ringing with the shouted praise of countless Coronation spectators, Canada's services contingent sloshed back to barracks Tuesday night, willing to repeat the whole thing.

"I'd be willing to walk another five miles tomorrow if it meant getting that kind of greeting again, rain or no rain," said Leading Seaman George Holt of Halifax, summing up reaction of the 750-strong Canadian force.

"We worked hard to get the show ready, but it was worth every minute of it."

To Sgt. George Wilkinson of Montreal the appeal of the Queen to the masses of people was the most significant thing about it.

NOT COLOR

"It wasn't just the color of the procession but the way the whole Commonwealth responded," said the Korea veteran, who will stand guard at Buckingham Palace Friday for Canada.

The guard duty will be the last function of the Coronation contingent before the entire group draws a week's leave.

Tuesday night, their uniforms soaked, they retained the precision that had drawn the all-out admiration of the multitudes in their return to camp at Kensington Gardens and Earls Court in London. A hot supper of roast beef and trimmings awaited them.

Today, they parade to Buckingham Palace to receive Coronation medals.

Twenty-four Canadian service personnel didn't get wet, however.

They were the pilots of the Canadian-built Sabre jets from the RCAF No. 1 fighter wing at North Luffenham, who flew in the 168-plane jet fly-past after the procession.

THROTTLED BACK

Whistling in from the south, the Canadian planes were fourth in the aerial procession, throttled back to keep pace with the slower RAF Meteors and belching black smoke.

From the balcony of Buckingham Palace, the newly-crowned Queen, her husband and children watched the 345-mile-an-hour approach.

Rosenbergs May Produce 'Big News'

Lawyer to Parley With Atom Spies

OSSINING, N.Y. (UP)—Defense counsel Emanuel Bloch goes behind the walls of Sing Sing prison today for a conference with condemned atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg that may produce "some big news."

Bloch, summoned to the prison death house by a telegram from the Rosenbergs, said he would hold a press conference after his visit and he "may have some big news."

Bloch charged Tuesday night that the Rosenbergs had been subjected to "coercive pressure" from federal authorities attempting to induce them to confess and implicate others in the espionage ring of which they were a part.

He said the Rosenbergs, scheduled to die June 18 for giving atomic secrets to Russia, sent him a telegram Tuesday after they had a 45-minute interview with James V. Bennett, federal director of prisons. They told Bloch in the telegram that Bennett came to see them on orders from Attorney General Brownell.

Bennett, they said in the telegram to Bloch, "told us if we want to co-operate with the government, we can do so through him and he will put us in touch with the proper officials."

"We both reasserted our innocence," the Rosenbergs wired, "and said since we are not guilty we cannot tell them anything about espionage. Also that he should tell the attorney general to recommend a commutation of our sentence. We should like to see you to fill in the details."

A justice department spokesman in Washington denied that Bennett's visit had been made at Brownell's direction. The spokesman said Bennett's visit was "routine" and that he had made similar calls in the past.

Sing Sing Warden Wilfred L. Denno said he was present at the interview and heard Bennett tell the Rosenbergs he would help them if they ever wanted to get in touch with federal authorities.

Rush for New Stamps

LONDON (AP)—Hundreds lined up at all-night post offices today for the first sales of special Coronation stamps. Dealers buying stamps by the thousands joined schoolboy collectors in the rush to get the new issues on envelopes and in the mails for the "first day" frankings.

Truce Talks Resume On Note of Optimism

Allied Delegates Feel Communists May Agree to Latest UN Prisoner Proposal

SEOUL, Korea, Thursday (UP)—United Nations and Communist delegates meet at Panmunjom today in a truce session which well-informed sources believe may be decisive.

There was guarded optisims that the Communists may show a disposition to accept UN proposals for the future of Chinese and North Korean prisoners who refuse to go back to their Red-ruled homelands.

The South Korean government still bitterly opposes the UN plan, calling it a surrender to the Communists.

But it is believed the South Koreans will go along, however reluctantly, with any plan which the UN may agree to.

The truce delegates meet at 11 a.m. (10 p.m. EDT) after a 10-day recess during which the Chinese Communist and North Korean governments have had ample time to study the UN plan — and perhaps to consult Moscow.

There is hope among Allied observers that the Communists may accept the UN plan, with modifications or alternative proposals which would be acceptable.

South Koreans were adamant in their objections.

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower promised Tuesday to lead a fight to keep Communist China out of the United Nations even if it jeopardizes chances for a Korean truce.

His pledge was disclosed by GOP leaders after an extraordinary White House conference at which the President persuaded them to abandon legislation which would have cut off U.S. financial aid to the U.N. if Communist China was admitted.

They said the President gave his support to a substitute stating that the United States not only will oppose the admission of Red China to the U.N. but will lead the fight against any such effort.

Sen. Styles Bridges (R., N.H.), one of the most active backers of the discarded U.N. amendment, said "all of the leaders present, together with the president, expressed opposition to the admission of Red China to the U.N. as one provision of a Korean truce, a settlement or for any purpose."

Eden Arrives Friday

BOSTON (UP)—A room has been reserved at New England Baptist Hospital for British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden who arrives here Friday to undergo a third operation.

Dr. Richard B. Cattell, who will operate, returned Monday from London where he consulted Eden's physicians. Eden has had two operations in England for a gall bladder ailment.

Named after the newly crowned Queen of England, she came as a premature surprise when her American parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lunney of Williamsville, N.Y., were visiting the famed Niagara cataract here.

To commemorate the occasion, the Governor-General of Canada will present the baby with a silver spoon.

Indian Chief Stirs Island Holiday Crowd

(Special to The Times)

CAMPBELL RIVER—Impressive and colorful Coronation celebrations here Tuesday featured a ringing address by Chief Billy Assu, of the Cape Mudge Indian Village, and a hymn sung in their native tongue by two members of the Indian Ladies' Association.

A deep hush fell over the crowd at Lane Field when Mrs. John Price and Mrs. John Ferry sang "O God, Our Help in Ages Past" in their own language.

Twelve color parties from Campbell River organizations marched on the field, and the colors were blessed at a service conducted by Rev. M. M. Irwin and Rev. James Brodie.

In addition to the address by Chief Assu, J. W. Baikie and Roderick L. Haig-Brown spoke on the significance of the crown.

Mr. Felker was driving to his cabin during the week-end when his old-model car went over the canyon into the lake.

He Won to Peak

First man to conquer icy Mount Everest, E. P. Hillary, a New Zealand beekeeper, is shown, centre, with a porter and companion. With Tensing Bhutia, a veteran Sherba climber, Hillary planted the Union Jack on the peak of the world's highest mountain. The British expedition, headed by Col. John Hunt, had made two previous unsuccessful attempts to scale the grim 29,000-foot peak, which has claimed the lives of 15 mountain climbers.

Everest Conquerors Reported Descending

Several Weeks Expected Before Detailed Story of Great Climb Will Be Published

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — The intrepid British-led mountain climbers who scaled the world's tallest mountain for the first time last week were reported today on their way down the perilous slopes of towering Mount Everest. It probably will be several weeks before they reach civilization to tell the full story of their triumph.

As the world cheered the news that two of the 15-man team had planted Britain's Union Jack and presumably Nepal's flag also on the icy summit as a Coronation gift to the Queen, the climbers huddled below the peak and celebrated the monarch's crowning Tuesday with a toast to her.

Word that the team led by Col. John Hunt had succeeded in the supreme test of mountaineering was brought by native runners, speeding in relays from Everest's desolate heights.

The message said that Edward Hillary, a New Zealand beekeeper, and the famous guide from Nepal's Sherpa tribe, Tensing Bhutia, had finally reached the icy summit above 29,000 feet on May 29. It was the party's third try.

FIERCE STORMS

The intense cold and fierce storms that swirl around Mt. Everest's slopes had beaten back 10 other expeditions in the 32 years since Tibet's Dalai Lama had granted permission for exploration of the mountain on the Nepal-Tibet border.

Streams of congratulatory messages poured into this Nepalese royal capital for relay to the climbers.

Commenting on reports that the Nepalese government had decided to award a life pension to Tensing, a Nepalese embassy spokesman in New Delhi said there was no confirmation of the report but "it is not unlikely."

U.K. Scoured For Murderer Of Young Girl

Police Grill 1,000 Airmen

LONDON (AP) — Police spread a country-wide net today for a knife-wielding sex slayer who killed one teen-aged girl and possibly a second. They feared he might strike again.

Detectives grilled more than 1,000 United States airmen at nearby Bushey Park camp after the battered body of 16-year-old Barbara Songhurst was pulled from the Thames. The girl had been missing since Sunday, when she went on a date with an 18-year-old friend, Christine Reed.

Police were convinced that Christine was killed, too. Her shoes were found on the river bank near signs of a bloody struggle and her bicycle was dragged from the river. Police said they planned to use navy divers to search the river for her body.

Authorities said the killer mutilated Barbara with a nine-inch dagger as she struggled to fight off his attack. Then he dressed her in a sweater and jeans before throwing her body into the river.

Every policeman in Britain has been warned to look for a missing U.S. airman driving a stolen black sedan. Authorities also are seeking a British airman who knew both girls.

Two Remanded on Break-In Charge

An 18-year-old youth and a man four years his senior elected preliminary hearing when they appeared in city police court today and were charged jointly with breaking and entering a shop with intent to commit theft.

Charged were Thomas Lancaster, 18, of 710 Wilson, and Stanley Christenson, no fixed address.

They are charged with breaking into the Victoria High School Coffee Shop, 1305 Gladstone, during the early morning of June 2.

The pair was remanded to June 9 for the hearing.

PATIENTS QUIT HOSPITAL BEDS TO JOIN IN CORONATION GAIETY

The hospital bed shortage eased in Victoria over the Coronation holiday.

Royal Jubilee Hospital reported today the number of patients dropped from 459 to 374 in the 10 days preceding the Coronation. At St. Joseph's the total dropped by 50.

Hospital authorities point out that the same situation precedes Christmas and other annual holidays. They say it indicates that there is no acute shortage here or people would not elect to stay home during these holidays.

"All in all, I would say Victoria is in a much better state for availability of hospital beds than most other Canadian cities," said Jubilee administrator George Masters.

U.S. Reported Ready to Aid Korea But Wants No New Pact

WASHINGTON (UP) — The United States would be willing to grant South Korea new military aid to strengthen the war-wrecked country against a Communist invasion once a Korean truce is reached, reliable sources revealed today.

This government also would be ready to provide large amounts of economic aid to rebuild Korea's shattered economy, these sources said, but is reluctant to sign any mutual defense treaty between the two countries.

The broad outline of U.S. post-war policy toward the Korean republic was disclosed on the eve of the new armistice talks at Panmunjom. While primary attention was focused here on the Communist reply to the Allied offer, South Korea's opposition to the new truce plan continued to furrow official brows.

Informed sources hoped that the South Korean objections could be overcome. But they left no doubt that if the United States had to face the choice of an armstice or bowing to the Korean complaints, it would take an end to the war.

Army's Former Chief, Gen. H. G. Thacker Dies

Brilliant India-Born Soldier Led Canadians in Two Campaigns

Maj.-Gen. Herbert C. Thacker, CB, CMG, DSO, one-time top man in the Canadian Army, died in Victoria Tuesday at age 82.

Born in Poona, India, he was educated at Upper Canada College, Toronto, and Royal Military College, at Kingston. Trained as a civil engineer he was employed by the Canadian Pacific Railway on the prairies before beginning a long and interesting army career.

He saw action in the Boer War; served as a military attache to the Japanese Army during the Russo-Japanese war, and commanded the Royal Canadian Artillery in General Sir Arthur Currie's First Canadian Division in the First World War.

Following that war, he returned to Canada and was made commanding officer of Military District 6, the Maritimes, with headquarters at Halifax.

RETIRED IN 1929

When he retired in 1929 he was succeeded in that post by then Col. A. G. L. McNaughton.

General Thacker, in addition to his other decorations, held the Order of the Rising Sun, conferred on him by the Japanese emperor for his services in the Russo-Japanese War.

General Thacker had lived on this coast since his retirement and made his home at 2555 Lansdowne Road.

The general was not married.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 at Christ Church Cathedral with Dean P. R. Beattie officiating. Interment will be at Royal Oak Burial Park. Chaplin's Funeral Chapel is in charge of arrangements.

Trade Unions Move to Bind 15 Million

WASHINGTON (UP) — The AFL and CIO started down the long road towards labor unity today after leveling a major barrier that has kept them divided in warring camps for 18 years.

Top officials of the two union organizations, after coming to terms on an impudented "peace pact," turned to the next hurdle blocking a drive to create a single federation with 15,000,000 members—jurisdictional disputes.

Led by presidents George Meany of the AFL and Walter P. Reuther of the CIO, the union officers Tuesday drew up a plan that would halt inter-union raids. They decided the constant AFL-CIO warfare did not pay off.

The pact, which needs approval from conventions of both organizations this fall, would bar an AFL or CIO union from invading an industry or plant where a rival union has organized the workers.

Both Meany and Reuther indicated the plan would be approved by the membership conventions. It would go into effect Jan. 1, 1954, for two years.

Although Great Britain has held possession of the Falkland Islands since 1834, Argentina refuses to renounce her claim of ownership.

The Political Pot

Victoria Returning Officer Alan Macfarlane today urged voters to take their "where-to-vote" cards to the polls on June 9.

Each voter has been sent a card which gives the address of his polling place.

"It will save a lot of confusion if voters take these cards to the polls with them," explained the returning officer. A supervisor at the door of the voting place will then direct the voter to the proper place."

'A Declaration of Our Hopes'

THE WHOLE WORLD WAS ATtentive yesterday as the Queen of a globe-encircling Commonwealth was crowned. While millions lined the processional route in London and an estimated quarter-billion found vicarious participation through radio and television, Queen Elizabeth went faultlessly through the age-old ritual that binds sovereign, peers and commoners in a pact of mutual service and fidelity.

For the many Victorians who tuned in between 2 a.m. and 7 a.m. the radio reception was perfect. Through this agency they came a little closer to their Queen, became in effect a part of the ceremonial procedures that date back to the Saxon kings.

They heard the soft tones of the young monarch declare her promise to the people, the varied voices of the representatives of the church and peerage swear their allegiance. They heard the joyful shout of "God Save the Queen!" from thousands of throats and the peal of the trumpets that proclaimed the second Elizabethan age. They heard the massed millions in London roar proof of their loyalty and affection. Ancient tradition and modern science combined to make this a Coronation such as the world never before has known.

Few who listened could fail to have felt, each in his own way, what Prime Minister St. Laurent later called "our firm pledge of allegiance to the crowned Head of the Commonwealth, Her Majesty the Queen of Canada."

Canadians, like the rest of the Commonwealth, would agree, too, with the Queen's own words, that her Coronation "is not the symbol of a power and a splendor that are gone but a declaration of our hopes for the future. . . ."

Speaking directly to the peoples of the Commonwealth, Her Majesty said: "All of you, near or far, have been united in one purpose. It is hard for me to find words in which to tell you of the strength which this knowledge has given me."

It is hard, too, for her people to find words, except on such occasions as yesterday when they can acclaim their Queen. But the knowledge is there, on both sides, and the strength which [illegible] gives. The years of war, the years of austerity, the years of sacrifice, the years of plenty, the eras of toppling foreign thrones and world upheaval, cannot tarnish the lustre of that acclaim, cannot weaken the glory of that mutual strength.

As one of the radio commentators declared, as the newly-crowned Queen retired from the Abbey: "There was no man in the Commonwealth today who would not swear to be her 'liege man of life and limb' . . . God love her!"

A Queen's Dedication

AT CORONATION ASSEMBLIES throughout British Columbia on Monday the young people of this province were asked to take particular note of those ideals of service to which the sovereign again has dedicated her life.

It is fitting that such should be the theme chosen by the Department of Education for this occasion. And it is particularly appropriate that the minds of young students should be refreshed by a repetition of the words that Her Majesty expressed when she, as princess and heir apparent, observed her 21st birthday.

"I declare," she said, "before you all that my whole life, whether it be long or short, shall be devoted to your service and the service of our great imperial family to which we all belong, but I shall not have strength to carry out this resolution alone unless you join in it with me, as I now invite you to do."

Such was the high purpose to which a young woman pledged herself in all humility and such was the request she made to the people, particularly the younger generation, whom she was destined to rule. Such have been her later self-dedications and invitations to service as the burdens of her exalted office have come to rest more firmly on her shoulders.

This is the queenly virtue which must inspire her generation and those who are younger. This she has chosen as her own measure of worthiness and in its observance she calls upon her people for assistance in the attainment of a greatness beyond wealth and physical might.

It shines the brighter for its dignified humility. And in it rests the sure inspiration of her first Christmas message as Queen:

"Let us set out to build a truer knowledge of ourselves and our fellow men, to work for tolerance and understanding among the nations, and to use the tremendous forces of science and learning for the betterment of man's lot upon this earth. If we can do these three things with courage, with generosity, and with humility, then surely we shall achieve the 'Peace on earth, goodwill toward men' which is . . . the desire of us all . . . I want you all, whatever your religion may be, to pray for me . . . to pray that God may give me wisdom and strength to carry out the solemn promises I shall be making, and that I may faithfully serve Him and you all the days of my life."

It is to these pledges and to these calls that the minds of young British Columbians have been directed during Coronation assembles. And from them should come a response of self-dedication to service, proving the loyalty and affection in which they hold their Queen.

A Pioneer Departs

CITIES OF CANADA'S PACIFIC Coast paid final tribute this week to a pioneer who had seen much of their development and had played an important role in their expansion. They honored the late Christopher Spencer, CBE, as a man of outstanding merchandising ability, as a philanthropist and as a person of wide understanding in human affairs.

As the leading and guiding figure of the Spencer family following his father's death, the Victoria-born businessman had enjoyed a unique career in which his abilities in commerce were matched by the close concern he showed for the thousands of employees who had worked in the Spencer stores.

A wide reader and student of day-to-day affairs, he found time in his later years to organize the benefactions which now bear the Spencer name, aiding the community of Victoria through the foundation he and fellow members of the family established and extending help to the University of British Columbia in scholarship grants.

A distinguished figure left the scene with his death, a figure which, preserving much of an earlier generation's appearances and some of its courtesies, managed to remain young in heart and keen in the affairs of the world and his fellow men.

Well Done, BBC!

NO ONE WHO LISTENED TO the BBC broadcast of Coronation ceremonies Tuesday could fail to be impressed by the superb job of organization produced from Broadcasting House.

This was intelligent radio, a potent link in a day when the Commonwealth concept found expression for millions who could not be in London for the stirring pageant. Here in Victoria, perhaps 7,000 miles from the scene, we felt "a part of the show"; we were taken inside the Abbey, we saw in our mind's eye the colorful procession passing in review, we heard the noble lines of the homage and the service, and we heard our Queen speaking.

All this was executed with dignity and taste, by announcers who surely must have been hand-picked for the assignment.

While it is undoubtedly invidious to single out special favorites in a show which called for hundreds of talents and skills, we must confess to a special leaning toward the young lady who described the Queen's departure from Buckingham Palace; for the commentator who handled the main descriptive passages in the Abbey; and (not on jingoistic grounds alone) for Mr. Ted Briggs of the CBC, who seemed to us to do an admirable job in describing Her Majesty's retirement to her robing room after the Coronation.

It was as if gallant Britain had decided that this was the day to tell her proud story to the world; that this was a day of solemnity as well as rejoicing; and that the tone of the day for millions abroad would be set by the men and women charged with the responsibility of describing the ceremonies.

In all respects the BBC showed us North Americans—Canadians as well as Americans—how radio should be used. We send them out heartfelt thanks and congratulations.

LOOSE ENDS — By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Smoke in the German Sky

RECKLINGHAUSEN, Germany — At the Bahnhof Hotel in this queer German town (proprietor Ernst Koch, manageress a lady of barrel build and uncertain temper, price for four beds, four dinners and four breakfasts $8.70) one of the primal facts of Europe is on display, though you may miss it.

Hutchison

The commercial travelers patronizing the Bahnhof Hotel work right through their meals, which consume about two hours and enough food for a substantial family. Their account books are spread before them as they eat. They add up figures over a sausage and a swelling heap of potatoes. With their beer, they discuss among themselves prices and sales prospects. They are marketing the huge and increasing production of Germany.

RECKLINGHAUSEN, which we reached after a flight from Berlin and a hard drive along Hitler's autobahn, is itself a minor shop window, exhibiting Germany's new goods at prices which must certainly introduce sharp new competition in the world's markets. Around the town stretches the forest of towering chimneys, the jungle of industrial machinery which makes the Ruhr valley the pulsating economic heart of Europe, the great prize of Russian policy.

Probably nowhere else in the world is so much industry concentrated in one place. You may drive for hours and always the horizon on every side will be broken by chimneys higher than any tree and darkened by [illegible]

All of them are smoking and their smoke writes a quiet finis to the brief dream of "pastoralized" Germany as proclaimed by the Morgentheau Plan and approved at Quebec by Franklin Roosevelt and Winston Churchill. When Cordell Hull and Henry Stimson protested to Roosevelt against this absurdity, he replied: "I must have been very tired when I signed it." If he could see the Ruhr today and the people working here he would realize that they can never be suppressed if Europe is to live.

THE industrial heart of a continent is not what one expected, is quite unlike any similar area in America or Britain. The chimneys disfigure the sky, the towers, tanks and endless steel tubes crawl like black monsters across the skyline but they inhabit a garden. Up to the factory fence the land is surging with green growth. Fat cows graze at the edge of the slag heaps. "The miner's cow" has always been not only a slogan but a principle of German politics. Given a cottage a few acres of land and some farm animals, the miner will work. He is working now.

Everybody in Germany is working. The waitress in the Bahnhof Hotel—a blonde girl educated in the English language by some friendly Canadian soldiers—ate her dinner tonight at half past ten and was finished in six minutes by the clock, when she went to work again. In the morning every housewife is washing off the stone steps at the front door and arranging flowers in the window for the pleasure of passers-by. With stolid faces, taking the ruin of their country as an unfortunate but temporary accident, the German people go grimly about their job of building a new Germany richer than Hitlers' Reich.

THEY put first things first. The towns of the Ruhr are devastated by Allied bombs. Hardly a single street is intact. Everywhere mountains of rubble show where a house once stood. It will be many years before these towns are whole again. But a few yards from this carnage the industrial plants are rebuilt and already have made a truncated nation one of the world's largest producers of goods.

No one who has traveled through the Ruhr can doubt Germanys future place in Europe and the world. This field of coal, this teeming apparatus and these people will labor and prosper unless the continent is to decay.

EVEN now the standard of living in Germany strikes the casual observer as remarkably high. The people, at any rate, are eating more and far better food than the people of Britain can afford. No North American stomach can possibly endure the Gargantuan diet of meat, vegetables, butter and cream which seems normal to the Germans. Only coffee is short, it sells for $4.50 a pound and generally is mixed with roasted corn and chicory.

The crime and tragedy of these people is vivid in the mind of anyone who flies out of Berlin in the morning and drives through the Ruhr in the afternoon. The ruin of Berlin, unspeakable in its magnitude, proclaims the crime which has been punished. The revival of the Ruhr reveals the tragedy of a nation which could have contributed so much to the civilization of Europe and, instead, wrecked it in two world wars.

THE road system of itself demonstrates the German engineering genius perverted by Hitler. Beside the autobahn, with its two wide lines of traffic divided by a boulevard of trees, most of America's best highways are mere cowtrails.

No other road crosses the autobahn. It over-rides the thick network of older roads, railways and canals by innumerable bridges. Its normal rate of travel is at least 70 miles an hour and the largest trucks move at 60. Every mile or two a pleasant parking place is provided in shady woodland where the truck drivers rest and the tourists enjoy their picnics. And throughout a hundred miles of Hitler's highways not a blade of grass seems out of place, every farm is tonsured up to the roadside and every house sits among a garden of flowers.

But the autobahn is aimed straight west. It is aimed at the defenseless border of Holland where it carried as was intended, the cargo of Hitler's blitz.

WEDNESDAY CLOSING

The Wednesday half holiday has been in force for many years in Victoria, and seems to have been enjoyed by most merchants and their staffs without working hardships to many.

During this period the tourist business has grown steadily year by year, so nobody can say the Wednesday closing has kept tourists away. Most visitors to Victoria stay more than one day, so have plenty of time to shop if they so desire.

I think it is definitely wrong to judge our tourists by dollars spent. These good people come to our city to get a rest, some relaxation, to see our beautiful gardens and parks and to enjoy fishing, golf, etc. If they choose to spend some money in our stores, well and good, but they will stay longer and spend more if we go out of our way to make them welcome and to see that our city appeals to them in the way they anticipate.

Wednesday could be used to splendid advantage to introduce our visitors to the beauties of our city.

Today all banks, offices, all types of laborers, work a five-day week and none of them would consider a shift system. Why then compel the store clerks to work a shift system which would not allow any group activities.

The store owners have voted repeatedly in favor of our present Wednesday half holiday and their wishes should be respected.

GEORGE ROBINSON.

WHAT THEY MEAN

Mr. Bonner and other candidates say they believe in the theories of Social Credit as expounded in the many thousands and varieties of booklets and pamphlets being distributed in this election.

Do the citizens realize that, taking the Socreds at their word, all prices for goods and services would be fixed by "a government-appointed" three-man commission which would be all powerful? This would mean that everything would be fixed down to the last kilowatt or shoeshine, including all wages.

Such control would not rest in our legislatures but with "the monetary commission." Socreds glibly quote "give me control of the credit of a nation and I care not who makes its laws." How true that would eventually be.

It would simply mean complete regimentation and an army of bureaucrats. Some would say, "Oh that cannot be," and yet how could it be otherwise. You simply could not control the economy as they want to do without going all the way.

Even without federal control Bill 45 is an example of what the Socreds have already done. Its implementation would give them the legal right to tax every garage, machine shop and business, large or small, on its physical assets, also private homes including "home workshops" furniture and everything assessable.

I think Her Majesty's loyal opposition was right in refusing such legislation. What I honestly believe is that our British parliamentary system would be gradually eliminated in the event of Socred federal power. Social Credit is predicated on a single dictatorial control.

My attendance at meetings, questions asked, and, my letters to the papers are prompted solely in an endeavor to get the facts to the people.

CHANGED PARTY

I am like most people, I admire a person and his principles, no matter what his politics are, but when you sift things out in the present day Socred Party what would be your opinion?

We know that if Mr. Bennett had won the leadership of the Conservative Party, there would be no Socreds. He tried twice and was soundly defeated. To top it all, he made Mr. Bonner our present attorney-general. Mr. Bonner opened the campaign for Mrs. Tinsman and Mr. Finkleman, the Conservative candidates in the last provincial election, and also spoke on different occasions on the Conservative platform. He caused a by-election in the Columbia riding, but I notice now, that he has forgotten Columbia, and is running in Point Grey.

This same Mr. Bonner gave the working man just one glass of beer, and his party has torn up the Labor Relations set-up, which always worked so well in the past until the Socreds threw a wrench in the works.

There were 74,553 registered voters in the Vancouver East riding in the last election, but little over 44,000 voted. Do you wonder why we have a minority government?

Working people and all those who are interested in good government, get out and vote to defeat this defying government and fly-by-night party.

DONALD CAMERON.
Past President, Vancouver East Progressive Conservative Organization.

HAVEN'T WE HEARD THIS LATELY?

Why should freedom of speech and freedom of the press be allowed? Why should a government which is doing what it believes to be right allow itself to be criticized? It would not allow opposition by lethal weapons. Ideas are much more fatal things than guns. Why should any man be allowed to buy a printing press and disseminate pernicious opinions calculated to embarrass the government?

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

THE Listener quotes Dr. Magnus Pyke, who quotes Mr. F. S. Bodenheimer, a professor of zoology in Jerusalem. Mr. Bodenheimer, who has written a book on insects as human food, was quoting V. M. Holt, who wrote enthusiastically about such foods in 1885. Only one copy of Holt's book survives, but I don't think this is a sign that the public gobbled it up.

Brock

And now we have old Brocky quoting The Listener quoting Pyke quoting Bodenheimer quoting Holt. (How these things do get around!) Holt had a theory that if cheese-mites are acceptable as part of the cheese, then we should welcome cabbage worms as part of the cabbage. Holt heartily enjoyed worms and grubs and caterpillars for their own sake, too. Wasp grubs, he said, were heavenly food. He was very fond of cauliflower garnished with caterpillars (species unspecified).

Three dishes he included in a long and hair-raising menu were fried soles with woodlouse sauce, boiled mutton with wireworm sauce, and moths on toast. (I'm not making this up.)

I REALIZE that woodlice are extremely closely related to their cousins in the sea. I suppose they are the most marine things outside the ocean. Yet if my imagination can connect them with a fish course, my eye can't. And my stomach won't get a chance to try. As for wireworms with mutton, I fail to see any connection in the light of the cheesemite argument. It would surely be much more suitable to serve various parasites that afflict the sheep . . . I forget their names, but textbooks are crammed with horrid pictures of them, suggesting that sheep have more wild-life inside them than a national park. One of these, I know, is the liver fluke. Many people object to eating liver, but a dish of liver flukes with mutton would be different. And you want your menu to be different, don't you?

AS for moths on toast, that's just silly. Moths don't go with toast. They go with fur and wool and such. How about moths on boiled mittens? Or moths on fried moleskin? Moths on scrambled feathers would be all right, too.

Going back to the old woodlice (otherwise known as sow bugs), I remember that Flaubert once said he meant his heroine Mme. Bovary to be exactly the color of a woodlouse. In this, I feel, she and he were a roaring success. (Ever heard the roar of a woodlouse?) And it occurs to me that anyone who is overfond of Mme. Bovary might easily take to eating woodlice.

I'VE GOT TO SCRAM

TALKING of scrambled dishes, I invented a new sort of scrambled eggs last Sunday, in the course of getting my own breakfast. I dare say anything so simple has been invented a hundred times before, but it was new to me, and very pleasing. Now that the butcher shops are so full of liver sausage, I've been wondering what to do with the stuff. And now I know. You scramble it with eggs, in about equal parts. Mush the liver sausage up, give it a short fry first, then add the beaten eggs and scramble all together. With a pinch of curry powder. A little chopped parsley and chives will help, too.

As Ogden Nash pointed out long ago, sprigs of parsley as a decoration are something worse than a mere annoyance. But I don't think it ever occurred to old Beau Nash that parsley in cookery is something else again. It gives flavor, and a good flavor at that. And provided anti-parsley partisans don't realize what they're eating, they'll love it. Chopped very fine in meatballs, for example, it couldn't offend even Mr. Nash. Trader Vic in one of his books has some very good meatballs he learnt from a little Sicilian named Cornucopia Pete.

MORE of Trader Vic one day soon. But let us have the meatballs right away. He says they depend for their flavor on the parsley . . . that, plus some grated parmesan cheese. There isn't even any garlic in them, though there is some in the sauce, if you're having them with spaghetti. You take one pound of ground beef, quarter pound ground pork, and three eggs, and you mix this up with four slices of bread that you've soaked in water and then squeezed dry. You add quarter cup of parmesan cheese and quarter cup of very finely chopped parsley, and of course salt and pepper. Make into small balls and fry quickly in olive oil. Olive oil really is better for Italian dishes. If you insist on other fats, add a little olive oil anyhow, for a trace of flavor. Vic and Pete don't say that, but Dave does.

SET the meatballs to one side, and in the pan they were fried in you fry a big onion and a clove of garlic, chopped very fine, till lightly browned. Add tomato sauce. If you want more gravy, add a can of Italian mushroom sauce, too. (How about a can of mushroom soup?) Put the meatballs back in the pan and simmer very slowly for about half an hour. In the meantime, of course, getting the spaghetti ready. If your family or guests aren't ready, dump the meat and sauce and spaghetti all together into a big pan with a lid, and keep hot in an oven. Lukewarm spaghetti is murder.

I was reading a German recipe for meatballs the other day. It was something like Pete's, but it included quite a lot of suet. Thank you very much all the same, but I think not.

Certainly Not Secret

Last week Councillor Bate of Saanich made some remarks concerning an Order-in-Council which was passed by the Liberal government about a year ago. The following is an explanation of the circumstances:

This Order-in-Council granted to the civil servants of the province a five per cent increase in salaries in keeping with the increased cost of living. It also provided for the incorporation into salaries of the civil servants the cost-of-living bonuses which had been granted during the inflationary period. This was intended to make the cost-of-living bonus subject to contributions for superannuation purposes.

The total amount of the Order-in-Council was about $2,400,000. Over a period of several weeks the Cabinet had negotiated with the Civil Servants' Association and on the 23rd day of May, 1953, a tentative agreement was reached on the above basis.

At that time the Civil Service Commission prepared a complete statement on the effect and the cost of the agreement and that statement was given full publicity in the press of the province. Two weeks later, when formal approval had been given by the civil servants, the Order-in-Council was passed confirming the arrangement.

In March of this year, when the Legislature was considering its supplementary estimates, Hon. Mr. Gunderson, Minister of Finance in the Social Credit Cabinet, rose in the House and moved, item by item, every increase that was included in that Order-in-Council. His motion was unanimously approved by the Social Credit members and by all other members of the House.

Surely it cannot be said that there was anything wrong with that Order-in-Council, and certainly it was not secret, for complete details were given to the people through the press two weeks before the order was actually passed.

W. T. STRAITH.

'As He Says He Will'

(Mr. Gunderson's decision to seek election in Oak Bay is in sharp contrast to the sentiments attributed to him in the following editorial excerpt, taken from the Penticton Herald, Nov. 26, 1952.)

With Premier Bennett now representing our adjoining constituency and with his most important colleague, Mr. Gunderson, as our own representative, this important part of the province, (Similkameen) under the new government, is emerging from the more or less shadowed backwater stage forced on it for a couple of decades.

It is a happy development. For even if Mr. Gunderson should some day lose the seat, and the Social Credit government go down on any future occasion, it goes without saying that a winner here in any other party has thereby gone far to establish his own claim to cabinet rank; in a constituency of strategic new importance. Similkameen, therefore, will probably enjoy an ascendancy in provincial affairs for some considerable time to come, regardless of political fortunes.

But what is only fair to emphasize at this time is that the riding owes its thanks for this enhanced position to the present government and Mr. Gunderson in the first place. If he chooses to remain here as a contender, as he says he will, he will no doubt win a wider and warmer acceptance in the future, in at least his personal status as a candidate.

Mr. Gunderson's statement that he would do just that — stake his political future on continuing as our candidate here—did much, we feel, to win even further support for him in the later stages of his campaign.

The Herald itself was lukewarm about a by-election involving what at first appeared to be a "pro tem" member only, though admiring Mr. Gunderson's widely-known ability and capacity to fill the important portfolio being given him. Indeed it was in that very recognition of the obvious respect held for him throughout B.C. that there was the understanding feeling that Similkameen must some day see him stand for election elsewhere.

Now, however, with his statement that he intends to continue to offer himself to the voters of Similkameen, there is a new and encouraging perspective to things.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

Boy and a Fish Spear

THE incoming tide lifts the eel grass, straightening its sharp bend near the surface and pulling it into gently waving perpendicular ribbons. Where it lay a mat concealing the bottom when the water was low, it rises now to show the muddy sand. Small fish dart through it and a crab makes its sideways passage.

Stott

This is the tide that brings the young spearsman perched in the bow of his boat, over the spearing ground. His is a patient art, a slow coasting as soft strokes of the spear handle ease the craft forward.

It is a sport for quick eyes, co-ordinated muscles and infinite caution as the boy floats quietly on the clear surface.

Below him, somewhere yet unseen, are the flounders and sole he stalks. At an angle he sees the bottom stirred in quick explosion as the flatfish rises from concealment in the oose, flutters quickly away and again settles, its grey shape little more than a hazy outline from which sand particles drift.

STALKING

The spearsman stalks again, quietly, slowly, bring his boat cautiously over the mark, picking out the shape of the fish below in the shallow relief it forms against the sand. In position, he strikes and the flounder is impaled on his spear, struggling, twisting and stirring the sand-ground into a cloud. The boy thrusts again, setting his tines before bringing the fish up and into his boat.

This is spearing on the rising tide as generations of youngsters have practiced it at the bay. Each year brings its crop of flatfish and each year boys' mark summer's arrival by their spearing quests.

Young Dave knows the techniques of the sport, the steady scrutiny among the weeds and the close survey of open patches studded with cockle shells, floating green seaweed and the slight roughening of burrowing clams.

He has mastered the slow drift of the spearshaft into position, the cautious lowering of the prongs toward the target and the quick jab to pin the fish against the bottom and sink the barbs. There is excitement in him, the sharp lust of the hunter, but through days of spearing he has learned to hide emotion from a watcher's eye.

It is part of the game to appear unimpressed, calm and businesslike. Yet when the catch is big, when the thrust difficult he cannot quite contain the exultation that claims him. Briefly he becomes all boy, making the sounds of boyish triumph, proclaiming his feelings and then quickly mastering them.

FLOUNDERS AND 'DABS'

"A fair flounder," he'll admit when you ask him what he speared. Or if it's sole, "A dab" he'll say, adding sagely that "dabs" are better fish, more flavor to him.

And again he'll be questing, covering the surface quietly, avoiding the splash of paddling and the wrinkling waves of faster travel.

He seems completely absorbed in his spearing, yet there's a quiet wisdom in him. He'll make his haul and keep it reasonable. The summer stretches long before him. There'll be more golden days on which to practice his skill. And this early in the season it's better not to take home too many flounders. A mother grows tired of cooking them if they come in too great numbers. It's wiser to limit the catch, to avoid a glut, so that on following days there'll still be pride in taking home his mess of flatfish, knowing they're welcomed at the table.

Moderation will maintain appreciation for the spearsman at home, and preserve, too, the tableau of the boy crouched with his weapon in the bow of his boat—which is an unending summer theme on the [illegible] bay, something as natural as the Indians who once fished there.

FROM WASHINGTON

By WALTER LIPPMAN

Mr. Taft's Flat Contradiction

SEN. Taft is said to have been astonished at the uproar which his Cincinnati speech set off. That is hard to believe. For if we must suppose that he is astonished, that would in itself be so astonishing that it makes no sense.

Lippmann

Here was Mr. Republican himself saying in a prepared speech, of which the text was circulated for general publication, that "I believe we might as well abandon the idea of working with the United Nations in the East and reserve to ourselves a completely free hand."

This statement is in flat contradiction to the declared policy of the President and of his party and to the legal and moral obligations of the United States, deliberately and explicitly ratified by the full constitutional processes of this government.

There is no way to dismiss Sen. Taft's statement as inconsequential. It is impossible to treat it as irresponsible. For Mr. Taft is a man who has a habit of saying what he means and of meaning what he says.

He is, I believe, profoundly and dangerously wrong. His great error is in a fundamental misunderstanding of the American strategic position in the world today. In proposing to reserve to ourselves a completely free hand in the Far East, he has overlooked the fundamental and controlling fact that American military power in relation to the Soviet Union is situated not in the Far East but in Europe and the Middle East.

The strategical heart of the Soviet Union is still in European Russia, broadly speaking in the region south from Moscow to the Black Sea and the Caspian. This central region of the Soviet state and of Soviet power is inaccessible from the Far East.

Consequently American military power for the purpose of deterring and checking the Soviet power in the world has been organized not in the Far East but on a great European semi-circle from England to North Africa to the Middle East.

Mr. Taft should fix it clearly in his mind that the ability of the United States to exert military pressure on the Soviet Union is dependent upon the active collaboration as fighting allies of Great Britain and France predominantly and of the other NATO powers in varying but important measure. The whole machinery of strategic air power is founded upon the Western Alliance. Without that Western Alliance American strategic air power would be about as useful against Russia as a Cadillac automobile in a trackless jungle.

For the plain and controlling fact is that the effective fighting range of the best planes now being built is so short that we can exert no strategic air power against the Soviet Union unless we can use strong and secure bases within say 1,500 miles of the strategic heart of the Soviet Union. It is impossible to go it alone against the Soviet Union from American territory or, except for pin-prick warfare, from American carriers.

For that reason anyone who breaks up our alliance with the NATO powers will in that very act have knocked out the air force as a military power opposed to the Soviet Union. He will have done the very thing which it is the obvious military objective of the Soviet Union to achieve. It will be quite unnecessary to destroy American planes if the bases from which they fly become unuseable.

If any of this seems strange to Sen. Taft or his fire-eating colleagues, I should like to hear them deny it in the presence of any American airman or civilian connected with the strategic air force.

IN HOLLYWOOD

By BOB THOMAS

Arlen Belies His 52 Years

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Richard Arlen figures he has gone about as far as he can go in the air. He's now playing a general flying jets.

The perennial juvenile has been up in the air since the First World War when he flew with the RAF. After he got into the movies, he appeared with Buddy Rogers, Clara Bow and Gary Cooper. He had a bit part in "Wings," the first great air picture. He has been in 10 or 12 flight films since then and now is playing in "Sabre Jet."

I dropped by the set to get his reflections on aeronautical matters, both the real and the movie kind. I found him trim and youthful in his air force uniform. If anybody has found the fountain of youth, Arlen has. His records show he was born 52 years ago in Charlottesville, Va., but his lineless face can hold its own with today's glamor boys.

"I was crazy about flying as a kid," he recalled. "I was in high school in St. Paul during the First World War, and a bunch of us kids wanted to become fliers. The American air force wouldn't take us because we were only 16. But an RAF recruiter came to town and we joined up.

"We trained in Canada in the old Curtis Jenny. Then we were shipped to England, and we expected to get into combat right away. We didn't know they were just holding us in reserve, in case they ran out of older pilots."

Arlen never saw action in that war, but he saw plenty for old Paramount in "Wings." He almost lost his life four times in scrapes.

"That was in 1927, before we had any process shots," he remarked. "All the air shots had to be taken in the air. Buddy Rogers and I had cameras strapped on the front of our planes. When we got up in the air, we'd press a button and the cameras would roll. We had two mirrors in the cockpit so we could line up a plane behind us in the camera range."

International Press Card for Traveling Newsmen Proposed

VIENNA (AP)—The executive committee of the International Federation of Journalists, a trade union organization, today recommended the issuance of an international press card for travelling newspaper men.

Harry Martin of the United States, vice-president of the federation, said that the proposal will be submitted to a full-scale meeting of the federation when it meets at Bordeaux, France, next spring.

The card, made out in four languages and valid for two years, would be issued by the journalist trade unions in 19 western countries and be a certification that the bearer is a "bona fide journalist."

He said the committee hoped that it would be recognized by governments and organizations and "facilitate the issuance of visas."

Tory Says Socreds Themselves to Blame for Defeat

COURTENAY — Nugent Spinks, Progressive Conservative standard bearer and one of five contenders for honors in Comox riding June 9, blamed the Social Credit government for its defeat.

He spoke Monday night at Lewis Park in company with all other candidates.

"We are connected with the Labor Progressive Party and would stand behind Ottawa," he said.

Prairie Provinces Hit By Rain, Thunderstorms

WINNIPEG (CP) — Heavy rain-showers and thunderstorms have drenched the Prairies during the last 24 hours.

A precipitation report issued by the meteorological division of the department of transport at Winnipeg up to 7.30 a.m., CDT, showed that Brandon was hardest hit with four inches, believed to be a record. Some basement flooding was reported in low-lying areas.

Northern areas in all three provinces generally escaped the deluge. The rain now is moving eastward into northwestern Ontario.

Rivers, about 20 miles northwest of Brandon, registered 2.16 inches. Other Manitoba points, especially towards the eastern section of the province, got smaller amounts, with Winnipeg reporting .86 inches.

Large amounts also fell in southern Saskatchewan. Broadview in the eastern area, recorded 3.58 inches, second highest on the Prairies; Moose Jaw, 2.16; Regina, 1.01. Medicine Hat, with 2.18 inches, and Lethbridge, 1.96, were hardest hit in Alberta. Calgary received .99 inches and Edmonton .15.

Heavy lightning and a continuous rainstorm caused a power failure over a wide area.

By Boat and Trail Remote Residents Rally for Holiday

PORT HARDY—More than 300 people traveled Saturday over bumpy roads, and by boat from nearby islands, to attend a special Coronation show in Port Hardy airport recreation hall, given by Jerry Gosley's Smile Show of Victoria.

"We had the best reception since playing to Commonwealth troops in Korea," according to Mr. Gosley.

In the troupe that made the three-day flying visit were Irene Henderson, Al Denoni, and Reg. Stofer. They visited a logging camp, and were taken to the Indian village of Fort Rupert.

Local residents contributing to the celebration were A. deC. Denny, Byron Fiedler, Mrs. B. D. Connor, Scott Decker, Robert Young, Sydney Johnson, B. Cadwallader, Maurice Clark, Mrs. H. Perkins, Maurice France, and Miss Carey Clayton.

Welcome Shriners!

Woodward's welcome you to Victoria and wish you every success in the celebrating of your Golden Anniversary.

Excerps from "A SHRINER'S REWARD"
By WILLIAM E. MITCHELL

I'm often asked the question
What do Shriners ever do,
But hold their ceremonials,
And to their conventions go?

Then I ask them just to listen,
As I tell them kind and mild,
That a Shriner's one greatest joy
Is helping some crippled child.

We never ask the parents,
As we make their children fit,
If they cast their vote our way,
Or in just what church they sit.

A Shriner is paid all ways,
If he helps one child a mile,
No better pay can he receive,
Than to see that youngster smile.

Their fez is but a symbol,
Of the things for which they stand,
As they strive with every effort,
For a free united land.

ELIZABETH the Queen

By Marion Crawford
Former Governess to Her Majesty

DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE

The intimate biography of Queen Elizabeth, written by her good friend and former governess Marion Crawford, appears exclusively in the Victoria Daily Times in 28 chapters. Out of her 11 years of close association with the royal family "Crawfie" has previously published "The Little Princess" and "Mother and Queen: The Story of Queen Mary."

XXVI

And so we come to that fateful last day of January, 1952, when the King stood at London Airport waving his daughter good-by as she and the Duke of Edinburgh set off on their flight to Africa and the Commonwealth tour they were undertaking in his place.

For 40 minutes the King stood bareheaded in a biting wintry wind, and after he had waved what was to be his last goodby to his daughter, he followed her plane with his eyes until it was no more than a faint speck in a grey sky.

Who knows what feelings were in his heart when at last he turned away—and what were the feelings in the heart of his daughter as she sped across the world on her Royal mission?

Twice within six months Princess Elizabeth had been called upon to endure parting from her father after a grievous operation, for which the nation's prayers were asked, when all her instincts as a daughter must have cried out to stay by his side.

FINAL FAREWELL

This time, Princess Elizabeth was never to see her father alive again.

All over the world newspapers carried stories of the progress of the Atalanta, Princess Elizabeth's airplane, and her safe arrival in Africa, where she was met by 400 African chiefs resplendent in plumed headdresses and leopard skins.

The hearts of millions of ordinary men and women going about their humdrum tasks were daily warmed by the happy, carefree pictures of the Royal couple in their informal moments in the first few days of their great tour.

Pictures of the Princess with her camera eagerly "shooting" lion, stalking through the jungle while a nearby guard moved with his rifle at the alert; pictures of her and the Duke of Edinburgh in the Royal Lodge—the wedding gift of the people of Kenya — joyous, unworried pictures we all loved to see; pictures, like those of any young married couple, of the Princess and her husband enjoying the peace and beauty of their home.

But the sands of time were ebbing fast . . .

AT BIRTHPLACE

In Britain, King George was at his beloved Sandringham, scene of his birth, living a country life. The Queen and Princess Margaret were with him. Daily he enjoyed one of his favorite sports, shooting with a few chosen friends from among his neighbors.

Tuesday, Feb. 5, was a particularly lovely crisp winter's day in Norfolk, and the King enjoyed one of his best day's sport. That evening he made arrangements for the next day, and before she said good-night to him Princess Margaret suggested that he might like to make an early start in the morning.

The King went to bed and his valet brought him his usual nightcap, a cup of hot chocolate. The King wished him good-night in a cheerful voice and settled to read a book.

Across the world, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh were spending the night in the picturesque Treetops, a four-room hotel some distance from their Royal Lodge, which is built in a giant fir tree overlooking a water hole so that its visitors may observe animals by night.

MANY ELEPHANTS

The Princess arrived wearing a bush shirt and brown slacks, and was afforded a magnificent spectacle of the big game of Kenya. When she arrived at the beginning of the forest trail she heard that no less than 40 elephants were gathered around Treetops. And later when she arrived at her "hotel" she was asked to climb the ladder slowly so as not to disturb one elephant which was by a pool only 10 yards away. Thirty-five elephants and 11 calves appeared while the Royal party were having tea, and after dusk eight rhinos were spotted.

It was around midnight when the Princess retired.

After breakfast next day she delayed her return to the Royal Lodge for an hour, enjoying the first sunlit moments of the African morning, amusedly watching the antics of a family of baboons which had climbed to the Treetops windows and were grabbing slices of sweet potato laid on the sills. Then she and the Duke set off for the Royal Lodge, unaware of the terrible news which awaited them.

On that morning of Feb. 6 there was silence in the King's bedroom at Sandringham. His valet, entering with his usual cup of tea, could not rouse him. Beside his bed, its bookmarker set, lay the book the King had been reading when he fell asleep some time before midnight.

At 10.45 a.m. the news of his death was announced.

And in one of his most moving broadcasts, Mr. Churchill revealed that the King had known that from day to day his life hung by a thread:

"The King walked with death as if death were a companion, an acquaintance whom he recognized and did not fear.

"In the end death came as a friend, and, after a happy day of sunshine and sport, after 'Good-night' to those who had loved him best, he fell asleep as every man or woman who strives to fear God and nothing else may hope to do."

RCAF 'COPTER AIDS MAYOR IN DILEMMA

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) —The Coronation posed problems even as far away as this far-north community Tuesday.

This was Mayor H. G. Armstrong's dilemma: He had a southbound reservation on Pan American Airways at 12.15 p.m., but he was participating in local Coronation ceremonies at the ball park until noon.

The RCAF stepped in to solve the mayor's personal crisis.

Wing Cmdr. C. Olsen landed an RCAF helicopter at the ball park promptly at noon, picked up the mayor — bag and baggage and whisked him to the airport on the plateau above the town where he caught the waiting airliner.

NIEBUELL, Germany (AP) — Dr. Boetius Hansen failed to collect his gold pin for driving 53 years without an accident. His car collided with a police vehicle en route to the ceremony.

Irish Patriot In Toronto Lowers Flag

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Martin, a defiant Irishman who gave Toronto hydro officials a jolt by hanging a Coronation Day flag on a line between his home and a hydro pole, lowered it reverently at sundown Tuesday night.

He never did need a gun to keep the Union Jack flying.

Martin was ordered by the city hydro on Monday to remove the flag from the hydro line. The 78-year-old native of Belfast said it was going to stay up where it was until the Coronation was over. He said he would back his intentions with a rifle if necessary.

"I was born under the British flag and I'll die under it," he added. "There's not enough of this sort of thing these days."

Martin said today:

"It came down at sundown. I even heard from Education Minister Dunlop about it. He's in favor of keeping the old flag flying—but not necessarily from a hydro pole."

WOMEN'S GARTERS WORRY PAGE

11-Year-Old Talbot Carries Wand, Drops Sword, Sees Queen

This is an account of the Coronation by 11-year-old John Talbot, a page to his cousin, the Earl of Shrewsbury. He walked in the procession into Westminster Abbey and saw the Queen crowned.

By JOHN TALBOT

LONDON (Reuters)—It was a wonderful day. I saw Queen Elizabeth crowned in Westminster Abbey and I walked with princes and sultans from many lands. I shall never forget it.

At 5 a.m. I was dressed in my page's uniform. I had to wear my aunt's cotton stockings under my white hose to make them grip my garters.

They were a woman's ordinary garters, and I don't know what the boys at my school would say if they knew I had to wear them.

I had white breeches with white buttons and a gold and white waistcoat and a claret-colored coat.

Claret is the color of my family.

We went into the abbey annex and I saw all the princes and sultans arriving and Sir Winston Churchill was there. He went off to greet the Queen and when he came back he said, "I had to have a private look."

I saw the Earl Marshal walking about. At one rehearsal he told all the pages that he wished he was our headmaster and he would beat us all.

SORT OF STICK

At last the Queen arrived at the abbey with the Duke of Edinburgh. She went to put on her robes and I thought she was taking rather a long time. Then she came out and the ladies-in-waiting picked up her train.

We went in before her and took up our positions in the south transept. The earl sat at the bottom and I gave him his coronet and he gave me a white wand of iron which is a sort of a stick.

There were hundreds of people in the abbey, but I didn't see much of them as I had to go and sit on the steps at the top of the transept. My clothes were very tight.

I saw the archbishop raise the crown in his hands and put it down on the Queen's head. She looked very lovely. I saw the homage and when the Duke of Kent went up, the microphone bust and I could not hear a word he said.

The peeresses' coronets were terribly funny. They were so tiny compared with those of the peers. The Countess of Shrewsbury had to use elastic to keep hers on.

After it was all over we walked in procession out of the abbey and the crowd cheered, but I was jolly hungry. We went to the House of Lords and I had a meat roll, a biscuit with a piece of chicken on top and egg.

The most awful moment of the day was when I was coming out of the annex and my sword fell with a clatter on the floor.

I go back to school on Thursday. I'm not looking forward to it, but I'll have plenty to tell the boys.

The skeleton of the oldest known horse is estimated to be 45,000,000 years old. Found in Wyoming, the fossil stands 11 inches high.

Crowd of 6,000 Enjoys Coronation Day Regatta at Willows

Willows Beach resembled ant hill Tuesday afternoon as crowd estimated at 6,000 racing fans enjoyed first Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association race meet of 1953 season. Excellent weather, perfect water, and good arrangements by club officials combined to make Coronation Day meet one of best seen by local spectators in several years. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Speed Boat Thrills Draw Crowd of 6,000

A crowd of 6,000 swarmed over Willows Beach from one end to the other Coronation day to watch a team of Vancouver drivers take top honors in the Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association's first meet of the year.

Star performer, as usual, was Teaser III, holder of the Canadian measured mile speed record for 135 cubic inch hydroplanes.

Formerly owned by Jimmy Hutchison of Vancouver, she is now owned by Pete Hildebrand of the mainland city, and was driven Coronation day by Bob Henry, a midget auto racing driver who is taking to the water for the first time.

He had no trouble handling his little ship at speeds up to 80 miles per hour, and his tremendous acceleration and tighter turning ability helped him to win both heats in his class.

Running him a close second was Charlie Kobus in his new Mercury VII, a 266-inch hydroplane that had had only 10 minutes of running time before it took to the water at the Willows. Although racing out of his class, his high straightaway speed was limited by the short course, and by interference from spectator boats that were a constant hazard to him as he swung his powerful racer wide on the turns.

Victoria's steadiest entry, Yehudy, driven by Brock Robertson, capitalized on the pole position and short course for the first few laps in each heat until the superior speed of the others forced him back to third and fourth place.

Harold Wagstaff of Vancouver won the Times Shield posted for a marathon race around Jimmy Chicken Island, Fiddle Reef, and the oval course at the beach. He also dominated all other outboard races, losing only once to Fred Graham of Victoria, owner and driver of Suzy-Q.

Ben Berto of Vancouver was easily the top man in the runabout division, although he was headed off in one event by Ken Cameron in Hot Canary.

Pat Cooper in It'll Do was able to win the Class B utility race, a class unique in Victoria but understood to be arousing interest in racing circles farther afield.

Only flipflop of the day was performed by Ron Wallbank of Victoria, who rolled his 135-inch Turmoil while starting the last lap of his first heat.

Poor racing luck gave Bob Watson's Knee-Hi a cracked head, and burned out ignition wires on Miss Fire.

Pole boat starts, in which one entry paces all others to the starting line, were used in all races. Easier for inexperienced drivers, they also give the fans the thrill of watching all entries cross the starting line on even terms.

Officials were Howie Goodall, starter; Charlie Green, pit boss; George Davis, announcer; and Tim Estlin, timer.

Race chairman, who kept the whole event running tightly to schedule, was Bill Stephenson.

Results in order of events follow:

Outboard marathon for Times Shield: Harold Wagstaff, Bert Milen, Alf Whiting.

Class B inboard: It'll Do, Pat Cooper; Witch's Taxi, Harry Adams; Mugwump, Phil Wilkinson.

135 hydroplane, first heat: Teaser III, Bob Henry; Mercury VII, Charlie Kobus; Yehudy, Brock Robertson.

Stock runabouts: Hot Canary, Ken Cameron; Thunderbird, Ben Berto.

Outboard open, first heat: Fred Graham, Bert Milen, Harold Wagstaff.

135 hydroplane, second heat: Teaser III, Mercury VII, Miss Fire.

Racing runabouts: Thunderbird, It'll Do, Witch's Taxi.

Outboard open, second heat: Harold Wagstaff, Fred Graham, Bert Milen.

CAPTURED

BORGER, Tex. (UP) — John Sellers, 50, a grocer, awoke to see a man armed with a slingshot crawling across the room. He hit the burglar with a pillow and chased him into the arms of a policeman.

At the same time Sellers' wife and two teen-aged daughters caught the burglar's accomplice. He was carrying stones for the slingshot.

Mainland Boat Wins Times Shield

Harold Wagstaff, representing Vancouver's Outboard Motor Club, squelched all opposition by driving his sleek outboard runabout to victory in the outboard marathon at Willows Beach Coronation Day. He was awarded Victoria Daily Times shield for defeating large field over long course around Jimmy Chicken Island and Fiddle Reef. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

U.S. Network Rivals Scuffle Over Films

Incident at Goose Bay Marks Frantic Desire to Speed Relay of TV Pictures

GOOSE BAY, Labrador (BUP)—Two rival American network representatives fought on the ground and two fighter planes nearly collided in the air Tuesday in the frantic relay of television Coronation films at this Canadian-U.S. air base.

A National Broadcasting Company liaison man and an airlines official representing the Columbia Broadcasting System engaged in a hassel as boxes of films were unloaded from the first of three Canberra jet bombers to streak across the North Atlantic from London.

A RCAF wing commander finally had to step in and mediate the dispute. Each network representative was eager to be the first to get his fighter plane off for Boston with the first film for American audiences.

One of the American fighter planes, Second World War Mustang, took off without clearance from the tower, and for several nervous seconds it appeared from the ground that it would collide with a Canadian CF-100 which had taken off for Montreal with CBC film aboard. It was a near mill.

The first Canberra from England arrived here without mishap, but the second, piloted by Flt.-Lt. F. Garside of Glossop, England, with Flt.-Lt. Norman Metcalfe of London as navigator, had to turn back after 200 miles because of a defective radio compass.

They transferred their film to a new Canberra, which had to make a refuelling stop at Aldergrove, Northern Ireland. It flew here from Aldergrove in four and a half hours. The third Canberra landed at Goose Bay 20 minutes later flying nonstop from London in five hours and 15 minutes, averaging about 455 miles an hour. The crewmen were Flt.-Lt. Steve Gulyas, Dunnville, Ont., pilot, and Flt.-Lt. Ross Heller, Newbury, Eng., navigator.

Gulyas, an RCAF officer training with the RAF said the three Canberra crews flipped coins to determine the order of their takeoffs.

The Canberras encountered headwinds of up to 90 miles an hour on their Atlantic crossings. They flew at altitudes ranging from 42,000 to 46,000 feet.

Bunker Hill was one of the most famous battles of American history, yet British dead totaled only 226 and only 145 Americans lost their livse.

Braves Regain Lead

Wholesale Changes Occur in Majors

What a difference a day makes—at least in the standings of the National League.

Starting from the top where Milwaukee Braves brought an abrupt end to Brooklyn's 48-hour reign of glory, six clubs found their positions changed today from what they were on Monday.

The Braves were back in first place by half a game, Brooklyn slipped to second. Third place belonged to Philadelphia instead of St. Louis. At the other end Pittsburg was out of the cellar and Chicago was in it.

Milwaukee went into the ninth inning at Ebbets Field trailing by one run and pulled out a 4-3 victory on a two-run homer by Andy Pafko.

The drive by Pafko, all the more humiliating to the Dodgers since he was on their payroll until early this year, snapped a 10-game Brooklyn winning streak, the longest in either league.

PHILS GAIN

The Phillies traded places with the Cardinals as Robin Roberts blanked the Red Birds on seven hits for his eighth victory, 5-0. New York Giants and Cincinnati played the longest National League game of season—13 innings with Redlegs scoring twice in the 13th for a Chicago 4-3 in 11 innings.

The National League had no monopoly on the marathon contests. In Detroit the Tigers and Philadelphia Athletics battled four hours and 28 minutes through 14 innings to a 7-7 tie. The game, which will have to be replayed from the start, was called because of the league curfew which prohibits the start of any inning after 12.50 a.m. local time.

YANKS WIN

Joe Collins' ninth-inning homer, his second of the night, gave New York Yankees a 4-3 margin over Chicago White Sox. Cleveland kept pace with the Yankees by defeating Boston 7-3 and St. Louis outlasted Washington, 5-3.

Jim Wilson and Lew Burdette combined to limit Brooklyn to five hits with Burdette, who came on in the eighth, picking up the victory, his third without a loss. Russ Meyer went all the way for Brooklyn.

Satchel Paige, the ancient wonder of St. Louis Browns, finally won his first game of the 1953 season. Satch took over in the sixth inning against Washington and retired 10 men in a row. He has been charged with two losses.

Broncs Keep Rolling; Caps Protest Game

Lewiston Broncs, coasting along two and one-half games ahead of the pack in the Western International League, breezed to their 23rd win of the season Tuesday night, dumping Calgary, 5-1.

Manager Bill Brenner was the big gun in the Lewiston attack as he swatted out a two-run homer and limited the Stampeders to eight hits in posting his seventh win in eight starts this season.

In other games, Tri-City humbled Vancouver 7-4, Wenatchee outlasted Spokane 9-7 and Edmonton won a tight one over Yakima, 2-1.

The Tri-City win over Vancouver's Capilanos was protested by Cap manager Harvey Storey, who complained that manager Edo Vanni of the Braves failed to leave the dugout after he had been ordered from the field in the fifth. Vanni got the thumb for protesting a called strike on Des Charouhas. Braves cinched the win with two runs in the first and three in the third.

SOCCER TOUR

NEW YORK (AP)—The soccer team of the Young boys of Bern, champions of Switzerland, arrived at Idlewil airport Tuesday for a six-game tour in the United States and Canada.

Jumpin' Joe Stops Irish Drive

Joe Travis made his name famous in soccer circles for the shutout he scored against Fulham two years ago in an exhibition international soccer game here. But Joe, great as he was, could not stop the attacking game of the Irish International All-Stars Tuesday as the Irish scored a 5-1 win over the Victoria All-Stars. Here Travis goes high in the air for one of the many great saves he made during his busy afternoon. Coming in at the right is left wing Norm Lockhart of the Irish. Referee Ed Ball is in background. BEST FILLY IN NORTH AMERICA

If Arcaro Says So, Canadiana Must Be

TORONTO (CP)—"I'll take Canadiana above any filly in North America," was jockey Eddie Arcaro's salute to Canada's queen of thoroughbreds. From a guy like Arcaro, that's the best any horse can expect.

This tribute was paid on Coronation Day shortly after the sleek bay filly breezed to a 5½-length victory in the 94th running of the $20,000-added Queen's Plate against 18 of the country's best three-year-olds.

The nine-furlong route was just another ride for Arcaro, who has either ridden or seen the best horses on the continent in his 21-year career. He hunched up on Canadiana's back and let her go the distance in a manner that justified her 3-to-5 odds for the Queen's 50 guineas.

At the finish, Blue Scooter, from the Jack McIntyre Stable of Toronto, followed her across the line. The Scooter was second favorite at 7 to 1.

Lively Action, an entry with Canadiana, finished third, a neck ahead of the 70-to-1 Belflares.

Canadiana's time was 1.52.1, just one-fifth second off the record set by Last Mark in the 1948 plate, and there wasn't one of the 26,000 crowd who figured the little lady couldn't have shattered that time. The others didn't make a race of it for her.

Canadiana paid $3.20, $2.70 and $4.20. Blue Scooter returned $5.20 and $5.30 and Lively Action $4.20. The mutuels handle on the race was $149,655 and the bettors wagered nearly half that amount on the Taylor entry.

The crowd gave Arcaro and Canadiana a polite ovation as they went into the winner's enclosure after the race. Taylor was there to receive his third cup in four years—he won with Epic in 1949, Major Factor in 1951—and $20,570.

STAMPS GET ALBERT; PRICE BELIEVED HIGH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Frankie Albert came out of football retirement Tuesday night to sign with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Terms were not announced. But the former San Francisco '49-er quarterback said Calgary "paid me considerably more than I ever received with the '49-ers" of the pro National Football League. That was estimated at $22,500 in 1950.

Calgary's general manager, Bob Robinett, also declined to discuss the terms.

Cooper Again Lowers Stock Car Track Mark

Shorty Templeman of Seattle, who has been dirt track midget car champion driver in the United States for the last five years, put in an unexpected but welcome appearance at Shearing's Speedway on Tuesday night and took part in the Coronation Day racing competition.

Templeman, also president of the midget car association in the U.S., flew in from Seattle and drove Bruce Passmore's No. 48 stocker in the only scheduled stock car event of the evening. He was declared the winner over Dave Cooper after driving the final two and one-half laps on a flat tire.

A dispute over the finish of the race resulted in an eight-lap match event between Cooper and Templeman, with Cooper taking the honors.

Cooper, the flying plumber, had a big night. He won the 20-lap main for big cars and lowered his own stock car one-lap record for the third successive week. He originally set the mark of 18.65 seconds three weeks ago and last week lowered the standard to 18.32. Tuesday he timed in during trails at 18.02.

Ed Kostenuk in the No. 75 car was second in the big car main and Shorty Scovell of Portland, third. Scovell's driving was excellent and had he had a faster car would undoubtedly have shown much better.

Claude Walling, another racer from south of the border, broke an axle in the first heat race and was forced to remain idle for the remainder of the program.

Templeman reportedly was discussing the possibility of midget cars putting in an appearance here in the future.

Results follow:

Helmet dash—1, Jack Spaulding; 2, Bob Simpson; 3, Kostenuk.
First heat race—1, Spaulding; 2, Scovel; 3, Kostenuk.
Second heat race—1, Kostenuk; 2, Cooper; 3, Scovel.
Third heat race—1, Simpson; 2, Corky Thomas; 3, Scovel.

STRATEGY LOST IN SECOND HALF

By HALFBACK

Irish Sabotage Local Plan

Victoria's preconceived attacking game against Ireland at Athletic Park Tuesday, after fully justifying itself in the first half was apparently sabotaged after the change of ends.

Although the Irish team held a comfortable 3-1 margin at the interval, I think they will be the first to admit that they had been in a battle.

The Victoria team are to be congratulated on a splendid display, especially in the first half, and a special mention must be made of goalkeeper Joe Travis' efforts to keep the score down, even though he was beaten five times during the game.

Pre-game press notices announcing the speed of the youthful Irish team were apparently well founded and their forays on goal at times attained avalanche proportions.

Favoring a short-passing game practically throughout the contest, they were never afraid to swing the ball to their opposite wings when the least expected. It was this type of play that seemed to baffle and tire the local team.

This tiring finally led to the collapse of the All-Stars as an attacking unit, for it must be noted that goalkeeper Uprichard had to make only three easy saves in the second half.

The Irish wingers, Lockhart and Scott, especially the latter, a youngster of 19, gave the local defense a gruelling time with their fine runs and precision crosses, which were taken full advantage of by a fine and foraging leader in the person of Hughes.

It is obvious that as the tour progresses this Irish aggregation will blend themselves into a dangerous combination worthy of international competition.

One could not hope for a molding of a Tottenham Hotspur, as was witnessed last year, in so short a time, but undoubtedly the selectors of the Northern Ireland Football Association are looking to the future in their quest for a winner in the annual international competition.

With players like eye-catching left-back Alf McMichael, a stumbling block for any team, and Ray Ferris, an astute schemer with limitless energy, Ulster can be proud of the progress made over the past few years.

Most soccer fans in Victoria who attended Tuesday's match will admit, however, that the visitors did lack the finesse of some of the glamor teams who visited here earlier. But the Irish did provide excellent entertainment, and will undoubtedly show promise of acquiring a reputation to be remembered.

Enigmatic Irish Whip Tired Local Reps 5-1

3,000 Fans See Visitors In Coronation Day Game

Ireland 5, Victoria 1

By BILL WALKER

Strong on method and design, weak in effect, but nevertheless a side truly representative of association football as played in the British Isles, the touring Irish international team Tuesday took full advantage of a tiring Victoria All-Star team to score a decisive 5-1 triumph.

Some 3,000 Victoria fans, obviously spoiled by the fine team performance of Tottenham Hotspur last year, viewed the Coronation Day feature and left with mixed reactions.

On the one hand was the fine individual play of the visitors, especially right-winger Jackie Scott who, at 19 years of age appears to have a great future ahead of him with Manchester United.

On the other was the lack of of a cohesive attacking unit for the Irish, who, though dominating play as expected, seemed to leave something to be desired.

Naturally, this too was partly to be expected, but for the first half Victoria played on fairly even terms with the Irish, resulting in Ireland's 3-1 lead at the interval.

It was a mediocre performance to start the second half with the Irish always pressing, but not dangerously, and the All-Stars holding, though appearing to wilt, which later they were to do.

Few chances came the All-Stars' way in the final 45 minutes, the Irish being dominant in centre field, but weak in front of the goal despite the fact they scored two goals.

The All-Stars faltered perceptibly in the second half after a commendable first half, their attack malfunctioning to an increasing degree. The over-all defense was also slow in covering, goalie Joe Travis, who could not be faulted for the final result, being particularly efficient.

Individual Stars Shone Brightly

Any one of several stars continually dazzled the All-Stars and also the public with his fine footwork and playmaking, perhaps the outstanding of the Irish side was fullback Alf McMichael (Newcastle United) a tower of strength both on defense and attack.

For the All-Stars the choice would have to rest between fullback Bill Hope, who made few mistakes, and the Travis brothers, Joe, in goal, and Ab, on left wing, the latter admittedly having few opportunities in the second half.

Also, though inconspicuous by his steady but unspectacular style, centre half John Weldon could be said to have had few detracting from his defensive performance. On attack it was different matter.

Slightly less than three minutes later, Ab Travis caught the Irish by surprise, saving a ball from the touch line to pass to centre-forward Harry Carruthers who headed past goalie Norm Uprichard and tied the score.

Probably the most neatly executed goal of the match came at the 20-minute mark, centre-forward Sam Hughes (Glentoran) slipping the ball by Joe Travis on a double relay from halfback Frank McCourt (Manchester City) and Scott to give the Irish a 2-1 lead.

Sons of Erin Add to Margin

Joe Robbins saved off the line from McCourt and Eddie Crossan headed against the post in other close Irish sorties before Lockhart fired a sizzler past Travis from 20 yards following a free kick at midfield to leave the Irish with their 3-1 margin at halftime.

All-Stars held well in the opening minutes of the second half as the Irish attack stagnated on the 18-yard line and it wasn't until the 27-minute period that the visitors could again press home their advantage. Put through by Scott, Ray Ferris (Birmingham) neatly tapped the ball by Travis who was completely at the mercy of the Irish inside.

Hughes, after hitting the post on a previous attempt, scored the fifth Irish goal at 40 minutes, and later was to hit the post again.

The Irish team will play in Vancouver, Saturday, before beginning their homeward trek across the Dominion.

Especially interesting was the half-time display by youthful products of the city soccer school. The nippers pleased the large throng and a bouquet is due those who spend freely of their time and talents to further the game in this manner.

Line-ups follow:

Ireland—Uprichard; Graham, McMichael; Blanchflower, McCabe, McCourt; Scott, Crossan, Hughes, Ferris, Lockhart, Spurr—Bowler.

Victoria—Joe Travis; Bill Hope, Joe Robbins; John Pickburn, John Weldon, Harold Holroyd; Ray Wilkinson, Denny McGee, Harry Carrothers, Bob Allen, Ab Travis. Spares—Stan Wiseman, George Wright, Allan Wright.

Referee: Ed Ball. Linesmen: M. Speller and D. Heinekey.

SENATORS NOW SECOND

Tyees Reflect Short Rations

Salem 14, Victoria 7

The Victoria Tyee pitching staff, like the rest of the team, operating on half rations this month, lacked the wherewithall to stop the fast-rising Salem Senators Tuesday night.

The Tyees, who to a man temporarily waived half their pay checks for May to help the club navigate its current financial straits, were only poor relatives to the Senators who clubbed out a 14-7 victory and vaulted into second place, two and one half games behind Lewiston Broncs.

Orlando Parez rapped three of Salem's 17 hits and batted in four runs to do most of the damage to four Tyee pitchers.

Zeb Walker started on the hill and left under fire in the third in favor of Don Hopp who failed to last the inning. He gave way to Bob Drilling and Berlyn Hodges came on in the fifth to finish up.

Tyees took a 2-0 first inning lead when a walk and an error, sandwiched around a single by Bob Moniz and Chuck Abernathy's double, plated a pair of runs.

ROOF FELL IN

After Salem got one back in their half of the first, Tyees picked up two more in the third on three walks, a hit batter and Cec Garriott's double. However, Salem blew the game wide open with five runs in each of the third and fifth frames.

Senior Ball Resumes Tonight

Action in the Senior Amateur Baseball League is scheduled to reopen tonight when winless Orphans take the field against Eagles at Royal Athletic Park at 6.30.

Orphans are firmly entrenched in the league cellar, having lost four straight games, and will be out to attempt to break their slump.

Eagles, currently holding down second place, with two wins and a like number of losses, will be trying to increase their lead over third place Page the Cleaner (1-3) and close the gap on league leading Farmer Construction, unbeaten in six games.

Gasmen Edge Sailors, Tighten League Race

CAPITAL CITY 5, NAVY 3

Capital City Gasmen spotted Navy three runs in the first inning Tuesday night at Central Park and came back with a five-run inning in the fourth to win 5-3 and move into second place in the Senior A Men's Softball League.

Only three points separate the top three teams. Chinese Students are in first place with 14 points, the Gasmen have 12, and Butler Bros. Aces are in third spot with 11.

Navy opened the game with two walks and Mickey Smith sacrificed the runners along. George Kinch hit a ground ball down first base way and Chick Newman muffed it allowing two runs to score. Mel Padgett lined out and Ray Jones followed with a soft grounder to second that handcuffed Verne Evans. Kinch scored all the way from second with his team's third run on the error.

Kinch, Navy's starting hurler, had no trouble with the Gasmen for the first three innings, and Coach Joe Bryant's charges were never in the ball game until the fourth inning when they sent 10 batters to the plate.

Evans opened the inning by getting a life after Jeff Worrall failed to pick up his ground ball to short. Jimmy Morrison walked and Newman followed with a fly ball to centre for the first out. Les Wilson walked to load the bases and Ab Wiebe came in to pinch hit for Fiori Goegan.

The big fellow got the wood to Kinch's first pitch and lined a single out to centre that drove in two runs. Gus Hilton walked to load the bases again but Kinch bore down and got Ken Gunter on strikes for out number two.

Worrall had trouble with Bill Reynolds' high bouncer behind the mound and another run came in to tie the game at 3-3.

Bernie Clarkson provided the clinching blow with a line single to right field, driving in the fourth and fifth runs of the inning.

League officials have announced that a field day is on tap for all senior A players on Sunday, July 12.

ALL-STAR GAME

The five umpires of the league will pick an all-star team to play the team leading the league on July 1. The game will be played in Central Park.

Argentina Holds Lead

MONTREAL (CP)—The final 18-hole round of the Canada Cup international twosomes got under way today with Argentina holding a one-stroke lead over England-South Africa and several perplexing questions unanswered.

Little Tony Cerda and big Roberto de Vicenzo combined for a medal score of 145 Tuesday over the Beaconfield course and the Commonwealth team of Harry Weetman and Bobby Locke was right behind with 146.

Cerda was the only player in the starry field of 24 to get under par. He fired a 70. Locke shot an even par 72, and no one else was closer than 74.

So far so good for the leading teams, considering the strong northwest wind that whipped up and down the fairways and puffed gusts back and forth. But what happened to such fellows as Julius Boros, United States Open champion, and his teammate, Jim Turnesa, Professional Golfers' Association titleholder across the border?

Each took an 80, a score that just about had the galleryites rubbing their eyes in disbelief when it was realized the U.S. was 15 strokes off Argentina's pace.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver came breezing along the back nine two under par to finish with 74, two over for the 18 holes. This figure, with a 79 shot by Bill Kerr, home club pro, left Canada in third place with 153, eight strokes off the pace.

Ossie Pickworth and Peter Thomson of Australia put together a 77 and 78 to leave Australia in fourth place with 155.

Then there was a five-stroke gap, with the U.S. and Germany tied at 160, followed by Mexico in last place with 163. The German pair, Hans Goernert and Georg Bessner, may have been far back but they were elated at their tie with the Americans. "We will have to try hard in the second round, Hans," said Bessner. "Won't that be something to tell them back home if we beat the Americans?"

JBAA Crews Absorb Twin Defeats From Vancouver, U of W Scullers

By DENNY BOYD

The rigorous practice schedule undertaken by the James Bay Athletic Association rowing club for the past two weeks—from dinner till darkness every night and from dawn till breakfast time every morning—fell barely short in the shell rowing events at the Gorge regatta Tuesday.

Norm Edmonds' Bays lost both the four and eight-oared events to smooth-stroking crews from Vancouver and the University of Washington, respectively.

Actually the Bays looked better against the Washington Husky freshman eight than against the Vancouver four.

The Husky crew, which will be taking part in the National championships at Syracuse this month, were a treat to behold, catapulting their collapsible shell over the water with a fluid stroke that seemed effortless.

Washington opened the race in the Inner Harbor with a 34-stroke a minute beat, took a half-length lead at the Johnson Street Bridge and slowed to a steady 30.

Victoria, with Gordon Wallace coxing, started with a punishing 37-stroke and kept pace until forced to gear down to 34 strokes. Washington opened up an immense lead halfway through the 2½-mile jaunt but the local crew finished strongly to reduce the deficit at the finishing line to six lengths.

A four-oared race between Vancouver and Penticton almost precipitated a full scale naval engagement at the Johnson Street Bridge as the crews resumed a bitter rivalry that goes back quite a way.

Neither club would stick to the outside coming up to the bridge and the shells rammed with Vancouver almost going under. The race was restarted after a stern lecture from the official starter and Vancouver won by a handy margin.

The Vancouver crew later defeated Victoria's four by three lengths.

In an interesting single shell race, Canadian champ Charles McIntyre hardly worked up a sweat but still finished a length and a half ahead of Jim Byers of Vancouver.

MANAGERS MORE ENTERTAINING?

By OSCAR FRALEY

Fight Bosses Stand Toe-to-Toe

NEW YORK (UP) — The heavyweight situation was best described today as in a "spasm," proving all over again that some managers are much more entertaining than their fighters.

It still was a neck-and-neck race between Ezzard Charles and Roland LaStarza as an September title opponent for heavyweight king Rocky Marciano. But the managers were doing their bit to keep the potential customers awake.

Al (the Vest) Weill announced that there was a veritable "spasm" between himself and promoter Jim Norris. Catch-as-catch-can interpreters figured that Weill meant a gap or "chasm."

Meanwhile, Tom Tannas and Jimmy Deangelo, respective pilots of Charles and LaStarza stood toe to toe and slugged it out verbally to provide more action than might be expected in an encounter between their respective boxers.

Fight managers long have been slandered as gents who wave towels and admonish their warriors that the other guy "can't hurt us." Actually, they'll surprise you, every once in a while.

My first jolt came in the dim days of my youth. A classmate decided he was going to be a fight manager and scared up another youngster who had earned tremendous muscles working on a railroad gang. But when the muscular one showed an aggravating reluctance to learn the elements of fisticuffs, the would-be manager grabbed the gloves and with one punch decked his hopeful "boy."

"That," he growled, "is the end of my days as a manager."

You might call it a very brief career. But not so with Tannas and Deangelo. Both of them are in there pitching—and almost punching—as they try to get the next crack at Marciano.

Tannas would seem to have the most logical claim.

"When Charles had the title, we defended it against anybody," he asserted. "We defended eight times in two years. We are the number one contender and, if there is any question, we will fight LaStarza for the right to meet Marciano."

But Deangelo, despite the fact that he is a dehydrated lightweight, faced right up to his heavyweight debating opponent, and quavered outrageously:

"We have waited three years to get at Marciano again since the night he won a split decision from us. Charles has had plenty of opportunity. Let him wait."

Deangelo insisted that his boy had fought four times this year, although the records show that Lastarza has snubbed the ring since his lone 1953 venture against Rex Layne.

"We have won five fights this year and nine in a row," Tannas countered quietly. "And we'll fight you, if you'll hold still."

Lastarza—and his manager—won't.

The feeling around and about is that Lastarza will get the fight, an outdoor affair in New York, come September. Probably it should go to Charles, but the theory is that the old split decision of three years ago will sell more tickets. Yet Tannas is still in there punching.

There can be no doubt but what Al the Vest hit the nail on the head. The heavyweight situation is in a real "spasm."

Spittal Off to Bisley With Canadian Snipers

OTTAWA (CP)—Eighteen sharpshooters, among the best in Canada, will seek Commonwealth shooting honors at rolling Bisley ranges in England next month.

The team will leave New York aboard the Caronia June 13. The rifle meet will be held July 6-18, inclusive. The team includes 12 veteran Bisley shots who have kept Canada's name high in shooting competition. Among them is Major A. M. Taylor Spittal of Victoria.

Maj. A. B. Coulter, 55-year-old member of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, Ottawa, a member of the Canadian Bisley team in 1935 and chairman of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association, is commandant. Adjutant is Maj. C. A. Vickery, 62-year-old former officer of the cadet services of Canada. For a number of years he has been chief range officer at Long Branch, near Toronto, and Connaught Ranges, near Ottawa.

FAMOUS SHOT

Among the marksmen is Lt.-Col. Desmond T. Durke, 49-year-old radiologist at Toronto's Sunnybrook Hospital and rated as Canada's top shooter.

A former King's Prize winner, he is no stranger to Bisley. He was a member of the team 10 times and qualified on eight other occasions when he was unable to make the trip because of business. In 1924 he brought the coveted King's Prize to Canada. He has been among the final 100 six times and has finished second three times.

In Canada, Burke is seven times winner of the King's Medal at Connaught ranges and last year won the Governor-General's Prize.

AUTHOR-MARKSMAN

Lt.-Col Steve Johnson, 18, of the King's Own Calgary Regiment, author of "Shoot to Live," a shooting manual now used in the Canadian Army, also is at home at Bisley. He has been a shooting member four times and qualified two other times.

Officer Cadet E. L. Warner of Lennoxville, 23-year-old member of the Sherbrooke, Que., Regiment, who is as much at home with a pistol as with a .303 rifle, also is making the trip.

Other veteran Bisley shots making the trip are: Sgt. G. H. Emperingham, 36, Montreal; Maj. R. W. Hampton, 39, Ottawa and Camp Borden, Ont.; Sgt. E. R. Jamieson, 49, Vancouver; S. Sgt. G. B. Kay, 41, Hamilton, Ont.; Maj. G. A. MacDonald, 51, Charlottetown; Capt. M. Morgan, 43, Kingston, Ont.; Sgt. C. C. Wilson, 50, Ottawa, and Sgt. T. Woods, 40, Montreal.

New members, in addition to Officer Cadet Warner, are: Special Constable J. F. R. Doucet, 23, Montreal; Sgt. W. E. Hicks, 37, Edmonton; Sgt. W. Kayne, 36, Montreal; Capt. W. J. Newell, 44, Winnipeg, and Bdr. S. H. Thompson, 48, Parkhill, Ont.

John Reid Glenlyon Track Champ

The senior boys' championship and Maclean Cup were won by John Reid with nine and one-half points at the annual Glenlyon Preparatory School sports day. Blake Millner was runner-up with five points.

Reid placed first in the 100-yards sprint and won the Parizeau Cup in addition to winning the Cuppage Cup in the open 440-yard event.

Robert Hallsor and Roger Barclay tied for the boys' intermediate Pickles Cup with nine points each while Ian Ogle racked up 13 points to win the Martin Cup for the boys' junior championship.

Derek Mercer won the Homer-Dixon Cup in the open high-jump event while the Cree Cup for senior cross country was awarded to Blair McLean. Ogle won the junior event.

Somerset 323 for nine declared and 79 for three. Warwickshire 448 for five declared. Match abandoned as draw, rain.

Weather May Worry Sweeney But Not Suds

Seattle Manager Bill Sweeney complains that during 15 seasons in the Pacific Coast League he's never encountered worse weather than his Rainiers have come up against this year.

But what's he kicking about? Seattle rides in first place by a full four games Wednesday, having met and turned back the challenge of second-place Hollywood 5-4 Tuesday night in filmland's Gilmore Stadium.

And Sweeney has Bill Evans, a right-hander with an 8-2 season mark to toss against the Stars Wednesday night. Manager Bobby Bragan will continue his plan of throwing lefties at the Rainiers with Lloyd Hittle, 3-3, going to the mound.

Al Widmar, the Seattle ace, was the winner Tuesday night packing up his 11th of the season, but he needed help when the Stars rallied for three in the eighth. Joe Muir started for Hollywood and took the loss.

In the other games, Sacramento continued its winning ways with a 5-4 win over Oakland, Los Angeles tripped San Diego 5-1 and San Francisco edged Portland 3-2. The loss to Seattle broke a six-game Hollywood win streak.

15-Year-Old Takes Interior Golf Title

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—A 15-year-old former Vancouver golfer is the new Interior Closed golf champion, succeeding Dr. Sam Hanna of Vernon, who last week won the B.C. senior title.

Gary Puder, now a Kelowna resident but who learned his golf in Vancouver, starting out at eight years of age, topped a field of more than 50 of the best shotsmiths in the interior of the province with his 230 for 54 holes. Par for that distance is 216.

Runner-up was Clem Watson of Vernon with 232.

Sawchuk Has Operation

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP) Terry Sawchuk, brilliant goaltender of Detroit Red Wings of the NHL, today was reported in "good" condition following an apendectomy operation Tuesday. Sawchuk, winner of the Vezina Trophy and named to the NHL allstars, was admitted to St. Boniface hospital late Monday night.

If Li'l Arthur Ain't The Champ, Who Is?

TORONTO (BUP) — Li'l Arthur King contended today he's still the British Empire lightweight champion and anybody who wants a crack at his crown can come to him.

Dusky Arthur from Philadelphia had his say about the disputed title as he trained for next Monday's controversial fight here with Canadian lightweight champion Armand Savoie of Montreal.

"Nobody has challenged me, and nobody has told me I haven't got the title any more," he said. "They've only suggested I go to Australia and a couple of other places.

"Why should I wander all over the world? I've got the title, let 'them come to me'."

King's bout with Savoie was originally billed as a scrap for two titles, but the Canadian Boxing Federation changed its mind. It said King lost the empire title some time ago when he failed to defend it, and besides he was an American citizen now and ineligible for a Canadian title fight.

The former Toronto boy indignantly denied both charges, and said the title had been defended only once because "there are so few good lightweights in the British Empire." Montreal started all the fuss, he claimed, because promoters there were jealous over Toronto getting the big bout.

HARVEY SLUGS ONE

First Homer In Li'l League

Gyros 18, Rotary 4

The fences at the Little League baseball park won't seem so far away for the junior-sized sluggers now.

Barry Harvey, centre-fielder for the Rotary Club, conquered the fence for the first time Monday night and the accomplishment was as great to the Little Leaguers as the climbing of Mount Everest.

Harvey smashed a home run over the left field wall with two on in the third inning Tuesday night to become the first player to clear the fence.

But the big blast wasn't enough as Gyros went on the rampage to wax Rotary 18-4 with a 21-hit attack. Harvey also smacked three singles to account for four of his team's six hits.

By their victory, Gyros climbed back into first place and left the losers in the cellar.

HEAL WINNING PITCHER

Winning pitcher Mike Heal struck out 13 while going the distance and walked five. His mates gave him a 13-0 lead in the first two innings.

Bud Taylor rapped four singles for Gyros.

Tonight at 6.30 Odd Fellows tangle with North Kiwanis.

Line score follows:

Bushby Will Race Mantle For $1,000

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Jim Busby, fleet centrefielder of Washington Senators, said Tuesday he's willing to race Mickey Mantle "or anybody else" for the speed championship of the American League, provided a guarantee of $1,000 goes with it.

A race between Busby and New York Yankees' outfielder has been proposed as a sidelight to the all-star game in Cincinnati July 14.

Busby indicated he'd want a guarantee of $1,000 because of the possibility of an injury that might cut short his baseball career.

Mantle has been clocked at 3.4 seconds in making it from home plate to first base. Busby has been timed at 3.5.

At Texas Christian University, Busby twice ran the 100-yard dash in 9.8 seconds.

DAVEY WINS

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Southpaw Chuck Davey needed all his boxing skill on Tuesday night to outpoint Sammy Mastrean in his second comeback victory since his loss to welterweight champion Kid Gavilan.

Tillicums Win Again

Bill Merluk's booming bat kept Tillicums on the victory wagon Tuesday night at Heywood Avenue.

Merluk clouted two home runs as Tillicums ran their undefeated streak in the Senior B Men's Softball League to nine straight with an 8-4 victory over Chinese Students.

Merluk batted in six of Tillicums eight runs with circuit clouts in the second and sixth innings. In the second inning he homered behind singles by Bill Abbott and winning pitcher Jack Elliott and chased in Abbott and Perkins in the sixth.

Elliott was touched for six hits in recording the victory but pitched no-hit ball for the last four innings.

On Monday, Joe Fosters consolidated their grip on second place with an 11-8 win over Mary's Coffee Bar. A seven-run third inning gave Fosters the jump on the cafe boys.

Race Track Program Enriches Games Fund

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Empire Games took a fling at the race track Tuesday and came out a $55,895.22 winner.

Part of the turnover at the special Coronation Day races at Lansdowne Park was set aside as a contribution toward the cost of holding the games here next year.

"We had set our sights on a $50,000 gift, a figure which some thought was too high," said Jack Diamond, chairman of the games society special events committee.

"However, today should be proof enough that people throughout the province are behind our efforts to stage the games."

A second day of racing set aside for the games is scheduled for Exhibition Park here August 4 and Mr. Diamond said: "We hope to raise a similar amount that afternoon."

THOUSANDS CLIMAX HOLIDAY WATCHING FIREWORKS DISPLAY

Thousands of tired celebrants thronged the slopes of Beacon Hill Park Tuesday night to see the skies lighted by a Coronation fireworks display.

Sky-gazing motorists managed to create a traffic jam that city police had feared yet avoided all through the daylight ceremonies.

A flaming portrait of Queen Elizabeth climaxed the display.

Scots Honor Young Queen With Songs and Dancing

The Scots held a party in the Queen's honor at Memorial Arena Coronation night.

Bagpipes and Highland dancers heralded her reign, and although some still may argue as to whether she is the first or second Elizabeth to rule Scotland, there was no doubt they welcomed her as Queen.

The jamboree, sponsored by the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society, climaxed a day of varied celebrations in Victoria. Weary revellers relaxed to Old Country melodies, danced or settled back to listen to soloists.

Victoria's May Queen, Doreen Rogers, was an honored guest.

Entertainment was spaced at half-hour intervals between dance selections. The entertainers included the Victoria Schools Pipe Band and kilted dancers from Miss Adeline Duncan's School.

John Dunbar and Mrs. Vera Barkley each sang two solos.

Spring Cold Snap Brings Snow to Western Europe

LONDON (AP) — A spring cold snap swept western Europe today, bringing heavy snow falls in the Alps and chilling rains elsewhere.

Britain had a repeat this morning of the cold damp weather that brought discomfort to the tens of thousands who watched the Coronation procession Tuesday.

Near blizzards swept the Austrian, French and Italian Alps. Traffic dislocations developed in parts of the Austrian Alps.

Heavy snow, up to 39 inches at Fedaia, blocked several mountain passes in northeastern Italy.

Top U.S., Russian Chess Players Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Russia's top chess players have agreed to meet an American team in a tournament here starting July 15, United States Chess Federation president Harold M. Phillips said Tuesday.

Russian and U.S. teams played a 2-2 standoff in the Olympics, although the Russians came out first in the tournament to the Americans' fifth.

ITALIAN ELECTION SUNDAY

Premier de Gasperi Faces Greatest Test

By PHIL NEWSOM
(United Press Foreign News Editor)

Ever since Italy's return to the family of nations after the Second World War, her destiny has been guided by Premier Alcide de Gasperi.

But on this coming Sunday—Italy's general elections—the man who led Italy into the Atlantic Pact, faces his strongest test.

Even the most optimistic will not give him much more than a 50-50 chance of winning. In Italy, as elsewhere, the fight against Communism is a primary issue. But, if De Gasperi's Christian Democrats and the allied rightwing Socialists, Republicans and Liberals are defeated this time, it won't be by the Communists.

Rather, it will be on purely internal differences which have resulted in splinter groups and a division of anti-Communist forces so firmly allied in the 1948 elections.

In 1948, the Christian Democrats alone got 48.5 per cent of the vote, and, with their three present allies, amassed 62 per cent.

The result has been for the last five years a thoroughly De Gasperi-dominated government.

This year Italy votes under a new election law. It gives 380 of the 590 seats in the Chamber of Deputies automatically to the party or coalition winning 50.01 per cent of the popular vote.

Recently opinions were asked of editors of 10 major non-party newspapers in Italy, Sicily and Sardinia on this year's outcome.

Three believed De Gasperi's coalition would fall short of the needed majority by one or two per cent.

The others thought he would squeak through. They believed, however, that the issue would be decided by only one to three per cent of the vote.

If De Gasperi's coalition wins, the new law giving the winner 64 per cent of the chamber seats will assure Italy of a stable government.

But if the outcome brings about a shakier coalition of centre-moderate left or centre-moderate right, then Italy could become another France with periodic cabinet crisis.

The votes lost by the centre parties have not gone to the Communists but rather to the two up and coming anti-Communist parties on the far right—the Monarchists and the Neo-Fascists.

The admirers of the old monarchy or of Mussolini's old Fascists together polled only 4.8 per cent of the vote in 1948.

This year they are predicted to take 15 per cent.

"The situation at this stage does not leave room for comfort," one Christian Democrat editor remarked recently.

Morally the centre parties have two powerful supporters—the United States and the Italian Catholic hierarchy.

U.S. Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce made it clear last week that if Communism should emerge victorious, Italy can say goodbye to further help from the United States.

Only ornaments worn by women of Kismu, Kenya Colony, British East Africa, are tails of animal fur, regarded as the equivalent of wedding rings.

Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years!

Up to 15% more power

Up to 150% more spark plug life

TCP, a Shell-discovered additive, now blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, puts an end to the greatest cause of power loss.*

Strange as it may seem, the majority of cars on the road today are not putting out their full horsepower.

Perhaps you may have noticed that your power "falls off" especially when accelerating, climbing a hill, or driving on the open highway.

The reason is that deposits are constantly accumulating on the spark plugs and in the combustion chambers. They actually "short-circuit" your spark plugs and cause pre-ignition of the fuel mixture, especially when you want extra power and "step on it" hard!

To overcome this condition, Shell Research discovered TCP—a remarkable fuel additive which has the property of counteracting the power-wasting of these deposits.

As a result, Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP gives you up to 15% more power, up to 150% more spark plug life, plus an increase in gasoline mileage.

Shell Premium with TCP is the most significant development in gasoline since the introduction of tetraethyl lead in 1922.

New and old engines benefit

If you have a new car, particularly one with a high compression engine, Shell Premium with TCP is essential if you want it to keep on delivering its original power for the normal life of the spark plugs. But high compression, or not, Shell Premium with TCP keeps it working like new.

Owners of older cars also benefit. Even if your car has gone thirty thousand miles or even more, your engine can get back much of its original power by the use of Shell Premium with TCP.

Shell Premium with TCP quick to act

So rapidly does Shell Premium with TCP counteract the deposit on spark plugs and in combustion chambers, that you'll feel your engine's had a tune-up before you've finished the second tankful. You enjoy that new car pep again.

Now in Canada–but only at your Shell Dealer's

TCP was originally developed by Shell Research for aviation fuels and until now has been largely restricted to military aircraft.

Today, Shell Premium with TCP is available in this area, but only at Shell Service Stations.

BLIND GIRL 'SEES' BEAUTY OF CORONATION CEREMONY

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (AP)—"It was the finest thing I ever saw," the blind girl said Tuesday. She and nine of her friends sat strained, silent in darkness while the power and glory of Britain passed by.

They were from the National Institute of the Blind. The Earl Marshal, the Duke of Norfolk, had turned over a block of back seats to them at the last moment before the Coronation.

"They didn't put out the form and order of the service in Braille but I saw it all," the girl said.

"There were the lights and the shining Queen. There were lovely, lovely colors and brave handsome men. There was the Prince, her husband, like in the story book. There were noblemen and their ladies. Dressed in scarlet. Dressed in gold. They were all dressed up. A joy to behold. And the grand, good music. The choir sounded to me like it was in the clouds. But it couldn't have been. And then the lights, the lights. I wouldn't have missed it for worlds."

The blind girl must have seen it all.

For that's the way it was.

250 Dublin Irish Set Fire To Union Jack at Meeting

DUBLIN (Reuters) — The Union Jack was burned before 250 people in O'Connell Street here Tuesday night at a public meeting held by the Anti-Partition League of Ireland.

The meeting was called to protest against the assumption by Queen Elizabeth of sovereignty over a portion of Ireland.

The northern six counties are part of the United Kingdom, though the territory has its own prime minister.

Generally, there were few radio and television sets in southern Ireland not tuned into the Coronation broadcasts. But one man broke up a TV set showing the Coronation in a crowded tavern and was arrested.

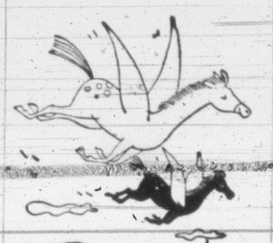
Extra police were on duty to deal with anti-partitionist demonstrations. The republic did not send a representative to the Coronation.

High-Ranking Reds Dance at U.K. Embassy

MOSCOW (UP). — Some 200 high-ranking Russians trooped to the British Embassy Tuesday night for a Coronation ball which proved to be one of the most genial East-West social functions held here since the war.

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov headed a contingent of Soviet civil and military leaders who mingled with foreign diplomats in an atmosphere of cordiality recalling the wartime banquets attended by Prime Minister Winston Churchill and the late Premier Josef Stalin.

Molotov remained at the party for about an hour, chatting with British Ambassador Sir Alvary D. F. Gascoigne and various guests. During his stay he had several drinks and joined in toasting Queen Elizabeth in champagne.



Flying Horses

AUSTRALIAN thoroughbreds can now fly to race meets in what must be a new high in horsey luxury. A transport plane has been fitted up with aluminum boxes upholstered in red leather, as private suites for six fortunate equine passengers.

Could be that the boxes are made from Canadian aluminum, which is shipped all over the free world. This huge export market has helped make possible Canada's king-size aluminum industry, and the growth of more than a thousand independent Canadian manufacturing companies which turn this low-priced, versatile metal to thousands of uses. Leaves to See Daughter Crowned

FOLLOWS SERVICE RAPTLY

Red-Eyed, Margaret Prays For Beloved 'Lillibet'

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (AP) —Princess Margaret prayed as she watched her beloved "Lillibet" being crowned.

And when it was all over she wept.

The red-eyed Margaret held her mother's hand Tuesday as they drove together in a coach from Wetminster Abbey. But to the waving, cheering multitudes on the way she kept smiling.

Undoubtedly she prayed bebause Lillibet had said she needs everyone's prayers to help her carry out arduous duties—duties that broke the health of their father, and that the nation hopes will inspire a new golden age of greatness.

During her time in the abbey Margaret kept her eyes fixed firmly on the form and order of the service.

Her lips moved as the Archbishop of Canterbury and his bishops went through the prayers.

And when the Queen was being invested, never once did Margaret lower her gaze from her sister's calm face.

The tiny, brown-eyed Margaret often was the talk of London town before the death of her father, the late King George VI, because of her frequent attendance at night-spots and even in recent weeks she has been the target of attack by some religious institutions in the Commonwealth because she has been photographed smoking in public.

But since her father's death, Margaret has been devoting herself to religion, attending post communion classes, taking communion regularly but unobtrusively, reading widely about all faiths.

She wore a gown of white satin, short-sleeved, with a tight bodice over a very wide, flowing skirt. Silver, diamonds and pearls and motifs of broderie Anglaise made up the gown's rich embroiders. A diadem in silver and diamonds sparkled against the brownness of her hair.

Victorian Receives Medal from Queen

LONDON (CP)—The new-crowned Queen today presented the 2,600 members of the commonwealth and colonial Coronation military contingents with her Coronation medal.

Fighting men from around the world, including 750 Canadian servicemen and the RCMP contingent, lined up on the lawn of Buckingham Palace this morning, their uniforms spotless despite the rain during Tuesday's Coronation marching.

Four Canadians received their medals from the Queen herself, as she stood on the palace terrace beside the Duke of Edinburgh, who was dressed in a uniform of the admiral of the fleet.

The four were Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, aide-de-camp general to Her Majesty, Maj.-Gen. G. D. B. Smith, officer commanding the Canadian contingent, Cmdr. Robert P. Welland of Victoria, naval force commanding officer and Wing Cmdr. J. V. Watts of Hamilton, RCAF unit head.

Above, looking down on the multicolored uniforms headed by the Canadians in two units and the Gurkhas of the British army, were the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret, Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

RECEIVED IN PALACE

Gen. Crerar was received before the ceremony in the palace and stood below the Queen. The band of the Canadian Royal 22nd Regiment, one of three bands on parade, played the national anthem as the Queen appeared. After the senior commanders had received medals, the remainder took theirs from trays distributed rank by rank.

Before marching off wearing their medals, the parade components doffed hats and gave Her Majesty three cheers, and the Duke of Edinburgh returned their salute.

A crowd of several hundred outside the palace when the forces entered had grown to several thousand during the hour they spent inside.

The sky was overcast but the rain held off.

The parade involved another eight miles of marching for the Canadians, who covered 13 Tuesday.

Among the Canadians decorated today were leading seaman J. W. Cuell of Calgary; LAC P. W. Cassidy of Vancouver and Pte. V. C. Burke, Charlottetown, of the army.

As the Canadians marched out, observers spotted Prince Charles and Princess Anne saluting enthusiastically. The little Princess put up the wrong hand, was corrected by her brother and tried both hands at the same time before she finally got it right.

Jet Hits Road Grader In Korea—Three Die

SABRE JET BASE, Korea (AP)—A Sabre jet plowed into a huge road grader at the end of a runway on take off today, killing the pilot and two army engineers. Israel's Cabinet Crisis Ends With Minister's Return

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion announced today Israel's cabinet crisis has ended. He said four ministers from the right-Liberal General Zionist party who quit because they feared state schools would be allowed to fly socialism's red flag were rejoining the cabinet.

He also told Parliament that because of a need for national unity, he would continue his efforts to broaden his cabinet "despite difficulties met from the right and left."

The four General Zionists quit the cabinet because they feared Ben-Gurion's Labor party would push through legislation to let schools fly the socialist flag and sing the international labor anthem on May Day.

PALACE WRITES ITS BIT FOR HISTORY

Coronation Story in 111 Words

LONDON (AP).—The Buckingham Palace Court Circular gave this laconic account of the events Tuesday in London:

"The Coronation of the Queen took place in the Abbey Church of Westminster this day.

"Her Majesty, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh, left the palace at 10.29 o'clock this morning and proceeded in state to the Abbey, escorted by a sovereign's escort of the Household Cavalry, with standard, under the command of Lt.-Col. D. C. Smiley, Royal Horse Guards, the Blues.

"The Queen, with His Royal Highness, returned to the palace at 4.59 o'clock. Combined guards of honor of the three services were mounted outside the forecourt of Buckingham Palace and outside Westminster Abbey. Her Majesty this afternoon from Buckingham Palace witnessed a fly-past of aircraft of the Royal Air Force."

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3, 1953

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

After due deliberation, considerable soul searching, and flipping a coin, the judges have declared a winner in the Between Times-Ask The Times contest.

The winner is R. H. Nichols, 325 Menzies Street, Victoria, and he will receive the top award, a slightly-used telephone pole.

As an example of the excellence of his answers, here is how he handled the question "How many ants in the average ant-hill (not counting uncles)?

Mr. Nichols replied "Roughly, 43,648,896, although I once saw one with 43,648,888."

The man is exactly right!

Second prize (as yet to be determined) goes to T. R. Brien, 2333 Lee Avenue.

As a sample of Mr. Brien's talents, take this:

Q. Do you think modern labor saving appliances in the kitchen will ever replace the housewife?

A. No. She can never find them when needed.

Honorable mention goes to Miss Frances Switzer, 1715 Davie Street; "J. A. S.," 302 Skinner Street; Mrs. Elvira C. Bryant, Box 676, Sooke PO; and "Kit of Colquitz."

These four entries were all of high quality, and it is unfortunate we do not have more telephone poles to give away.

Incidentally "Kit of Colquitz" won't mind missing out on first prize. She writes "my basement is already full of old telephone poles, so another one would be superfluous."

She also passes on a message to Punch: "Sandy and Penny, our two mouse-catchers, send their humble greetings to the Hon. Punch.

"They try to be as friendly as dogs but, poor things, they can't help being born with a purr instead of a wag."

My sincere thanks to all the Constituents who entered the contest, and to those who almost did.

It is great to know there are people around with a sense of humor.

Four hundred Victoria Scouts repeated a pledge of loyalty before a huge beacon fire at Clover Point Tuesday night. The ceremony was repeated in centres across the Dominion as the hour of 9.30 arrived. Victoria Rover Scout and assistant scoutmaster for First Esquimalt troop, Harold Harrison, 19, and Sea Scout Lessley Robson, 12, salute their new Queen as the flaming pyre brightens the whole area. A singsong wound up the ceremony. (Times photo by Halket).

Swimmers Banned From Polluted Sea

Ross Bay Unfit For Bathers

Swimming at Ross Bay will be banned again this year owing to heavy pollution of the water, city sanitary inspector Elwood S. Gropp said today.

The ban, as last year, includes the Dallas Road from Howe Street to St. Charles.

All other areas, including Foul Bay beach, are approved for swimming.

Special water counts which have been taken since mid-May reveal pollution in the Ross Bay area, which is near the sewer outfall at Clover Point.

A general warning to those swimming in fresh water lakes such as Thetis, Elk, Beaver, Glen and Langford, was issued by Dr. J. L. Gayton, city medical health officer.

"Most swimming fatalities occur in the lakes," he said.

"People should not go in alone, too soon after a meal nor over their depth if they are unsure swimmers," the doctor said. "So many tragedies occur, particularly in the young adult group, when persons are in swimming alone."

He also stressed the danger wherein persons who do not know how to handle boats or swim take craft out on the water.

Violation Brings Fine

Fred W. N. Martin, 765 Hillside, was fined $25 in city police court today when he pleaded guilty to violation of a driver's license restriction. He had driven his car while it was not covered by motor vehicle liability insurance, the court was told.

Major Parties Push Drive For City Vote

B.C.'s four major political parties are sending their top talent into the Greater Victoria area this week in a final, all-out attempt to win capital city votes.

After a one-day let-up on Coronation Day, the campaign today resumed its high tempo as party "heavy weights" planned big meetings.

Liberal leader Arthur Laing, in a whirlwind trip to Victoria, will address three meetings tonight.

The Liberal chieftan will speak at Oak Bay Junior High School, Hampton Road Hall and Langford Community Hall in support of Liberal candidates P. A. Gibbs, Oak Bay; Arthur Ash, Saanich, and Geoffrey Edgelow, Esquimalt.

Mr. Laing will speak first at Oak Bay Junior High School, then Hampton Road Hall, and finally at Langford Community Hall.

It will be his last Victoria appearance before election day, June 9.

Progressive Conservative Leader Deane Finlayson, whose campaign started considerable time before his opponents, returns to the city today to continue campaigning on his own behalf in Oak Bay.

He will address a meeting in Oak Bay Junior High School Friday at 8 p.m.

Major-General G. R. Pearkes, V.C., MP for Nanaimo, also will speak. General Pearkes will seek re-election in the coming Federal election in the newly-created riding of Esquimalt-Saanich.

WINCH HERE FRIDAY

Former CCF leader, Harold Winch, refreshed after a southern holiday, makes his first Victoria speech in the campaign at the Douglas Hall, Friday at 8 p.m.

Local CCFers are looking for an over-flow meeting and plenty of fighting oratory from the veteran socialist.

They have made seating arrangements in the main hall and the basement of the establishment, and will set a public address system outside the hall for those unable to get in.

The Social Credit end of the local campaign will be headed by Finance Minister Einar Gunderson, who speaks Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Lady of Lourdes Church Parish Hall on Haultain Street.

Driver on Charge After Passenger Falls From Car

Despite the heaviest traffic in Victoria's history, only three persons were injured in accidents Tuesday.

Among them is Mrs. Dorothy Speed, 28, of 3220 Quadra, who suffered a possible fractured spine when she fell from a car on Esquimalt Road at 6.55 p.m.

The driver, T. A. Richardson, 2711 Quadra, was charged today with driving while his ability was impaired. He was remanded on bail of $500, after pleading not guilty.

The car was not involved in a collision and police cannot explain exactly how Mrs. Speed fell out of it.

Other passengers in the car were Oliver Speed, husband of the injured woman, and Mrs. Richardson, wife of the driver.

Mrs. Speed is in St. Joseph's Hospital.

TWO-CAR CRASH

Norman W. Dixon, Saanich, was hurt in a two-car crash at 11.40 p.m. He suffered a concussion and is in Jubilee Hospital. Driver of the second car, Hugh Knight, 1230 Rockland, was unhurt. Alex Butler, 3028 Jutland, Dixon's passenger, was bruised, treated for shock.

Police of city and area units handled what they consider a record traffic volume before and after the Coronation parade. Night traffic, too, was heavy but serious jams were avoided.

Loose Dogs Worry City Parks Chief

Committee Talks On Restrictions

Dogs roaming at large may face stricter city control in the near future.

Parks administrator W. H. Warren told city council parks committee meeting today "the time is fast approaching in Victoria when no dog should be allowed to run at large in a public place under any condition."

"Dogs should be kept on the owner's property and not allowed to run loose," Mr. Warren said.

He received full support from Ald. Waldo Skillings, chairman, and Ald. Margaret Christie, although no action was taken.

Mrs. Christie spoke of the damage done to lawns and gardens by dogs. Ald. Skillings stated other large cities have by-laws on the lines indicated by Mr. Warren.

ESQUIMALT PLAN OUT

Esquimalt Council which asked the city if it would take on the job of providing pound service to the municipality will be advised the committee does not consider it possible.

"It would be spreading the service too thinly," said Ald. Skillings. "If we took Esquimalt in with the other municipalities we'd need two pound-keepers and then we'd be in the red again."

The SPCA was suggested as an alternative for Esquimalt.

Hit-Run Accident

Cyril R. Edwards, 1218 Lockley, reported to city police Tuesday afternoon that his car, parked on Government, between Johnson and Pandora, had been struck by an unidentified car that did not stop. Police typed damage as medium to the Edwards' car.

Chain of Fire Lit to Mark Scout Loyalty

Bare-Headed Troops Pray for Sovereign

A chain of bonfires, beacons announcing the loyalty of Boy Scouts to the new-crowned Queen, were burning bright across Canada when darkness fell Tuesday night.

One of the brightest flared at Clover Point as Victoria and district Scouts gathered for a Coronation sing-song.

Sharp at 9.30 p.m., Rover Scouts touched off a pyramid of beach-combed logs and rubber tires in a ceremony duplicated in every centre where there are Scouts.

Two hundred volunteer songsters from every city troop formed a traditional Scout horseshoe, doffed hats for prayers for the long reign of the sovereign, then launched into "Clementine" and other boys' favorites.

Several hundred parents joined in the ceremony.

INDIAN CHIEF PLANS POTLATCH

House-Warming Planned For Museum-Piece Home

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Victoria's famous Thunderbird Park will be the scene next fall of one of the largest Indian house-warming parties ever held in British Columbia.

The occasion will mark the opening of an authentic coast Indian house which is now being constructed by 74-year-old totem pole carver, Chief Mungo Martin.

Indians from all parts of the province will be invited by the chief to attend the house-warming, which will be held in traditional Indian style. It will resemble the old-time potlatch in many respects.

On the day of the party a large totem pole will be raised in front of the structure. Speeches will be made, songs sung, Indian dances performed, and gifts given away to the many guests.

The house is the largest project of the Provincial Museum's program of restoration of totem poles and related exhibits. It will replace an old Indian dwelling which was not authentic and which has been demolished.

LAST OF ITS KIND

The new structure probably will be the last authentic house of its kind to be constructed in B.C., as Chief Martin is believed to be the last genuine Indian carver in the province. He was trained by his family. This practice has now died out.

It will be a Kwakiutl house. The houseposts will bear carvings of Mungo's own family. It will be similar to a house built at Fort Rupert, Vancouver Island, by Mungo's grand-uncle almost 100 years ago. The inside will be furnished with Indian crafts and household belongings.

The date of the house-warming has not yet been set, but the Indian chief has indicated it will be after the fishing season. He wants all his friends to be able to come.

Parade Judges Want Marchers Re-Classified

Judges of marching units in Tuesday's Coronation Day parade will recommend that two additional classes be formed to divide experienced entries from comparative newcomers.

Announcements were made today by Victoria Lodge No. 2, BPOE, that had charge of all parade arrangements.

In the class for drill teams of women over 17, judges listed the Victoria FOE Ladies, Port Alberni Valleyettes, and Ladies of the Moose in that order, then recommended that a new class for experienced marchers be created with the superlative Victoria Girls' Drill Team as winner.

FOE drum and bugle band won its class, but here again judges recommended additional class for younger bands, with Rainbow Sea Cadets as winner.

"I think our recommendations will be accepted," said George F. Todd, co-chairman with Percy Fitzsimmons in charge of arrangements for the lodge.

Other winners were:

Brass bands, adult—Victoria Gizeh Temple Shrine.

Brass bands, school and juvenile—Victoria High-Central Junior High Schools.

Pipe bands, men — Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

Pipe bands, women—Victoria Ladies' Pipe Band.

Drill team, men — Rainbow Sea Cadets.

Drill teams, girls up to 17—Chinese Girls, first; Port Townsend, second.

Prize for the best horse and rider in the parade went to Henry Biles for his costume as a little knight in armor.

Lime Bay Shack Demolition Set

About 40 of 53 vacant waterfront shacks at Lime Bay and the west shore of Selkirk Waters, north of Point Ellice Bridge, are due for demolition on or after June 10.

The provincial government will handle the job at a cost of approximately $4,500, of which the city will pay $2,250.

There are 18 shacks at Lime Bay of which 10 are now vacant, and 35 shacks on Selkirk Waters, most of which are vacant, according to E. S. Gropp, city sanitary inspector. The others will be demolished as they become vacant.

First move by the city toward the clearing out of the squatter settlement at Lime Bay last August resulted in heated controversy.

Tenants of the buildings erected without permission on foreshore property did not want to be evicted. The city later stated it merely wanted to clear the shacks out as they became vacant. This is being done.

City health authorities were concerned over what they termed "extremely unsatisfactory conditions."

Woman Comes From Prison To Clear Man of Charge

A perjury charge against 31-year-old Vernon Reid was dismissed by County Court Judge Joseph B. Clearihue today.

A motion for dismissal was made by Reid's counsel, J. Ronald Grant, following presentation of Crown evidence at the speedy trial. The judge agreed there had been no prosecution evidence corroborating the charge, and ordered dismissal without requiring defense evidence.

W. Berkeley Monteith was Crown counsel.

The perjury charge arose out of testimony given in city police court April 2 by Reid, who was then before the court in connection with a deserted wives maintenance action. Asked who was paying the rent for his auto court dwelling, Reid named Lois Browne.

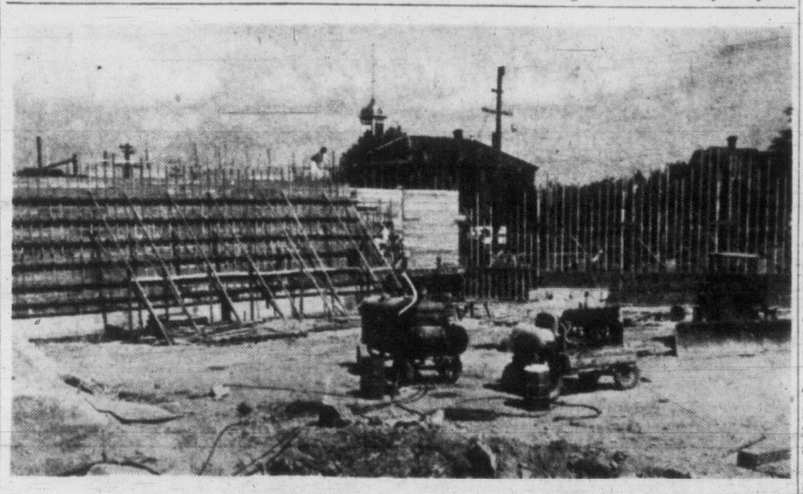
The Crown, relying on evidence of the auto court owner, who said it was Reid who each week presented money for the rent, pressed the perjury charge, claiming Reid's answer was false, and designed to deliberately mislead the court.

WITNESS FROM PRISON

Miss Browne was brought from Oakalla, where she is serving a sentence for obtaining money under false pretenses, to give testimony at Reid's trial as a witness for the Crown.

She admitted living with Reid at the auto court and testified it was her money which was used to pay the rent up until April 8. She said she gave the money each week to Reid and he simply turned it over to the auto court owner.

Reid is still in police custody, awaiting preliminary hearing on a charge of breaking, entering and committing theft in the Salvation Army Citadel here in early February.



Blasting, Building at Central School Site

Building and blasting operators are proceeding side by side as the new Central Junior High School rises on the site of the old. Fifty men swarm over the project, which is not expected to be ready for classes until September, 1954. Volcanic rock formations under the building site have already delayed the job one month. In all nearly 8,000 yards must be removed, so powdermen are kept busy. Already poured are 400 yards of concrete.

Create Your Own Plaques 'Individually' Styled!

By PENNY SAVER

Why not try? . . . Make your own hammered copper wall plaques! It's a hobby that's amazingly inexpensive and really not difficult at all! At first I thought one would have to be a great artist to create an even recognizable facsimile of anything in copper, but when I saw the easily followed designs and how simple it is to trace one onto a sheet of metal, I was fascinated, to say the least!

Copper is 12 inches wide and sold by the yard. To make a picture 12 inches by 9 inches, it costs just 27 cents! Yes, it's remarkable! Tools are cheap, too. There are three to choose from: a plastic roller, metal tracer and ball-end modeller. Prices, depending upon type and size of tool, range from 35 cents to 90 cents.

Designs, from which there are hundreds to choose, are 15 cents. . . . I chose an old-fashioned sailing ship for my first attempt. You may prefer an oriental or western scene.

Frames are not necessary, but they add a finished touch to the completed "masterpiece." Made of modern-looking, light-colored silver ply, a frame to fit the 12-inch by 9-inch picture costs $3. A larger one sells for $4.25.

* * *

You'll wow 'em with one of these new fangled lapel ornaments made of fine-colored or silver wire! They're hand-made in Germany. A large flower in silver and navy would be just the thing to set off a plain navy blue dress . . . $1.95. Little pink or blue buds with green leaves are $1.75. Three flowers on a stem in two-toned rose sell for $1.95. A silver spray of four blossoms with pearl centres is priced at $3.25. A pair of four-leaf clovers is $1.25 and a large gold and silver lily is $2.25.

Mother Shows Baby Photos At Teenager's Party

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

Teenagers are sensitive. It doesn't take much to embarrass and fluster them. That is why parents should be especially tactful when their young people's friends are in the home. The teenager who wrote the following letter has found her mother's behavior very embarrassing:

Hurlock

(Q) "Do you think it is fair to a teenager when she has a party or just friends at the house for the parents to take out pictures of her when she was a baby and half naked? It almost always happens and it's very embarrassing. I've spoken to my mother about this matter but she doesn't say anything, just laughs. Now what can I do to stop her from doing such things?"

(A) Perhaps you have not told your mother convincingly enough why you do not want her to show your baby pictures around. To her, they are "cute" and like any fond mother she cherishes them.

She obviously does not remember the days when she was a teenager and bent over backwards to create the impression that she was quite grown-up and sophisticated. If she did, she would keep the pictures of you as a baby away from your friends.

It is very hard for a teenager to play the grown-up when pictures of her as a baby are brought out and her guests laugh at them. Surely your mother must see how embarrassed you become.

The next time your mother does this, why not say politely but very firmly that you are sure your friends would not be interested in seeing old family pictures and then quickly suggest that your guests do something else.

If even this is not enough to convince your mother of how serious you are about your request, why not take up the matter with your teacher and perhaps she could get the idea across to your mother the next time they meet?

If you have a problem about family or friend, ask Dr. Hurlock to help you. Write in care of this newspaper.

As your stock pile of recipes and kitchen hints grows in size, you will need something compact in which to keep it. The best thing in the world for this is a small filing box. Get one that will hold 3-by-5-inch cards and decorate it with an attractive design.

In order to get the best service from her home freezer, the wise housewife keeps an inventory of its contents at all times. Do this and you will avoid being forced to rummage through the freezer whenever you need some frozen food. A small blackboard is ideal for this purpose.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Medicine Lengthens Life; Need Similar Mental Health

For the past few days I have been bringing you excerpts from papers given by distinguished leaders in the world of medicine. These papers were delivered before the first western hemisphere conference of the World Medical Assocation.

Today I quote from a paper by Doctor Dwight L. Wilbur, clinical professor of internal medicine, Stanford University, School of Medicine. In reviewing the accomplishments of internal medicine during the past 75 years he said:

"For persons as individuals, methods exist by which each may be actively immunized not only to smallpox but also to typhoid, typhus, yellow fever, whooping cough and tetanus, and passively immunized to diphtheria, measles, infectious hepatitis, mumps and possibly poliomyelitis. Furthermore, recent discoveries have made it possible chemically to suppress or prevent malaria for long periods. It is also probable that serious complications of streptococcal sore throat as rheumatic fever and other non-suppurative conditions may be prevented by prompt and adequate treatment with penicillin."

It is too bad that so many cases of preventative diseases still occur.

Another quote, "Among the most important and useful medical discoveries has been the unfolding of information concerning the hormones of the glands of internal secretion." He then mentions thyroid and insulin, and continues "The discovery of none of these hormones, however, has had the catalytic effect on all medicine that came in the discovery by Hench of the striking therapeutic role of cortisone in rheumatoid arthritis.

"Infectious diseases have been all but conquered and the life span of Americans has been increased from approximately 35 years in 1878 to 67 years in 1953.

"Perhaps of equal importance is need for achievement of a greater comprehension and understanding of the neurophysiology of man. Psychiatry and psychology are in their infancy and in the age of description, stand much as did internal medicine 75 years ago.

"Comparable advances in these fields in the next 75 years would be of greater benefit to man than have been those in medicine in the last 75 years. Man's understanding of man as a person is still in the dark ages."

Thus again we have an opinion expressed by a distinguished physician concerning the close correlations between the mental, emotional and physical in man.

TODAY'S RECIPE

MINT LEMONADE

To make a two-quart pitcher: ¾ cup sugar, ¾ cup fresh lemon juice, 6 cup water, sprigs of mint (6 to 8), ice cubes.

Mix in pitcher, pour into tall glasses and garnish with lemon slices and sprigs of mint.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

We've found that you can get a rich, creamy-textured milk shake by using frozen milk and adding a couple of tablespoons of smooth-sieved avocado for each cup of milk. Freeze the milk in a refrigerator tray until thick and mushy. In a chilled bowl combine the frozen milk with a rotary beater with the mashed avocado, three tablespoons crushed pineapple and two tablespoons sugar. It makes a very refreshing summer-time drink.

Raisin rice is perfect to serve with lamb chops, and this is the way to fix it. Cook ½ cup onion slices and 3 tablespoons slivered almonds in 3 tablespoons butter until onion is golden. Add ½ cup seedless raisins and cook until they puff. Immediately add to 4 cups hot cooked rice (1½ cups raw). Fluff up with a fork and serve with the lamb.

Keep your children from locking themselves in the bathroom or other rooms with a cleverly designed rubber shield made out of an older inner tube. Cut a strip of rubber from the tube long enough to stretch around the door from knob to knob. It will cover the latch and keep the door from clicking shut. Cut a hole in each end of the strip so that it can be fitted over both knobs.

Instead of the usual potato or macaroni salad for your next picnic menu we suggest taking along a big bowl of marinated cooked dry lima beans. The limas are easy to fix in a pressure cooker. Cover one cup large dry limas with 2½ cups boiling water and let soak one hour. Add one teaspoon salt and cook at 15 pounds pressure for three minutes. Marinate the hot cooked beans in a vinegar and oil dressing well-seasoned with salt and freshly ground black pepper.

An avacado half, shell filled with summer fruits makes a beautiful luncheon salad. One of the most delightful combinations we've tasted is the avocado filled with fresh pineapple chunks and halved strawberries. Serve with a fresh mint French dressing. It's very elegant, so would make a handsome salad for a bridal shower luncheon.

Make your canvas awnings and covers mildew-proof. Soak them in soapy water and then, without rinsing, dip them into a solution of copper sulphate, obtainable at the drug store.

It wears a suit out quickly to give it too many pressings without previous cleanings.

Word has been received in this city that Dr. Almon Fletcher, Toronto, has announced the engagement of his daughter, Laura Helen, to Mr. Rochfort Kirwan (Tim) Martin, Toronto, formerly of Victoria, son of Mrs. Alexis Martin, Toronto, and the late Alexis Martin, Victoria. The wedding will take place in Toronto on June 20.

CGIT Movement Now Has Large Membership

TORONTO (CP).—The Canadian Girls in Training movement has a membership of about 32,000 teen-age girls, it was reported, at a recent national CGIT staff conference here.

Last year more than 200 new groups were formed across Canada.

Summer camps will be held throughout the country this summer and money will be donated by the girls to a children's camp in Trieste. Last year $2,400 was raised at the Huntsville camp for an apprentice training school in West Germany.

Rebecca Varkey of the Church of South India told the conference of difficulties in the mission fields in India. She said getting rid of superstitious fears among low caste and illiterate persons is the biggest problem.

In India, as in Canada, she said, church leaders also have to combat indifference among professed Christians.

Nancy Edwards of Gander, a CGIT secretaray and the first to attend a conference from Newfoundland, told delegates of the rapid growth of the movement in the island province.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Mrs. L. Powers who spent the winter months in Vancouver with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Comerton, has returned to her home, "Langford Lodge," Langford Lake.

Mrs. George Miles returned to her Stanley Avenue home on Tuesday from a visit to Vernon, B.C., where she was the guest of her granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. David L. Whittingham, and where she saw her twin great-granddaughters, Dianna Louise and Donna Lorraine.

Miss G. Snider, Victoria, B.C., was a recent guest at The Guild of All Arts, Scarborough, Ont.

Forty feminine newcomers to Victoria were guests at a Welcome Wagon tea in the Douglas Room at Hudson's Bay Company store last Saturday afternoon. Their former homes included Glasgow and Edinburgh, Scotland, Liverpool, Manchester and Cheshire, Eng., Ireland, and points in other provinces of Canada.

Sisters in Recent Reunion

For the first time in 25 years, six sisters were together in Victoria recently when Mrs. A. Smith came from Milo, Alta., and Mrs. J. Warneboldt from Bridal Falls, B.C. They are, left to right, Mrs. Warneboldt, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. P. Atkinson, Mrs. Fred Burdge, Mrs. Mervyn Child and Mrs. C. W. Logan, the last four of Victoria. They are the daughters of the late Mr. John Brotherston of Victoria and as small girls pioneered with their parents on the prairies when they came west from Ontario.

A Double Wedding Is Foretold

Mrs. Margaret Gibson, Sooke, V.I., is announcing the forthcoming double wedding of her daughters, Glenda Marie, left, to Raymond Russell Pimlott, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Pimlott, Sooke, and Esther Agnes, to Richard David Herrling, son of Mrs. Carl Brosch, Abbotsford, B.C., and the late Mr. Herrling. The double ceremony will take place in Knox Presbyterian Church at Sooke, on Saturday, July 4, at 7.30 p.m. (Photo by N. Rogers, Milne's Landing, V.I.)

Hicks-Lovering Wedding Amid Holiday Festivity

A Coronation day wedding ceremony united Kathleen Laura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hicks, 4035 Glanford Avenue, and Lawrence Drew Lovering, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. Lovering, Fort William, Ont. The marriage was in St. Mark's Church, with Canon R. Willis officiating.

Tall baskets of iris, peonies and fern flanked the altar, and white roses and maiden hair fern marked the pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a strapless satin gown with bouffant skirt falling into a train with lace scalloped edging. Her lace bolero was similarly edged. A veil of illusion net foamed from her coronet of satin and lace. She wore a pearl choker with matching earrings and carried a bouquet of red and white roses.

Miss Grace Lindsay was maid of honor in a gown of pink nylon mesh trimmed with lace. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and white bachelor's buttons and wore a strand of pearls with matching earrings. Sister of the bride, Miss Joyce Hicks, was bridesmaid. Her gown of daffodil yellow nylon had lace inserts in the skirt and trimming on the neckline. Yellow carnations and blue bachelor's buttons formed her bouquet.

Best man was Chris Fuller. Ushers were Stan Deoust and Hector McClellan.

A reception for 60 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents, where fresh flowers and streamers decked the rooms. Uncle of the bride, Sid Starkey, proposed the toast.

For a honeymoon Up-Island, the bride donned a blue knitted suit and navy and white check shortie coat with cape sleeves. She had white accessories and wore a corsage of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Lovering will live at 630 Foul Bay Road upon return to Victoria.

Two National Groups Will Remember Lady Aberdeen at Conferences This Summer

When the National Council of Women holds its jubilee conference at Winnipeg this month it will celebrate the founding of the council in 1893 by Lady Aberdeen, wife of the Marquis of Aberdeen and Temair, Governor-General of Canada 1893-1898.

The Associated Countrymen of the World, at its seventh triennial in Toronto in August, also will remember that Lady Aberdeen inaugurated the 1930 conference which led to the formation of the international organization.

The biography, just published, of this remarkable woman, "A Bonnie Fechter" (Clarke Irwin), is by her daughter, Lady Marjorie Pentland.

Lady Aberdeen's active and influential life (1857-1939) recalls an age and names now part of history: Queen Victoria, Gladstone, John Bright, Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Parnell, Woodrow Wilson, to mention only a few.

It was while she was chatelaine at Government House, Ottawa, that she became the first president of the Canadian National Council of Women, after having been elected the new president of an international council of women in Washington in 1888. In 1897 she organized the Victorian Order of Nurses to commemorate Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee.

The chapters on her connection with Canada are particularly fascinating. On a tour across the Dominion in 1895 she rerocds that at Qu'Appelle, N.W.T., for her husband's birthday she "gave him a white leghorn cock and three hens so that they can lay fresh eggs on the train." In 1938 for the Empire Exhibition in Glasgow, she created a garden of good neighbors with a peace cairn built of stones from round the world. The idea for it came from the magazine of the Junior Red Cross of Canada, which describes the peace cairn in the international park between Manitoba and North Dakota.

Her initiative, faith in international effort, optimism combined with simple modesty and capacity for hard and detailed work made her an effective pioneer in the fields of women's co-operation and public health.

Jamaica Visitor

Miss Fannie Hurst, noted American novelist, is enjoying a visit at "Cloude," the home of Major and Mrs. Borge Rohde at Oracabessa, on the north shore of Jamaica, B.W.I. While there she will do a little work on a new novel which she expects to complete after her return to the United States. Her hostess, Ruth Bryan Rohde, is a former U.S. Minister to Denmark, who now lives in Jamaica and who returned to the island with Miss Hurst, via Avianca Airlines.

New York List Keeps on Upside

NEW YORK (AP)—Some shares gained more than a point today as stock market prices moved generally higher.

Rails were among the stronger issues. Oils, steels and motors also rose.

Canadian stocks were higher. Dome Mines and International Nickel both were ahead ¼, Distillers Seagram advanced ⅛ and Canadian Pacific was up ⅜. Hiram Walker slipped ⅛ and McIntyre remained unchanged.

Canadian issues on the American stock exchange showed little change. Lake Shore, Giant Yellowknife and Royalite Oil each remained unchanged.

Industrials Fade On Toronto Board

TORONTO (CP).—Fading industrials featured trading toward the close of the Toronto market.

Golds and a handful of uraniums were the only strong sections. Industrials braced slightly after a sharp dip earlier. Base metals and western oils also showed some improvement but still had minor index declines.

Industrials erased part of their index losses with gains in foods and textiles. Papers, steels, banks and manufacturing companies were a bit weaker.

Golds held firm on the strength of gains by key issues.

Base metals traded actively for a small index loss.

Graham-Bousquet led gainers in uraniums.

Western oils showed a 2-1 majority of losses in a wide list of issues traded. Jupiter slipped 13 cents. Gridoil was a standout with a 45-cent gain.

Metals, Papers Slip Down at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Senior metals and papers led the stock market to lower ground in dull afternoon dealings today.

Beverages, senior oils, steels and banks followed the trend set down by the slipping metal and paper issues. Carriers and miscellaneous industrials were unchanged and utilities were irregular.

Mines continued to reflect the lower industrial tone. Changes were generally limited to pennies. Western oils continued to hover around dead-centre.

National Ex. Leads Dull Stock Session

National Exploration was the chief trader on Vancouver stock exchange today and even activity was at a minimum on the uraniums. At noon National Exploration was 64 bid.

Other noon quotations: Estella, 47-50; Doreen, 27-29; Beaver Lodge, 147-150; Fargo, 2.70-2.75; Del Rio, 2.75-2.82, and Chartr, 1.60-1.70.

London Quiet, Steady, Firm

LONDON (Reuters) — The London stock exchange today experienced a quiet start to the new account and there was scarcely a tendency in many sections. Government securities provided the main interest.

Foreign bonds were dull. Industrials were slightly higher. The remainder of the market was steady to firm.

Closing prices: Babcock & Wilcox 63s 3d Boots Pure Drug 20s 1½d, Canadian Pacific $48½, Central Mining £1 7/16, Consolidated Goldfields 44s 5d, Courtaulds 38s 6d, Hudson's Bay Co. 95s, Imperial Chemical 42s 10½d, Imperial Tobacco 53s, 4½d, Metal Box 56s 9d, Mexican Eagle 2ls 4½d, Rand Mines 70s. Bonds: British 2½s Consols £81⅝, British 3½s War Loans £81⅝, British Fundings 4s 1960-1990 £99 3/16.

Government Bonds Ease at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Government issues were easier today on the Montreal bond market with the long-term issues slipping slightly. The corporate market was firmer with the exception of CPR 3½s and BA Oil. Trading was moderate.

BUSINESS CAPSULE

By E. McLEAN, Times Business Editor

Decision This Summer On Big B.C. Project

Go-ahead signal on Frobisher Ltd.'s proposed multi-million dollar metallurgical industry in B.C.'s northwestern corner could be given within a month or two.

Quebec Metallurgical Industries Ltd., a Frobisher subsidiary, and Ventures Ltd., which holds a 13.1 per cent interest in QMI, plan to bring ore from all over the world for refining at multi-million dollar smelters to be built at Tulsequah on Taku Inlet.

Eight survey parties now are in the Atlin Lake-Taku Lake-Lake Labarge basin, which drains into Yukon River. Hydro-electric potential of the basin is calculated at 5,000,000 horsepower.

Later this summer two additional parties will survey proposed harbor and factory sites around Tulsequah on Taku Inlet.

Taku Inlet mostly is in the Alaska Panhandle, but Tulsequah is in B.C., 55 miles north-east of Juneau, Alaska.

LICENSE PROMISED

"If the survey work shows the feasibility of the over-all plan, applications will be completed for a conditional water license from B.C. and a priority permit from the Federal government which have been promised," J. Ross Tolmie told shareholders of Ventures Ltd. at Toronto today. Mr. Tolmie is counsel for the two firms.

Two federal-chartered firms have been formed for the project. North West Power Corporation will develop the water-power resources and Yukon Metallurgical Industries Ltd. will carry on the metallurgical work.

QMI's vice-president L. J. Lichty is in charge of QMI's electric-smelting research laboratory established near Ottawa in 1948. He told today's meeting "the increase in price of coke has tended to narrow the difference in cost of pig iron from the blast furnace and iron from the electric furnace."

WAY SEEMS CLEAR

He added: "It is reasonable to expect that this difference will be further reduced as new techniques are evolved for the reduction of iron oxides in the electric furnace.

"With clean iron concentrates low in sulphur and phosphorus, which is available on the West Coast, and with low-cost electric power and ocean shipping, the way seems clear to produce pig iron or steel ingot at a cost that will permit competition in world markets."

QMI got a Dominion Water Powers Branch survey permit December 29, 1952, for preparation of preliminary sketch plans, general layout plans and specifications for preparation of an application for a Dominion water license."

B.C. WATER RESERVED

Last April 17, Mr. Tolmie told today's meeting, B.C. government by order-in-council "confirmed its previous verbal permit by specifically reserving the unrecorded waters of Taku River, Teslin Lake, Atlin Lake, Taku Arm of Tagish Lake, Bennett Lake, Primrose River, Takhini River, Kusawa River, Tatshenshini River and Alsek River."

If this summer's surveys prove the feasibility of the project, specifications will be prepared next winter for a 25,000-h.p. pioneer plant, Mr. Lichty said. This plant would be scheduled to go into operation in October, 1955.

IN FIVE STAGES

Development of a total of 4,300,000 horsepower of electrical energy would be undertaken in five progressive stages.

First stage — 100,000-h.p. obtained by damming Atlin Lake—would begin September 1955, and be completed in summer of 1958.

Second stage, 170,000 h.p., is planned for September 1960 completion. Third stage would provide 1,690,000 h.p. by means of a dam at junction of Yukon and Teslin Rivers. It would be scheduled for completion in 1962.

No dates have been set for final stages which would raise electrical output to 4,300,000 h.p.

Initial production of the Tulsequah smelter would be 25,000 tons of ferro-alloys a year. Quebec Metallurgical, Frobisher Limited and other associated companies are acquiring interests in ore bodies in many parts of the world to feed the smelter.

The firm expects to be able to treat low-grade bauxite ore to produce refined alumina with ferro-silicon as a by-product. A base metal smelter could treat ore from other countries and also "refine the present and future production of lead, copper, zinc, cobalt and nickel from mining areas in B.C. and the Yukon."

Use of Iodized Salt Reduces Thyroid Ills of Youngsters

A certain proportion of persons who have simple enlargements of the thyroid gland in the neck will sometime develop what is commonly known as toxic goiter or Graves' disease.

There is almost undoubtedly less toxic goiter today than there was even 20 or 25 years ago, and a large part of the credit for this can be given to the smaller number of those persons with simple thyroid enlargements.

NUMBER REDUCED

This, in turn, appears to be principally the result of the wider use of iodized salt, particularly by children, which greatly reduces the number of simple thyroid enlargements.

This is a good example of the prevention of disease, or preventive medicine, as it is sometimes called.

Many years ago studies carried out in Michigan showed that school children in counties where the iodine was practically absent from the water had a high proportion of thyroid enlargement.

In Houghton County where iodine was almost entirely absent from the water, about 65 per cent of the youngsters had simple goiter; in McComb County, where the iodine content of the water was the highest of the four counties studied, only about 26 per cent of the school children had simple thyroid enlargements.

After this was discovered it was decided to urge the use of salt to which iodine had been added in homes in those counties where the iodine content of the water was low or absent. The result was an enormous drop in the frequency of goiter among the children.

It then appeared that adding iodine to table salt might be simpler. Some thought that adding iodine to the salt might be dangerous, but careful studies proved no harm. For example, one survey of over 50,000 children four years after beginning the use of iodized salt showed not a single child had developed the slightest ill effect from the use of iodized salt.

GOITER CASES USE SALT

Iodine can be added to refined salt or can be supplied by natural, unrefined salt. The latter also has been done with good results in the prevention of simple goiter. The prejudice against "medicated" salt is not justified.

Since the "natural" iodine in the food is low in some parts of the country (the Great Lakes goiter belt, in particular), this use of iodized salt has certainly proved a boon to many children who would otherwise have had trouble later.

CBC Wins TV Coronation Film 'Race'

MONTREAL (CP)—The CBC televised the first Coronation film on the N rth American continent less than eight hours after it left London by Canberra jet aircraft.

The CBC showed the film over its TV stations in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto at 1.15 p.m. PDT, at the same time feeding the program to NBC and ABC TV networks in the United States.

The CBC paid special tribute to the RCAF and the RAF for the "magnificent part their pilots and planes played in making TV history."

A speedy RCAF CF-100 flew the films from Goose Bay, Labrador, to nearby St. Hubert, a distance of 700 nautical miles, in slightly more than 1½ hours.

The RAF went all out on the trans-Atlantic hop, crossing from London to Goose Bay, 2,000 nautical miles, in slightly more than six hours. The average speed was between 510 and 520 miles an hour.

Navy Field Guns Thunder Salute At Divine Service

Navy field guns boomed a 42-gun salute, at Beacon Hill Park, Tuesday, as service men grouped for drumhead services following the Coronation parade.

Religious services were conducted by Protestant chaplain, Hon. Capt. J. L. W. MacLean and Roman Catholic services by Chaplain Harry Ploughman.

HMCS Naden Band played the Royal Salute while sweating gunners loaded and fired.

Finance Minister Einar Gunderson, representing the B.C. government, read the traditional address of loyalty.

Canada House Accorded Recognition by Queen

LONDON (BUP) — Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh gave a special nod of recognition as they drove past Canada House in Trafalgar Square Tuesday following the Coronation.

Hundreds of Canada House visitors saw the Queen's procession three times—on her way from Buckingham Palace to the abbey, from the abbey to start her five-mile Coronation drive, and again on her return through the square to the palace.

It was a cold, raw morning when the Canadian stands were opened at 5.30 a.m. Thousands of Londoners in the square were drenched in rain during the night, but their spirits lifted when the time for the Queen's procession to the abbey drew near. As happened repeatedly during her tour of Canada three years ago, the sun broke through the rain clouds just as she started for the abbey.

The Canadians crowded into a small room of Canada House to see the ceremony on two television sets.

It was raining heavily when the procession started to leave the abbey.

When Queen Elizabeth's golden coach approached Canada House on the outward trip, she was sitting on Prince Philip's right. She apparently nudged him, for he turned quickly to the right, leaned forward, and informally saluted the rambling white stone building.

As representative of the senior Dominion, Canada's armed forces had places of honor above those of the other Commonwealth contingents in the procession. Mr. St. Laurent's carriage was the last of the Commonwealth premiers before that of Sir Winston Churchill.

French Strafe Red Troops

HANOI, Indo-China (UP) — French warplanes today firebombed and machine-gunned Communist Viet Minh troops withdrawing from Laos to join rebel concentrations in the Hanoi area of Viet Nam.

The French high command reported that the bulk of the elite 304th Communist division had crossed the frontier on its retreat eastward. The division was the last major Red unit to pull out of Laos, which Communist forces virtually overran early last month.

Real name of Coco, famed Barnum and Bailey circus clown, was George Hubert Herbert. He was a native of Calcutta, India, and joined circus life at the age of three.

British Red Paper Jeers Coronation

LONDON (CP)—"The damp Coronation," jeered a banner headline in the Communist Daily Worker. "The Queen—heavily made up for the film and television camera men—rarely acknowledged the cheers of those who watched," the paper told its readers.

Sir Alexander Korda To Wed Ontario Girl

ANTIBES, France (UP)—British film magnate Sir Alexander Korda announced today his engagement to beautiful 26-year-old Alexandra Boycun, of Ontario, Canada.

The marriage will take place in Ontario in "three or four months," Korda said.

Miss Boycun, blonde and brown eyed, is the daughter of a Canadian business man.

Korda, 59 and white haired, formerly was the husband of British film star Merle Oberon. They were divorced.

Korda smiled happily as he received reporters aboard his plush yacht Elsewhere and informed them of his engagement. Sitting at his side was his future bride, enjoying a game of solitaire.

"I am extremely happy to tell you we are going to get married in Ontario in three or four months' time," Korda said.

He said that today they would eat a handsome Coronation cake, thus celebrating "two happy occasions at the same time."

Sitting in the living room of his yacht decorated with pictures of Queen Elizabeth, Korda said he met Miss Boycun four years ago in London.

"No, I have never acted either in cinema or on the stage—and never will," Miss Boycun said in answer to a question.

Motor-Bike Busters Ride Riotous Rodeo

Man's mastery of the machine was proved again by some 20 members of the Victoria Motorcycle Club at a motorcycle rodeo, staged Tuesday afternoon as a Coronation feature at Macdonald Park.

The club members went through their entire book of tricks in presenting a two-hour show for the 1,800 on hand.

Daredevil Al Lewis was the individual star. He turned in a fireman act, climbing up and over a seven-foot, five-rung ladder as his bike sped across the grassy infield, and then returned to wind up the show by crashing through a flaming, one-inch boardwall. The latter stunt, he had performed only four times before.

The veteran Reg Shanks provided added thrills with his display of solo stunts and sidecar tricks.

Twelve-year-old Barry Bissenden, son of club member Malcolm Bissenden, won the applause of everyone with his display of acrobatics on a bike piloted by Les Blow.

EIGHT IN ROW

Roy Chester's ramp jump over eight men lying flat on their backs caused considerable excitement, and Merle Thomas' ride through a flaming hoop was another attraction.

Most popular performers from the children's point of view were Ron Bissenden and Art Carrington, who turned out as clowns for the show.

Other featured trick artists were Steve Collins, Vern Amor, Ian Hjorslev, Charlie Arnold and Dave Stewart.

A "hitch-hiker special" found no less than 13 men on one motorbike.

May Queen Doreen Rogers and her court visited the rodeo during the course of the afternoon. The program was arranged by Ron Bissenden and Bert Waller.

Churchill in His Finery

Garbed in uniform of the Cinque Ports, British Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill leaves Buckingham Palace en route to Westminster Abbey and Coronation of Queen Elizabeth. Among his other decorations the 78-year-old statesman is wearing the star of the Order of the Garter on left side of tunic beneath row of medals. (AP wirephoto.)

EVEN MALIK IMPRESSED

Sir Winston in Regalia Stately as 100-Gun Ship

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill, a proud old lion of Empire acclaimed his young Queen, his eyes brimming with emotion.

The man who served Queen Victoria more than half a century ago repeated once again Tuesday what for him were magic words: "God save the Queen!"

Then he walked slowly from Westminster Abbey in the procession of the newly-crowned Queen Elizabeth II. As he left, Churchill symbolized for the 7,500 persons there much of the chivalry of Britain's past. He seemed somehow to represent the tides of history all in his own person.

In his deep blue velvet robes of the Order of the Garter, Sir Winston was in that moment the perfect knight of valiant service.

It befell Prince Bernhardt to pay the perfect gracious tribute to Britain's 78 year-old wartime leader.

The Netherlands prince was seated in the choir facing the altar. As Churchill slowly marched out, Prince Bernhardt bowed to him. Churchill, slightly startled, halted for a moment, then bowed in return.

Seen in the robes of the Garter—the world's most exclusive order of chivalry — it was easy to understand why Churchill recently accepted a knighthood. As a knight he could show with a sense of completeness his homage to his 27-year-old sovereign.

Churchill's entry into the ancient abbey was almost as spectacular as his exit. A spectator commented:

"What a magnificent sight he is: As impressive as a 100-gun ship of the line."

The tag fits. He did remind one of an ancient ship returned from hard battles.

RoKs Kick Last Reds Off Top of Gook's Castle

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—South Korean infantrymen kicked the last remaining North Koreans off Luke the Gook's Castle today to end the current Communist drive on the eastern front.

Other South Korean troops on the central front threw back fresh Communist attacks. Small patrol fights were reported along the entire 155-mile Korean batteline.

Superforts from Okinawa led other Allied planes in bombing positions behind the Communist central front in the Kumhwa sector where the Reds had made two-company attacks on the RoKs.

Fifth Air Force headquarters reported that Allied warplanes had dropped at least 1,000,000 pounds of bombs on Communist targets during the past 24 hours.

From dawn Tuesday until dawn today the planes flew 632 sorties, carrying out 402 during daylight hours. Light bombers and superforts followed in the darkness, with 34 of the lighter craft dropping 170,000 pounds along the front.

The term "Crossroads of the Pacific" is applied to the Hawaiian Islands.

Police Holding Calgary Man After Terror Episode

CALGARY (CP) — Edward James Garrow, 20, of Calgary, was in hospital under police guard Tuesday night being treated for cuts suffered during a bizarre episode of terror in Calgary's Riverside district Monday night.

Police said Garrow will face two charges of assault and two charges of wilful damage as a result of an escapade attributed to delirium tremens.

Police said Garrow consumed two bottles of liquor with a companion and then assaulted two strangers, attempted to set a fire in a garage, smashed a store window and two car windows.

Police tracked Garrow to his home where he was found lying on his bed bleeding profusely from wrist and arm cuts.

Shriners Wear Badge As Symbol of Honor

The Shriners are coming to Victoria this week.

And don't think a Shriner is lacking in politeness if you see him wearing his fez indoors or on occasions when you think a hat should not be worn.

With a fez it is different. It is a hallmark. He must wear it on all occasions in which the Shrine as a body joins.

Penalties for violating this rule are usually certain and painful.

He must not remove his fez indoors or in salutation.

He must not wear it, however, in any place where he could not willingly take his wife or daughter, or be seen by them.

A woman wearing the Shrine emblem is on a high plane.

To a Shriner it places her under his special care and protection. Its presence does not license him to speak, but it compels a constant watchfulness over her safety and comfort.

It is a proud boast of the order that a woman wearing a Shrine insignia may travel alone from the Atlantic to the Pacific free from insult and annoyance and never beyond a silent, unseen, constant ward and watch.

Vancouver Man Killed By Flames

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Metro Rohatynsky, 30, was burned to death Tuesday in a fire that gutted a city home.

Police and the fire marshal's office investigated the fire and said the man apparently fell asleep in a chesterfield with a cigarette burning.

The chesterfield caught fire and the victim apparently stumbled to his feet, but collapsed from smoke suffocation.

U.S. Stratojets Start Historic Flight to England

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—Fifteen B-47 stratojets—the world's fastest atomic bombers—streaked away from MacDill air force base today on the first leg of a history-making mass flight to England.

The squadron of six jet planes, one of them piloted by the officer who was skipper on the first nonstop round-the-world flight in 1949, was to be followed by 15 more B-47's on each of the next two days. Actual time in the air on the 4,580 statute-mile trip, to be broken at Limestone, Me., was scheduled as eight hours 59 minutes for an average of about 500 miles an hour. Top speed of the B-47 is more than 600 m.p.h.

Together the 45 planes made up the 306th medium bombardment wing, the air force's first entirely jet-propelled strategic bomber outfit.

Gaiety Follows Solemnity for Most Canadians

By The Canadian Press

Canadians dedicated themselves to the Queen on Coronation Day in solemn church services across the land and celebrated the joyous day with military parades and ceremonies.

Thousands went to morning devotion under the sunny skies in Eastern Canada but rain in the West darkened the day for many Prairie communities.

Many Coronation Day parents were thinking of naming their babies Elizabeth or Philip. The governor-general has promised the gift of a silver spoon to each baby born in Canada on that day.

Newspapers bulged with stories of the Coronation ceremony and pictures of the scene, many of them relayed from Britain by wirephoto.

TURNOUT DISAPPOINTING

It was a general holiday and throngs attended sports events. But the 26,000 who saw E. P. Taylor's Canadiana win the 94th renewal of the Queen's Plate at Woodbine Park in Toronto was a disappointing turnout compared with the 50,000 expected.

Another 11,000 in Toronto watched an International Baseball League doubleheader between Toronto Maple Leafs and Buffalo Bisons. In Montreal, golf fans saw the opening round of the 36-hole Canada Cup international twosome matches. Quebec's observances began with a special mass in the Roman Catholic Basilica of Notre Dame. Archbishop Maurice Roy urged worshippers to "give our sovereign an allegiance filled with confidence and affection."

Anglicans attended a Coronation service in Holy Trinity Cathedral.

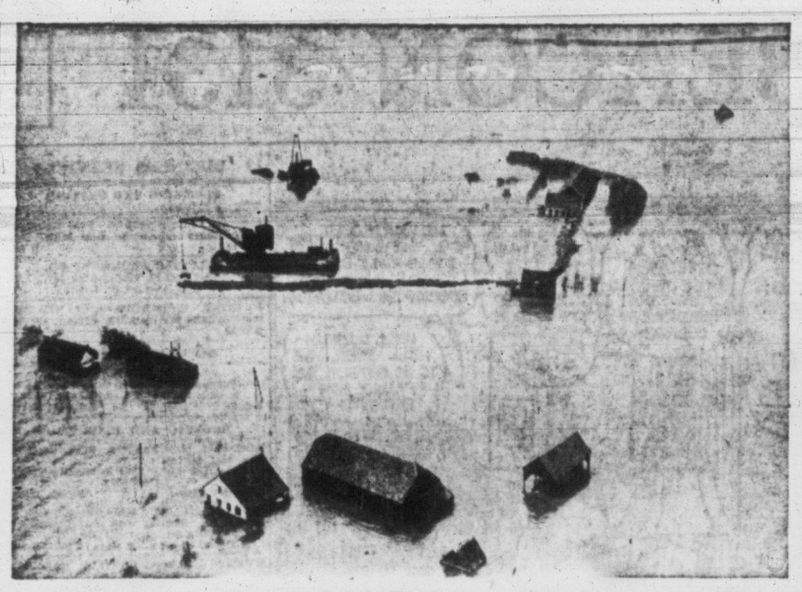
Montrealers watched a military parade after attending morning services conducted by Very Rev. G. H. Dowker, Anglican Dean of Montreal, in Christ Church Cathedral, and Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montrea in St. James Cathedral.

ETHNIC SERVICES

People of Ukrainian, Hungarian and Yugoslav birth went to special church services in Ontario and the West. More than 1,000 from 39 ethnic groups in Vancouver had their own folk dancing and songs.

Because of the difference in time across the country, Newfoundland, Britain's oldest colony, was first to begin the celebration. In St. John's a third of the homes were decked with flags or portraits of the Queen.



Dutch Still Fighting Flood

Operating a crane from a floating barge, workmen near Schelphoek, Holland, erect a new dike from the muddy soil of a farm which has been flooded since last February's disastrous floods. The old dike, severed by the sea, can be seen in the background. Until the new dike can be built the sea will flow in. (NEA photo.)

New Canadian Cabbage Gets Wide Acclaim

By JOHN E. BIRD
British United Press Staff Correspondent

OTTAWA (BUP) — The department of agriculture reported today that a new variety of Canadian cabbage will grace dinner plates in many parts of the world by 1954.

The new cabbage, to be known as Canadian Acre, was developed by the division of horticulture at the department's central agricultural experimental farm here.

The department said some supplies of seed will be available for distribution to growers in Canada, the United States and Europe early in 1954.

The new type cabbage, the department said, has been enthusiastically received in the United States and Britain. Once seed is available, other countries are expected to request supplies.

Supplies of the seed were scheduled for distribution some time in 1953, but an act of nature made this impossible.

DELAYED BY DROUGHT

After being developed and tested in Ottawa, a limited supply of seed was placed with the Co-operative Seed Growers of British Columbia for multiplication in 1950. The seed was planted that year, but during the following season the area experienced a severe drought and there was no crop.

This year small lots of seed are being supplied to several growers in Canada, the United States and Europe. Additional supplies will also be grown at Ottawa "so that by 1954 it is expected that a limited amount will be available for the commercial cabbage grower," the department said.

TELEPHONE GALS WORK IN SHORTS

GULFPORT, Miss. (UP)—Shapely telephone operators manned the Southern Bell Telephone Co. switchboards here in shorts today and sipped cold drinks under ice-cooled breezes.

Sixty-three women operators went back to work Tuesday after a 26-hour walkout when the company agreed to their demands that:

1. They be allowed to wear shorts inside the telephone exchange.

2. They be served lemonade and cold drinks during the day.

3. Racks of ice be set in front of the exchange fans.

The women walked off their jobs Monday and said they would not go back until the 94-degree temperature of their working quarters was cooled.

The swordfish is a fierce fighter when wounded, and has been known to drive his sharp upper jaw through several thicknesses of oak planking.

"PLEASANT"

NEW YORK (UP)—A job applicant at the Emerson Radio & Phonograph Corporation was asked to fill out an employment questionnaire.

One of the questions was: "Have you ever been arrested? If so, why?" He answered: "Yes, for [illegible]." "Disposition?" "Pleasant."

Traditional 'Lion' on Rampage As Chinatown Marks Coronation

BY HUMPHRY DAVY

Chinatown was cleansed of all evil spirits on Coronation Day.

A Chinese lion with fiery eyes and snapping jaws routed out all the evil spirits from the alleys, streets and buildings of the city's colorful Oriental district Monday afternoon.

The lion came out of his lair especially for the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth and like all loyal animals of royal blood did the special clean-up job in honor of the Commonwealth's ruling sovereign.

Within the lion were specially-trained members of the Vancouver Freemasons' Athletic Club who were invited here by the Chinese community for the Coronation celebrations.

To the beat of a drum and cymbals, the lion danced, frolicked and pranced about on Fisgard Street between Government and Store Streets before an audience of 1,000.

The lion's dance proved an endless source of amusement for both Chinese and Occidental children who watched with their parents.

The youngsters laughed most when the monster took a snooze in the centre of the streets.

"The lion according to Chinese legend is a friendly animal and a symbol of good luck," an old, scholarly Chinese explained between puffs of his pipe. "Through the medium of motion and action he is telling people to enjoy themselves . . . to relax.

The elderly Chinese with deep furrowed cheeks paused for a moment.

"Do you see those children laughing," he added, pointing to a group with the stem of his pipe. "They understand the lion's dance better than the grown-ups. That's because they haven't lost the art of relaxing yet."

As the lion continued with his dance up and down the street, it wasn't long before the fun-loving Chinese caught on the mood of the day and were really whooping it up in Chinatown. The lion had performed his duty in making the people happy and driving out evil spirits.

The Chinese drill team in their bright costumes performed on the street.

Then Chinese boys gave a demonstration with quarter-staffs and a fist fight in pantomime. There were also some sword and pike dances.

The dances, a Chinese instructor explained, were a form of physical training. They disciplined a boy and taught him the art of self-defense, he said.

The entire show took place on the street decorated with hundreds of flags and pennants. Many Chinese watched the dance from the balconies of the old red brick building on Fisgard Street.

After the show, many of the Chinese continued the celebrations in their clubs. And here to the sound of Oriental music, they feasted and talked of old times and past celebrations held in Victoria.

Menzies' Position In Australian Senate Aided

BRISBANE (Reuters).—The government coalition of the Liberal and Country parties retained control of the Australian federal senate as a result of the Queensland votes announced today. Bad weather caused delay in counting the Queensland votes in the election which took place last month. Prime Minister Robert Menzies captured three of the five Queensland coalition seats, and their strength in the new senate will now be 31 against 29 for the Labor opposition. Pre-election standing was 32-28.

Queen Seen On Balcony Six Times

LONDON (CP)—The Queen, still smiling after her exacting 17-hour Coronation Day, came to her balcony Tuesday night at midnight in response to her subjects' cries of "We want the Queen."

The young monarch made her sixth appearance on the balcony, with her sailor husband at her side, to say goodnight to 80,000 cheering people who refused to go home despite wet, bitter weather.

Then, at 10 minutes past midnight, the balcony floodlights cut out and the great crowd sang, "God Save the Queen" and ebbed away.

The Queen gave her goodnight encore after her fifth trip to the balcony at 11 p.m. failed to quiet the people.

Prince Charles appeared on the balcony with a medal on his chest. His mother had just pinned the Coronation Medal to his tunic.

Mimi Bavin and Jean Barlow, who traveled to England last year with the Elgar Choir, will sing with the Rotary Boys' and Girls' Choirs at a concert in Oak Bay Junior High auditorium Saturday night at 8, under auspices of Queen Alexandra Solarium.

BRIDGE LESSON

-By Oswald Jacoby

One of my favorite words in the English language is "serendipity"—the ability to find good things that you weren't looking for. This wonderful gift came to declarer's rescue in today's hand.

West opened the queen of hearts, and South won in his own hand with the king. Declarer drew three rounds of trumps with the ace, queen and jack of spades, after which he got to dummy with the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart. South continued by taking the top clubs and ruffing a club in dummy.

At this moment the lead was in dummy and declarer had one trump and three diamonds in each hand. He intended to lead a low diamond from dummy and finesse the eight of diamonds from his own hand in order to thrust West into the lead.

If this manoeuvre could be executed, West would have to return a diamond and give declarer a free finesse. (If West could return anything else, declarer could ruff in dummy and discard a diamond from his own hand).

Much to South's disappointment, East put up the ten of diamonds when that suit was led from dummy. South swallowed his disappointment and played the low diamonds from his hand. There was no need to finesse the queen of diamonds at this time, for South would have a chance to finesse if East led another diamond.

Here is where serendipity came to declarer's rescue. East couldn't lead another diamond. This was a piece of good luck that South hadn't been looking for. It didn't matter whether East returned a heart or a club; in either case declarer could discard his queen of diamonds while dummy ruffed.

While you're congratulating South for his good luck, however, don't forget to give him credit for playing the hand properly. It was necessary to strip out the hearts and clubs before attacking the diamonds; otherwise East would have exited safely with a heart or a club, and South would have lost a second diamond trick.

HERE'S HOW
Buy Yourself a Good Reconditioned Motorcycle

Our stock is big—too big—and we need the space—so we are prepared to make big sacrifices. We have a good selection of popular makes ranging in price from $125 to $500

"JUST IMAGINE"
On one of these bikes you could travel 30 miles a day for approximately 10 cents for gas, and you wouldn't have to take your lunch to work. You could enjoy it at home.

AN AGE OF GREATNESS

No. 128—Truce Talks

Tyrone the rebel and Essex the disgraced favorite met at a ford on the river Lagan. Essex stood on the bank, Tyrone rode into the water and no man heard their discussion. A truce was made, and Essex agreed to take Tyrone's peace terms to England. They included demands which would have ended England's control over Irish affairs. The Queen when she heard, was furious at the news. Essex had been told he must not come home without permission. But Essex had always disobeyed orders with impunity. With only six companions he hastened back and burst into the Queen's bed-chamber early in the morning, throwing himself on his knees. Elizabeth, taken by surprise, gave him her hand to kiss. But before the day ended the storm had broken. He was placed under arrest. For the first time Essex realized that he had gone too far. A sick man, he wrote to Elizabeth humbly soliciting her pardon—and got no reply. He sent her a gift—and it was returned. His wife, who had just had a child, was forbidden to see him. Pamphlets in his defense were prohibited, although public prayers were offered for his restoration to favor.

Leo (July 22 to August 21). Careful planning with other person results in your finding way to bring in needed cash through joint ventures. This will help you co-ordinate your ambitions with income.

Virgo (August 22 to September 22). Don't be discouraged by broken promises of your associates. Later, a good friend together with well-balanced partner give you a boost toward securing your aims.

Libra (September 23 to October 22). Seize the present time to impress influential persons with your perseverence. Don't be lured from tasks by distant appeals.

Scorpio (October 23 to November 21). Domineering attitude with one you love results in loss of popularity with onlookers. P.M., studies, new outlets, new acquaintances bring much pleasure.

Sagittarius (November 22 to December 21). Don't let problems, worries of others get under your skin this morning. Look at their methods and profit from their mistakes. Help them with common sense procedures.

Capricorn (December 22 to January 20). Sleep late this morning if you can. Forget those endless nagging little chores and get out with jovial companion. Keep an open mind and have a good time.

Aquarius (January 21 to February 19). Refrain from spending money on pleasures during early day. By bringing more originality to performance of everyday chores you reap financial benefits later.

Pisces (February 20 to March 20). Keep quiet; don't add fuel to fire when quarrel breaks out at home between members of family during morning hours. P.M. is good for recreation, romance.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . .

Today's child should have a great deal of rest during the early years because of a very nervous physical constitution. There is an unusual amount of mental activity, enthusiasm and dexterity present which should be somewhat controlled, for the energy is easily depleted. Maturity brings out abilities along unusual lines, but teach your offspring that activities will produce better results if he or she will relax and plan goals in orderly fashion.

By Gum! It's Artistic . . .

While using chewing gum to patch chipped woodwork, Mrs. Faye Garriott of Los Angeles noticed the permanency of dried gum. Puttnig it to more artistic use, Mrs. Garriott began using gum on bas-relief paintings, as seen in the pictures below.

Mrs. Garriott pulls well-chewed gum to prepared drawing.

After molding gum on plywood board, she paints over it. Result: beautiful bas-relief painting, and plenty of jaw exercise.

THE GASPS ARE ALL FOR MARGARET

English Women Blame English Men for Conservative Gowns

By GAY PAULEY

LONDON (UP)—The British neckline is austere and apt to stay that way, despite the daring of Princess Margaret.

The Queen's younger sister has on occasion caused some gasps with her low-cut gowns. But British women in general are more conservative about cleavage. This fact stands out at such swank parties as Tuesday night's Coronation ball at the Savoy Hotel, where fashionably dressed women from America, Britain, France and other nations celebrated the coronation of Elizabeth II.

Necklines on some American women drooped to the danger point. British women played it safe.

"We're afraid to be daring," one British woman explained.

A visitor—male—from Cincinnati had another explanation.

"Necklines probably plunge as low here as at home," said Herman Newman, a University of Cincinnati professor. "But here they don't have as much to show."

The conservatism is everywhere in British fashions. The English woman prefers low or medium heels instead of the higher ones of her American sister. Her hats are more sober, her suits cut on conservative lines, the colors she wears on the subdued side.

"We're just not born to be daring," Phyllis Robinson, an office employee, explained.

That apparently is why the English woman didn't catch on to the American fad for the jeweled tiara, a fashion which the Queen inspired in the United States. Tiaras which showed at Tuesday night's Coronation ball were worn by visitors from the States.

"You just don't get the British girl away from her pearls," Phyllis explained.

That goes for the Queen, the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret, who prefer pearls for most daytime wear.

Finances are partially responsible for the plainer clothes of the British woman.

A secretary who knows shorthand earns around seven pounds 10 shillings ($21) per week. A less skilled one is paid from five to six pounds ($14 to $16.80) per week.

Clothes have to wear longer and go more places.

The average British girl's dress-up frock probably is a dark, simple taffeta which she can dress up with touches of white or with the ever-present pearls. Her office outfit usually is a suit, or skirt and sweater.

"The strapless evening frock came in style for a bit," one British woman said, "but it didn't last. Our conservative dress has a lot to do with our men.

"They like to see low-cut things on other women, but not on their own girls. They like us to be smart, you know, but not too smart. They'll rave about Marilyn Monroe or Jane Russell, but they want us to look simple and sweet . . . not at all daring."

The ancient Norman capital of Rouen, located on the Seine River about 30 miles inland from the coast, was the first port of France.

German Reds Hinting Open War on Church

BY JOSEPH FLEMING

BERLIN (UP)—East German Communists have launched a violent attack on Bishop Otto Dibelius which western observers believe may herald open war on the church.

Communist propagandists accused the titular head of the German Evangelical Church of slandering the Soviet zone government and aiding the "war" campaign. Both offenses are punishable crimes in east Germany. Debelius is Bishop of Berlin and the east German province of Brandenburg.

The Communists, in editorials published in their controlled press, warned the church not to take the side of the western "imperialists."

In a hint that they might be planning to split the Protestant church and form a government-controlled Soviet zone church, the Communists quoted Deputy Premier Walter Ulbricht as saying that Christian morality is incompatible with the policies being carried out in western Germany.

Ulbricht told a Communist party convention that the east German church may not take orders from the west. The Communists' statements of November 26 accused Dibelius of doing just that.

WROTE TO STALIN

Ostensibly, they attacked Dibelius for the criticisms he made of slave labor conditions in a speech in London November 19. The Berliner Zeitung said he used the London trip to "peddle hate reports" about east Germany. The Neue Zeit said the speech was designed "to aid the war party in its slander campaign against the German democratic republic."

However, Dibelius long has been in disfavor for his militant stand against Communist attempts to infiltrate the church and his outspoken criticism of totalitarian policies of the Communist-run East German government. He not only has voiced these criticisms from East German pulpits but has gone over the head of Communist leaders to Premier Stalin. This, more than anything, is said to have infuriated Communist leaders.

In a letter written last year, but just released by the church, Dibelius told Stalin that Communist oppression in East Germany is endangering Soviet-German relations.

CHURCHES HARASSED

He told Stalin that East German Communists arrest people without warrants, hold them witho due process of law, try them secretly and refuse prisoners religious consolation.

Until now the Communists have harassed both the Catholic and Protestant churches without engaging in all-out conflict as in eastern Europe. They have barred religious publications from the mails, refused to allow clergymen educated in West German seminaries to occupy Soviet Zone pulpits, barred East Germans from attending all-German church meetings in the west, imprisoned about 40 clergymen, and banned religious youth organizations.

As 80 per cent of East Germans are Protestant, the Evangelical Church has been the main target of the Communist campaign.

With Dibelius occupying a pulpit in East Berlin, the Communists appear to have little chance of converting the Evangelical Church in East Germany into a pliant Communist tool. Therefore, allied officials fear that the Communists might be planning some action to deprive Dibelius of his post and form an East German church.

German 'Volkswagen' Adapted for Canada

OTTAWA (BUP)—The German Volkswagen company has established a national car sales headquarters in Canada, and officials said today an assembly plant soon will be set up in the Toronto area.

The Volkswagen, which made its first appearance on the Canadian scene during the Canadian National Exhibition last fall proved an instant hit with small-car enthusiasts, officials said.

The car, ruggedly built and with five-passenger capacity, sells for under $1,600 in Canada and already is providing stiff competition in the Toronto area for British cars of similar size.

The German car is a little larger than the standard British models and, mechanics said, better adapted to rough Canadian roads and the severe winter.

AIR-COOLED

The German car has three features much to the liking of Canadian buyers: It is air-cooled, which eliminates the constant threat in Canada of frozen radiators in winter; it has independent wheel suspension, invaluable on rough gravel roads, and a rear-mounted engine, which makes the car heavier in the back than front and thus provides better traction than most vehicles on icy roads.

A mechanic here summed the car up this way:

"The Volkswagen was tested and not found wanting on the Russian front in the last war. That would make it equal to the worst roads and most extreme temperatures."

Known in Canada as "Volkswagen V.W. Limited," the company has its headquarters in Toronto, in the same quarters once occupied by the Packard agency. At present, "V.W." is building up a Canada-wide sales organization, as well as service shops and distribution agencies.

"When sales reach a certain point an assembly plant will be set up," an official said. "And from the way things look, it will be in the not too distant future."

Since importation of parts is cheaper than completed vehicles, the price of German cars could conceivably go even lower when an assembly plant is established.

BIG IMPORT DUTIES

At present, there is 17½ per cent duty on the Volkswagen coming into Canada. British car manufacturers pay no duties on the vehicles they ship to Canada.

Canadian objection to the smaller British makes is that they are not strong enough to withstand the battering of side roads. In Britain, the least important roads are generally paved, while in Canada most non-arterial mileage is of gravel.

There have been reports that Volkswagen intended to produce its cars in Canada from scratch, but they were discounted here.

It was pointed out that the lower labor costs in Germany would more than make up for the duties imposed by the Canadian government on parts coming into the country.

In addition, transportation of parts from Germany to Canada is relatively cheap. Two German shipping lines have trans-Atlantic vessels which sail right through the St. Lawrence canal system to Toronto and the head of the Great Lakes.

War canoes jockey for even start as braves open annual regatta.

Ancient Indian War Canoes, New Navy Gear Thrill Crowd at Gorge

Ancient, modern and traditional demonstrations of skill and stamina in water sports were provided for Victoria's annual regatta, Tuesday afternoon.

Coronation Day crowds who lined the banks of the Gorge cheered themselves hoarse at the aquatic exhibition which was sponsored by the RCN, the Native Sons of Canada and South Vancouver Island Indian tribes.

Eleven-paddle war canoes like the ones that once carried northern tribes on Vancouver Island raids carried teams of panting braves again on Saturday. . . . But it was not for blood they panted, for sport, and prizes of white-man's wampum, this time. The ladies showed they could paddle their own canoes, too.

In contrast to the warrior fleet of another day were the exhibitions by modern warfare experts, the navy's frogmen, underwater demolition teams. With their own breathing tanks strapped to their backs, three nylon-garbed sailors proved they are as dangerous below water as above.

The traditional entry of the navy in the regatta was the whaler races. Navy men have been pulling clinker-built admiralty pattern whalers across the harbors of the world since navy sport began. And traditionally, to the sadistic delight of the crowd, they have tossed the coxwain of the winning boat overside.

Shell races, participated in by several B.C. rowing clubs were a further attraction. With exception of the 8-man shells which raced to the Gorge bridge from the Inner Harbor, the races were nine-tenths of a mile.

Men in Scarlet Lead Procession As Duncan Swarms for Coronation

DUNCAN—A crowd of 5,000 jammed Duncan streets Coronation Day to see a parade of motorized army equipment, Sea Cadets, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, and more than 200 district war veterans.

Sgt. T. D. Brunton and five district RCMP officers in their scarlet tunics led the parade of 81 entries past the reviewing stand, where Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP, took the salute.

With General Pearkes on the reviewing stand were Air Marshal Sir Philip Livingston, FRCS, and Col. M. E. Dopping-Hepenstal, 80, veteran of the Boer War.

Following the parade the crowd gathered at the agricultural grounds to hear a broadcast of the Queen's message, and an address by Sir Philip on the significance of the Coronation.

He saw in the climbing of Mount Everest by a British party a portent of another Elizabethan era.

STABILIZING INFLUENCE

He said the Crown provided a stable focus of attention that served to hold the Commonwealth together. To those who thought the Coronation pageant was overdone for a democracy, he said democracy is just "living and working together in harmony, and being able to carry out one's duties without the innumerable interruptions and interferences of a totalitarian state."

The day's program included the firing of a royal salute, presentation of three one-act plays on an open-air stage, and a public dance in the evening.

Largest portion of the celebrating crowd attended the afternoon gymkhana, when Victoria riders and their horses swept the western classes.

TIME, PLACE, WELL MET

Freighter Tricape's Crew Had Happy Coronation Day

By PETE LOUDON

They were glad they were in harbor for Coronation Day, the officers and men of the Tricape.

It eased the homesickness, they said.

To British seamen on a British ship, a Coronation means a lot—especially this one.

For ten months, except for a day at Southampton, en route here from Rotterdam, they hadn't set foot on Commonwealth soil, and as Britain's great day neared they grew a bit dismal, felt "left out of things."

Berthing for a deck cargo of lumber in Victoria, a queen's city, where Union Jacks and red dusters fly side by side, was almost as good as being home . . . almost, but not quite.

But they had the "wireless," a friendly Commonwealth port and thousands to share in a day of honor to their Queen, so they "dressed ship," navy style, with fore and aft bunting instead of merchant ship style, in the shrouds), and they planned a "bit of a tuck in." After a day ashore, that is.

The "wireless" was blaring the wind-up of the Coronation when this reporter went aboard. Mates and engineers huddled around the set . . . half dressed, half-shaved, getting ready to join shore festivities while they listened.

A MIXED CREW

"Is the Caledonian Society nae plannin' an affairrr?" burred the Scots third officer. He is a MacLeod from Glasgow.

"When is the soccer match?" asked the second, an English Pole from London.

The Tricape is a ten thousand tonner out of London, Goulandris Brothers Line. Built in 1943 for Canada at Sorel, she has always been under a British flag . . . and her officers and men come from all parts of the empire.

She was built a Canuck and so was her skipper, Captain J. Norman Stark, but both of them reverted to Britain. Captain Stark was born in Canada, but grew up on the banks of the Clyde at Kilcraigon.

His men are from south England ports, the Channel Isles. The fourth engineer was born in India and there is a donkeyman from Hindustan. There is even a man from Eire, another donkeyman, but the crew josh that they have him "Anglicized" by now.

Yesterday, though, they were as English as plum pudding, everyone of them. They've just been to Norfolk, Va., Newport, Yokohama, Kawasaka, Curacao, Panama and Honolulu, and probably a little bit of every port rubbed off on them. But Coronation Day, the homeland shone through.

The third mate expressed it as he walked up from the docks. He stopped to breathe in the majesty of the Legislative Buildings, trimmed so vividly for the Queen's big day:

"Makes you proud of being a Briton," he said.

Commonwealth Leaders Want East-West Talks

Six-Day Conference Begins Today in London

LONDON (Reuters)—Jacob Malik, Soviet ambassador to Britain, had a half-hour meeting today with Prime Minister Churchill at 10 Downing Street.

It was learned that the meeting took place at Malik's request, but British officials declined to say what matters were discussed.

Their silence encouraged speculation that it might have had some connection with proposals for an East-West meeting, which Churchill is known to favor.

LONDON (AP)—Eight Commonwealth prime ministers, including Canada's St. Laurent, support Sir Winston Churchill's call for top-level talks between East and West, authoritative sources said tonight.

This had been the reported aim of the British prime minister as he opened a six-day conference of Commonwealth leaders with a general review of world affairs and a detailed analysis of East-West relations.

Qualified sources said Churchill hoped to win the unreserved support of Britain's eight Commonwealth partners for his project to bring about an early top-level meeting of the big powers. Churchill evidently believes he will then be in a position to speak with greater authority when he meets President Eisenhower and the French premier in Bermuda late this month.

Prime Minister St. Laurent is representing Canada at the conference. He was also at the conference last November when sterling members of the Commonwealth drew up a plan to beat the dollar shortage — a problem not shared directly by Canada.

Newcomers to today's meeting at 10 Downing Street were Jawaharlal Nehru of India, Daniel Malan of South Africa and Mohammed Ali of Pakistan. They did not attend the November conference.

Each to Make Policy Statement

Churchill was understood to have dwelt in his address on the various ways he thinks East-West political tension can be reduced and how improvement in the world situation might benefit the Commonwealth's economic position.

Reported up for discussion at the meetings here is a plan to have the Queen and Royal Family live for periods of time in the capitals of each of the self-governing countries of the Commonwealth.

Following Churchill's appraisal today of the world situation, each of the other prime ministers will make a policy statement. Particular interest will be shown in Nehru's address since he has taken a key role in seeking a Korean truce.

No announcement of the current talks is expected until they wind up next Wednesday.

Other prime ministers attending are Robert Menzies of Australia, Dudley Senanayake of Ceylon, Sir Godfrey Huggins of Southern Rhodesia, and Sidney Holland of New Zealand.

PARIS (AP)—The foreign office said today that the date of the Big Three meeting in Bermuda hinges on the outcome of France's ministerial crisis.

An informed exchange of views has been made between the United States, Britain and France on mutual subjects and it has been agreed that no positive date can be set until France has a government.

It originally had been planned for President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and the French premier to meet June 17. Since this is only two weeks away, and France has not yet selected a cabinet to replace that of Rene Mayer, a postponement has been agreed upon.

The three governments are thinking now in terms of the last half of this month, without specifying the exact dates.

Strikers Meet Council for Peace Talks

Saanich Workers Seek Compromise

Officials of the Saanich Municipal Employees Association will meet Saanich council tonight to discuss a wage settlement to end the strike of municipal employees.

The meeting will be held at 7.30 p.m. at the Municipal Hall.

Discussions to end the strike, which has tied up all municipal projects since last Thursday, began Monday. So far the association has agreed to reduce wage demands if Saanich Council will adjust wages of certain specialized workers.

The association said it is ready to accept a rate of $1.40 an hour for laborers, five cents less than originally demanded, and still below the rate paid in private industry.

The council has not yet committed itself, but has shown it is in favor of a general wage increase instead of wage adjustments to certain categories of workers.

The union will agree to this system only if the council will first appoint a wage commission to completely revise present wage rates. The union claims wages are so out of line that an over-all wage increase is not fair to some of the employees.

POJE QUITS JAIL UNDER CORONATION AMNESTY

VANCOUVER (CP)—Union official Tony Poje, jailed five weeks ago on a contempt of court charge, was released Tuesday under the Coronation amnesty.

"It wasn't bad, except for the food," he said on release.

Poje, president of the Duncan, B.C., local of the International Woodworkers of America CIO, was sentenced to three months in prison for defying a court injunction during the woodworkers' strike last summer.

He went to Oakalla prison April 28 after a seven-month legal fight. Tuesday his sentence, which had been upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada, was commuted under the Coronation amnesty ruling.

Man Battles Thieves As Crowd Looks on

Burglars Identified by Valiant Operator When Branch of Victoria Firm Robbed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dozens of Hotel Vancouver lobby-sitters stood by and watched a courageous silent alarm operator struggle with a thief Tuesday afternoon in the course of a fantastic cops-and-robbers chase.

"Not a soul moved—they just stood there with their mouths open," said 26-year-old Harvey Delmar in recounting the story of the chase.

Both thieves surprised by the unarmed operator escaped, but Delmar recognized one and tore a jacket, containing a wallet, pictures and complete identification, off the second. He later identified them from police photos, and the wanted men are still being sought.

An employee of B.C. District Telegraph and Delivery Co. Ltd., Delmar answered a silent alarm to W. J. Wilson clothing company in the Hotel Vancouver, a branch of the Victoria firm of the same name.

Entering a small storage room, the five-foot-nine, 150-pound operator confronted two thieves.

"The one I knew looked at me and said, 'You know me give me a break!' I told him, 'Yes, I know you, and I'm taking you both in'."

Delmar blocked the doorway against the kicking, punching thieves for several minutes before they managed to break through.

"Since I could identify one of them, I decided to go after the other fellow," Delmar said, "and I chased him full tilt through the lobby after ripping off his jacket."

Then began the long chase which twice crossed busy Granville Street intersections at Smithe and Nelson. Finally, at Richards and Nelson, the thief jumped into a passing taxi.

Advance Poll Opens Here on Thursday

First votes in the June 9 election will be cast Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the regular advance poll.

The advance poll for Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich will be situated at the YMCA and be open from 1 to 9 p.m. each day.

The poll is designed to allow voting by persons who will be unable to attend any poll in B.C. on June 9.

Persons who will be out of their home riding on June 9, but still in the province, will vote on election day on an absentee ballot. They can vote in whatever riding in which they happen to be.

Crowd Surprises Guards To Stop Elizabeth's Car

Heavy Festivities Program Ahead for Busy Sovereign

LONDON (UP)—A hysterically cheering crowd, still celebrating the Coronation, burst through police lines today and stopped Queen Elizabeth's open automobile as she started out to tour the Cockney district of northeast London.

Taking the thin cordon of police by surprise, the crowd surrounded the car, in which the Queen's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, sat beside her, and forced it to halt.

The Queen sat smiling serenely until mounted police edged in and cleared the roadway, and she waved as her car drove slowly off.

The radiant young woman who was crowned in Westminster Abbey Tuesday was starting a whirl of post-Coronation festivities that will last most of this summer.

Wearing a powder blue coat and a close-fitting hat of the same color, the Queen started out to tour northeast London. In succeeding days, she will tour the other three corners of her sprawling capital to let as many people as possible see her.

She had gone down The Mall, past cheering lines of people, to receive the homage of the waiting mayor of Westminster — central London — when the crowd stopped her car.

In northeast London, despite the weather, the Queen found the drab streets decorated with festive flowers, and the cheers rang as fervently as those that greeted her Tuesday.

The great day of the Coronation was over. London awoke—with many a hangover—to a rainy day after its gayest night since the Second World War victory celebration.

Elizabeth holds a great state banquet tonight in Buckingham Palace. In the next two weeks she will go to the Derby, a gala opera at the Covent Garden, "trooping the color" at the Spithead naval review and the Royal Ascot race meeting.

She will then go to Edinburgh for a "second Coronation" in Scotland.

Revelry Lasted Far Into Night

Hundreds of thousands of celebrators packed the Thames embankment Tuesday night to watch a fireworks display that cost an estimated $45,000.

Celebrities danced until 4.30 a.m. at a gala "Elizabethan fantasy" ball.

Piccadilly Circus was a focal point for revelers. One young man highlighted the Piccadilly celebration when he climbed into the golden cage around the statue of Eros and posed on the shoulder of the "God of Love."

A conga line formed at midnight.

Cars trying to push through the crowd suffered a sad fate. At least a dozen persons climbed on the roof of one automobile and a party of young men lifted another clear off the ground. The occupants were badly shaken.

Scotland Yard reported 6,783 casualties during the period of the Coronation ceremony and the parade alone. Most of them were suffering from exposure.

The figure compared favorably with the total of 9,583 casualties suffered during the 1937 Coronation of the late King George VI.

Next to Elizabeth, the biggest hit of yesterday's great show was Queen Salote of Tonga. The dark-skinned Amazon of six feet three inches rode through constant drizzles in an open carriage.

She wore a light short-sleeved dress and waved furiously to the crowds. Her broad grin never left her face.

Police said not a single case of pickpocketing was reported in the Coronation crowds.

'Gleaming' Sobriquet For Queen

LONDON (BUP) — All London was agog today with talk that Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill may have uttered a description for history when he described Elizabeth II as a "gleaming" figure.

There was immediate speculation that the young monarch would be known as "the gleaming queen" as a result of the great orator's influence.

The prime minister stressed the word "gleaming" Tuesday night as he introduced Queen Elizabeth's radio message.

"'Gracious and noble' are words familiar to us in all courtly phrasing," he said. "Tonight they have a new ring in them because we know they are true about the gleaming figure whom providence has brought to us in a time when the present is hard and the future veiled.

"It is our dearest hope that her reign shall be as glorious as her devoted subjects can help her make it. We pray to have rulers who serve, nations who comfort each other and for peoples to thrive and prosper free from fear.

"May God grant us these blessings."

Churchill raised his voice and ended with the words: "The Queen."

Would Rename Everest

LONDON (BUP)—The London Daily Herald proposed today that Mount Everest, world's highest peak conquered Friday by a British expedition, be renamed Mount Elizabeth.

RCAF Relocates Training Schools

OTTAWA (CP)—Two RCAF flying training schools in Western Canada will be relocated this summer, air force headquarters announced today.

No. 2 flying training school, at Gimli, Man., will move to Moose Jaw, Sask., in late June. No. 4 flying training school, now operating from Calgary, will move to Penhold, Alta., in July.

Some advance units of No. 2 FTS have already begun operations at Moose Jaw.

Engineers Overruled By Works Minister CCF Nominee Claims

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With the second provincial election in just more than a year only six days away, British Columbia's politicians are at the firing line in full strength again after a brief Coronation lull.

Charges and counter-charges, replies to charges and to counter-charges, rattled back and forth across the hustings.

In the Fraser Canyon centre of Lytton, Gordon Dowding, CCF candidate for Lillooet, charged that Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi has overruled his department engineer in issuing special permits to overload trucks on the Fraser Canyon highway.

He said bridges were being overloaded over the "extreme limit" by as much as 10,000 pounds.

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks, in a speech at Agassiz, said the Social Credit Party plans a complete survey of Fraser Valley dyking and drainage problems.

Liberal Leader Arthur Laing said in Dewdney that Mr. Wicks' promise to protect Canadians against American labor was unnecessary and meaningless.

"Not one American working man can come into such projects as the "Trans-Mountain oil pipeline until approved by the department of labor at Ottawa," he said.

Another Liberal, Jay Gould, candidate in the Vancouver-Burrard riding, said "despite the kicking around it has had as a political football, BCHIS has survived because it is sound and solid."

Another Burrard candidate, Alex B. Macdonald, of the CCF party, said "Social Credit penny-pinching policies may cost B.C. millions a year."

Referring to the part-time Labor Relations Board, he said "One strike could easily run to a million dollars."

Addressing a meeting at Roberts Creek, CCF candidate Tony Gargrave for Mackenzie, said the Liberal party had "no right" to ask for endorsement at the polls in this election. He said they were running the same candidates and believed in the same things they did when they were rejected by the voters in the last election.

Ike on TV Tonight

U.S. President Dwight Eisenhower's television broadcast reporting to the nation will be carried on KING-TV Seattle tonight at 6.30. (See story page 2.)

A FAT GIFT FROM WINNIE

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill had to think of an appropriate little gift for the officers and non-commissioned officers of the Queen's Own Hussars, who escorted him in the Coronation procession.

Apparently he speculated what he would like to get from a prime minister if he were a young serviceman, something to touch the heart.

So every Hussar who went to 10 Downing Street today to be photographed got from him a very large, imperial-looking cigar.

Vishinsky Silent Over Future as He Sails Home

NEW YORK (UP) — Andrei Y. Vishinsky, chief Soviet Union delegate to the United Nations, sailed for home today on a sudden trip and declined to say when he would return.

Leaving aboard the Cunard liner Queen Elizabeth, Vishinsky brushed off newsmen and to questions on whether he planned to return to the United States, replied only: "I hope so." The Soviet delegate previously had said the journey home was due to "family matters."

Semyon K. Tsarapkin, Vishinsky's aide, also was asked if Vishinsky planned to resume his duties at the United Nations.

"I'm sure he is," Tsarapkin said. "I don't know exactly when. It depends on his decision, on his family."

Tsarapkin confirmed reports that Vishinsky's wife was ill, but said he did not know the nature or seriousness of the ailment.

Vishinsky was accompanied by a secretary and two bodyguards.

The UN learned of Vishinsky's projected trip last Friday when he abruptly switched the date of the reception he was holding at the Russian delegation's Long Island estate from June 8 to June 4.

The news immediately prompted the usual state of speculation —Vishinsky might be in line for a new job; the Kremlin doesn't expect dramatic developments at Panmunjom one way or the other since it would want its top delegate here in case of big news; the Kremlin wants to consult him on the attitude of various UN groups toward the truce talks.

WIFE FAINTED, NEIGHBORS SLAMMED DOORS

Man Pronounced Dead Returns From Coffin in Chapel Vault

BELGRADE (AP)—Pity the plight of Ceda Pavlovic, who awoke the other night in a cemetery fully dressed for his own formal funeral.

Poor Pavlovic had taken a hot bath earlier in the day. Forgetting his schoolday physics lessons, he reached up a dripping arm to snap on a light. Water serves as a conductor for electricity.

His wife found him unconscious. A hurriedly summoned physician pronounced him dead. His body was carted off for burial next day under government health regulations. It was lodged in an ice-chilled vault beneath the cemetery chapel.

Pavlovic awoke to find himself in a coffin. He then nudged the lid of the coffin.

The lid moved upwards. He climbed out, only to find the vault door bolted. He cried for help. Frightened, a cemetery guard above fled.

A 60-year-old retired jurist, Pavlovic pleaded his predicament at the top of his lungs. "I am here by mistake," he shouted. "Let me out." The guard finally crept back and released him.

Pavlovic hurried off to the nearest phone to report to his wife he was coming home, hungry.

He was in for another shock. Under the strain of the day, she shrieked. Then he hung up. Then she fainted. Pavlovic tried next to re-establish himself with his neighbors. Answering his knocks, they looked quickly, shuddered and slammed the doors.

Finally, he found an acquaintance who had not heard of his "death." This one served as a go-between. Poor Pavlovic soon was home again.

But last shock was still to come. His family had inserted a death notice in the morning papers, too late to be withdrawn. Pavlovic still is answering messages of condolence.

Strikers Meet Council for Peace Talks

Saanich Workers Seek Compromise

Officials of the Saanich Municipal Employees Association will meet Saanich council tonight to discuss a wage settlement to end the strike of municipal employees.

The meeting will be held at 7.30 p.m. at the Municipal Hall.

Discussions to end the strike, which has tied up all municipal projects since last Thursday, began Monday. So far the association has agreed to reduce wage demands if Saanich Council will adjust wages of certain specialized workers.

The association said it is ready to accept a rate of $1.40 an hour for laborers, five cents less than originally demanded, and still below the rate paid in private industry.

The council has not yet committed itself, but has shown it is in favor of a general wage increase instead of wage adjustments to certain categories of workers.

The union will agree to this system only if the council will first appoint a wage commission to completely revise present wage rates. The union claims wages are so out of line that an over-all wage increase is not fair to some of the employees.

Canadian Jets Over London Pageantry

As the newly-crowned Queen, members of the Royal Family and thousands jamming London's Coronation route watched, 168 jet planes of the RAF and RCAF performed a fly-past. Whistling in from the south, the Canadian planes were fourth in the aerial procession, throttled back to keep pace with the slower RAF Meteors.

Crowd Surprises Guards To Stop Elizabeth's Car

Heavy Festivities Program Ahead for Busy Sovereign

LONDON (UP)—A hysterically cheering crowd, still celebrating the Coronation, burst through police lines today and stopped Queen Elizabeth's open automobile as she started out to tour the Cockney district of northeast London.

Taking the thin cordon of police by surprise, the crowd surrounded the car, in which the Queen's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, sat beside her, and forced it to halt.

The Queen sat smiling serenely until mounted police edged in and cleared the roadway, and she waved as her car drove slowly off.

The radiant young woman who was crowned in Westminster Abbey Tuesday was starting a whirl of post-Coronation festivities that will last most of this summer.

Wearing a powder blue coat and a close-fitting hat of the same color, the Queen started out to tour northeast London. In succeeding days, she will tour the other three corners of her sprawling capital to let as many people as possible see her.

She had gone down The Mall, past cheering lines of people, to receive the homage of the waiting mayor of Westminster — central London — when the crowd stopped her car.

In northeast London, despite the weather, the Queen found the drab streets decorated with festive flowers, and the cheers rang as fervently as those that greeted her Tuesday.

The great day of the Coronation was over. London awoke—with many a hangover—to a rainy day after its gayest night since the Second World War victory celebration.

Elizabeth holds a great state banquet tonight in Buckingham Palace. In the next two weeks she will go to the Derby, a gala opera at the Covent Garden, "trooping the color" at the Spithead naval review and the Royal Ascot race meeting.

She will then go to Edinburgh for a "second Coronation" in Scotland.

Let's see now, where were we? Oh yeah, the' election.

'Gleaming' Sobriquet For Queen

LONDON (BUP) — All London was agog today with talk that Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill may have uttered a description for history when he described Elizabeth II as a "gleaming" figure.

There was immediate speculation that the young monarch would be known as "the gleaming queen" as a result of the great orator's influence.

The prime minister stressed the word "gleaming" Tuesday night as he introduced Queen Elizabeth's radio message.

"'Gracious and noble' are words familiar to us in all courtly phrasing," he said. "Tonight they have a new ring in them because we know they are true about the gleaming figure whom providence has brought to us in a time when the present is hard and the future veiled.

"It is our dearest hope that her reign shall be as glorious as her devoted subjects can help her make it. We pray to have rulers who serve, nations who comfort each other and for peoples to thrive and prosper free from fear.

"May God grant us these blessings."

Ike on TV Tonight

U.S. President Dwight Eisenhower's television broadcast reporting to the nation will be carried on KING-TV Seattle tonight at 6.30.

Commonwealth Leaders Want East-West Parley

LONDON (Reuters)—Jacob Malik, Soviet ambassador to Britain, had a half-hour meeting today with Prime Minister Churchill at 10 Downing Street.

It was learned that the meeting took place at Malik's request, but British officials declined to say what matters were discussed.

Their silence encouraged speculation that it might have had some connection with proposals for an East-West meeting, which Churchill is known to favor.

LONDON (AP)—Eight Commonwealth prime ministers, including Canada's St. Laurent, support Sir Winston Churchill's call for top-level talks between East and West, authoritative sources said tonight.

This had been the reported aim of the British prime minister as he opened a six-day conference of Commonwealth leaders with a general review of world affairs and a detailed analysis of East-West relations.

Qualified sources said Churchill hoped to win the unreserved support of Britain's eight Commonwealth partners for his project to bring about an early top-level meeting of the big powers. Churchill evidently believes he will then be in a position to speak with greater authority when he meets President Eisenhower and the French premier in Bermuda late this month.

Prime Minister St. Laurent is representing Canada at the conference. He also attended the conference last November when sterling members of the Commonwealth drew up a plan to beat the dollar shortage — a problem not shared directly by Canada.

Newcomers to today's meeting at 10 Downing Street were Jawaharlal Nehru of India, Daniel Malan of South Africa and Mohammed Ali of Pakistan. They did not attend the November conference.

Each to Make Policy Statement

Churchill was understood to have dwelt in his address on the various ways he thinks East-West political tension can be reduced and how improvement in the world situation might benefit the Commonwealth's economic position.

Reported up for discussion at the meetings here is a plan to have the Queen and Royal Family live for periods of time in the capitals of each of the self-governing countries of the Commonwealth.

Following Churchill's appraisal today of the world situation, each of the other prime ministers will make a policy statement. Particular interest will be shown in Nehru's address since he has taken a key role in seeking a Korean truce.

No announcement of the current talks is expected until they wind up next Wednesday.

Other prime ministers attending are Robert Menzies of Australia, Dudley Senanayake of Ceylon, Sir Godfrey Huggins of Southern Rhodesia, and Sidney Holland of New Zealand.

PARIS (AP)—The foreign office said today that the date of the Big Three meeting in Bermuda hinges on the outcome of France's ministerial crisis.

An informal exchange of views has been made between the United States, Britain and France on mutual subjects and it has been agreed that no positive date can be set until France has a government.

It originally had been planned for President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and the French premier to meet June 17. Since this is only two weeks away, and France has not yet selected a cabinet to replace that of Rene Mayer, a postponement has been agreed upon.

The three governments are thinking now in terms of the last half of this month, without specifying the exact dates.

Man Battles Thieves As Crowd Looks on

Burglars Identified in Vancouver When Branch of Victoria Firm Robbed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dozens of Hotel Vancouver lobby-sitters stood by and watched a courageous silent alarm operator struggle with a thief Tuesday afternoon in the course of a fantastic cops-and-robbers chase.

"Not a soul moved—they just stood there with their mouths open," said 26-year-old Harvey Delmar in recounting the story of the chase.

Both thieves surprised by the unarmed operator escaped, but Delmar recognized one and tore a jacket, containing a wallet, pictures and complete identification, off the second. He later identified them from police photos, and the wanted men are still being sought.

An employee of B.C. District Telegraph and Delivery Co. Ltd., Delmar answered a silent alarm to W. J. Wilson clothing company in the Hotel Vancouver, a branch of the Victoria firm of the same name.

Entering a small storage room, the five-foot-nine, 150-pound operator confronted two thieves.

"The one I knew looked at me and said, 'You know me give me a break!' I told him, 'Yes, I know you, and I'm taking you both in'."

Delmar blocked the doorway against the kicking, punching thieves for several minutes before they managed to break through.

"Since I could identify one of them, I decided to go after the other fellow," Delmar said, "and I chased him full tilt through the lobby after ripping off his jacket."

Then began the long chase which twice crossed busy Granville Street intersections at Smithe and Nelson. Finally, at Richards and Nelson, the thief jumped into a passing taxi.
